YOUTH ARRAIGNED IN LYNCHINGS

Investigation Of Alleged Whiskey Trust Ordered

MARCH SAYS WILL ISSUE COMPLAINTS

FAVORS PROHIBITION

Repeal Leader for Return of Dry Regime Unless Methods Are Changed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(UP)—Chairman Charles H. March, of the Federal Trade commission, told the United Press today that he had ordered an investigation into an alleged whiskey trust following charges of Rep. O'Connor, Dem., N. Y., before a joint congressional committee.

O'Connor, a repeal leader, charged that the "trust" was maintaining a lobby among Washington officials and was costing the public millions of dollars.

The Federal Trade commission met today and March said reports of the trust would be thoroughly discussed and plans for a thorough investigation would be crystallized.

Chairman March said his investigators would seek evidence which would provide means for issuing a formal complaint for violation of anti-trust laws. He refused to name those who would be investigated.

Answers Charges

Chairman March indicated that his group would work in close harmony with Joseph H. Choate jr., federal alcohol control administrator and department of justice officials. He added that this is "the trade commissions' answer to the "sitting pretty" charges.

The "whiskey" trust is prepared to "grab" $500,000,000 in profits from blended whiskies in the next six months, O'Connor charged today.

"They are out for that profit and are buying up all they can of the 40,000,000 gallons of liquor in the hands of the illicit industry," O'Connor, a leading house wet, warned.

O'Connor, who asserted at a liquor tax hearing that the "trust is sitting pretty in Washington," followed up his sweeping attack with a plea for public boycott of "extortion priced" liquor.

WILL INVESTIGATE SHOOTING OF COACH

SOUTH CHATHAM, Mass., Dec. 15.—(UP)—Barnstable county authorities will investigate the shooting of Richard J. Glendon, Columbia university crew coach found dead beside his .12 gauge shotgun on snow-covered marshland about a mile and a half from his home here yesterday.

Though Medical Examiner C. W. Keene of Chatham has announced that he will record the case as one of accidental shooting, District Attorney William C. Crossley assigned State Detective Ernest Bradford to investigate the tragedy.

About 28 hours after vanishing on a duck-hunting trip, Glendon's body was found in the snow near Cockle Cove road by a Chatham policeman, one of more than a hundred police, Boy Scouts, and civilians who had searched all night and through the day.

SAMUEL INSULL IS ORDERED TO LEAVE GREECE BY JAN. 31

Held To Be Undesirable Alien Today

Faces Prospect of Summary Arrest and Extradition When He Departs

ATHENS, Dec. 15.—(UP)—Aged Samuel Insull, American utilities magnate, was ordered today to leave Greece by January 31.

Insull, 74, in ill health and broken in spirit, was summoned before Minister of Interior John Rallis and informed that he was an undesirable alien.

Just freed of extradition charges brought by the United States government, Insull was asked to leave the country as soon as possible, and was told that he would not be permitted to remain after the expiration of his resi[illegible] permit December 31.

Insull pleaded that he be given a month's grace. His request was granted.

But on January 31, if not sooner, he must leave Greece to face the prospect of summary arrest and extradition to the United States to stand trial in federal court for violation of the bankruptcy laws in connection with the c[illegible]lapse of his utilities empire.

The government today agreed to visa the passport carried by Insull. The passport, however, has been cancelled by the state department.

If he elected to remain in Greece to the last moment, it was added, he would be permitted to leave for any place he liked. But if he remained a day over the deadline, Rallis warned, he would be deported direct to New York.

Greek courts, at two hearings, had refused to grant the request of the United States for Insull's extradition. It was held that the offenses charged against him were not extraditable under Greek law.

The Uniied States government, angered, replied that the recent Greek-American extradition treaty, written after a carefully considered formula used in many nations, covered the charges in all particulars, and denounced the treaty.

Anxious to placate the United States government, Greek authorities began at once to consider means of getting Insull out of the country.

POLICE STILL BAFFLED OVER SIEVER MURDER

Host of Women Friends of Pasadena Dentist Will Be Questioned

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 15.—(UP)—A host of women who entered the bizarre life of Dr. Leonard Siever as employe, friend or sweetheart was to be questioned today by local detectives, seeking a solution to the murder of the 44-year-old bachelor dentist.

Proceeding on the theory that unrequieted love or bitter hatred underwrote the crime on a rain-drenched parking lot early Tuesday night, investigators announced they would question every woman who was known to have associated with the victim.

From office records, they checked the names of 21 girls who once worked for him. These, officers said, would be questioned concerning his business and moral conduct. Other women to be questioned were from the city's social ranks where Siever moved as a strange but welcome figure.

The secrecy with which he masked his personal affairs contributed a major obstacle in the investigation.

"We've back tracked his life as well as we have been able without finding the woman or the men, who might have murdered him," declared Deputy District Attorney Hugh McIsaac.

Efforts Blocked

"There are countless nights we cannot check," the prosecutor said. "There were nights when he had no social engagements but left his rooms in the evening and sometimes did not return until dawn. Those who knew him have seen Dr. Siever walking in the early morning hours, far from his lodgings."

TREATMENT FOUND FOR TWO DISEASES

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—(INS)—Successful treatment of high blood pressure and diabetes with X-rays on the new theory those diseases are the result of over-active pituitary and adrenal glands was described today by Dr. J. H. Hutton, noted endocrinologist.

X-ray treatment has been successful in reducing the abnormal glandular artivity in many tests Dr. Hutton declares.

Science had previously known of no absolutely successful method of reducing high blood pressure, but Dr. Hutton, in the latest issue of the Illinois Medical Journal, declares that careful treatment with X-rays was successful in bringing the pressure of a number of sufferers down near normal.

"BENDS" TAKES LIFE OF DEEP SEA DIVER

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—(UP)—The "bends," dreaded affliction of deep-water divers, was given today as the cause of the death of Lloyd J. Evans, experienced diver who came here from Bremerton, Wash., to work on the San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge.

Evans was stricken while working at a depth of 112 feet removing pins from a caisson near Yerba Buena island. He was brought to the surface in graduated stages and when freed from his paraphernalia he collapsed. He regained consciousness in a decompression chamber but sank into a coma again when normal pressure was applied.

Physicians worked for hours trying to restore him but death defeated their efforts.

Next Tuesday Will Be Legal Holiday

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 15.—(UP)—Replying to numerous inquiries, Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan today announced the special election to be held December 19 on the state water plan referendum is a legal holiday. All public offices and banks will be closed, he said, but stores will remain open.

LINDBERGHS AT SANTA DOMINGO EN ROUTE HOME

Expected to Land Tomorrow at Miami; to Spend Christmas With Son

SAN PEDRO DE MACORIS, Santo Domingo, Dec. 15.—(UP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived today at 10:40 a. m., E. S. T., en route home for the holidays, after a flight of 210 miles from San Juan, Puerto Rico.

From this point the noted American fliers were within striking distance of continental United States. The air distance to Miami is only 835 miles, well within the cruising range of their big ship.

Following the customary course of the Pan-American airways, however, the Lindberghs could fly to Haiti, thence to Havana, and so across the narrow gulf to Florida.

Colonel Lindbergh was known to have papers not only for Santo Domingo but for Miami, and it was regarded as probable that he would eliminate the Havana leg of the flight, thus saving at least one day of the retu[illegible]n trip.

The Lindberghs are anxious to return home in time for a holiday celebration with their son, Jon. When completed, their aerial tour, which carried them to ports in three continents, will have taken them more than 25,000 miles.

INSTITUTE MEETING TO CLOSE TONIGHT

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Dec. 15.—(UP)—The institute of world affairs prepared to adjourn today after a six day discussion of international problems ranging from armaments to economics.

One of the final speeches was delivered by Dr. William B. Munro of the California Institute of Technology, who forecast the decline of Hitlerism, contingent upon European powers lifting restrictions imposed on Germany by the Versailles treaty.

"Even Napoleon would not have asked Germany to have acknowledged guilt for the World War," the historian said. "Such humiliation of a proud nation coupled with conditions following the war plunged the country into excesses which affected other nations."

OFF ON AIRPLANE TRIP

Mrs. Guggenheim's cabin plane, equipped with radio receiving apparatus, recently was outfitted with extra fuel tanks in the wings, giving it a cruising range of 2000 miles.

They have no definite plans, Mrs. Guggenheim said. They will enter Mexico at Nogales, Sonora, and head directly for South America. "The trip may end in Europe," Mrs. Guggenheim said, but would not elaborate.

LOWER FEDERAL TAX ON EARNED INCOMES URGED

Acting Secretary Morgenthau Makes Recommendations at Hearing

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(UP)—A lower federal tax on earned income than on income from investments was recommended today by Acting Secretary of Treasury Morganthau.

Appearing before the house ways and means committee, Morganthau also urged abandonment of the present system permitting husbands and wives to file separate income tax returns. Under existing procedure some couples have been able to pay smaller taxes than would have been required under a joint return.

The treasury head suggested other important changes in proposals of a ways and means subcommittee designed to plug loopholes in the present tax laws, raise new revenues and simplify the income tax structure.

The subcommittee had estimated its proposed changes would yield $270,000,000 of new revenue. Treasury experts, however, estimated the gain at nearer $100,000,000.

Morgenthau made no specific recommendations on the amount of new tax rates and said he would not be able to do so until federal budget estimates are completed.

He agreed with the committee, however, that there should be only one set of normal tax rates instead of two, and that surtax rates be adjusted accordingly.

Makes Criticism

In addition to the earned income recommendations, the treasury criticised the proposal to limit depreciation deductions of corporations to 75 per cent of the amount actually sustained. The treasury recommended that provisions for "discovery depletion" in connection with mining enterprises be eliminated in order to place all taxpayers on the same basis.

Morgenthau recommended retention of income tax on capital gains. But as long as capital gains are taxed, Morgenthau said, some deductions for capital losses must be allowed. It is by deductions for capital losses, particularly on sales of stock that many wealthy persons have escaped income taxes.

"It is essential, however," he said, "That restrictions be imposed upon the deduction of capital losses from ordinary income, since our experience indicates that no method of tax avoidance is more widely employed than this. In the opinion of the treasury, it is fair to provide that capital losses may be deducted only from capital gains, with perhaps the qualification that any capital net loss may be carried forward for one year and applied against a capital gain in such later year.

Limit Deductions

"In the alternative, perhaps an arbitrary limitation of the deduction of capital losses to an amount of not more than 50 per cent of the capital gains would be desir-

CLINE HELD QUILTY ON THEFT CHARGES

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Dec. 15.—(UP)—A. L. Cline, well-to-do Glendale insurance man, faced a possible return to prison today after being convicted of robbing Martin Frame, elderly Los Angeles resident, with the aid of a narcotic.

A jury found him guilty of grand theft charges last night after five hours of deliberation. The defendant was ordered to appear for sentence Monday and was returned to his jail cell.

Cline, who once served a term in the Colorado state prison for forgery, was accused of giving Frame a portion of luminol in a glass of buttermilk and robbing him of $240 while his aged victim was in a comatose condition. The defendant denied the charges.

TUNA FISH PACKERS SEEK FEDERAL AID

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(UP)—Tuna fish and the plight of Pacific coast seiners and packers who prepare them for the American market posed a difficult problem today for the agricultural adjustment administration, the state department and the White House.

Pacific coast packers represented by Arch E. Eckdale complain that Japanese competitors have forced tuna fish packeries in San Pedro and San Diego, Calif., to close.

In reliable unofficial sources it was said that a year-old tariff commission report recommending increased rates against imported canned Tuna has reached President Roosevelt and is under consideration in connection with a plea for an AAA embargo under terms of the National Industry Recovery act.

NO CHANGE MADE IN GOLD PRICE TODAY

The London price today was 126 shillings 7 pence, up 6 pence from yesterday. On the basis of the opening exchange rate for the pound sterling ($5.15 1-2) this was equivalent to $32.63 an ounce.

The dollar remained at 60.78 cents.

MARKETING AGREEMENTS FOR CITRUS FRUITS TO BECOME EFFECTIVE ON DECEMBER 18

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(UP)—Marketing agreements for citrus fruits in California, Arizona and Florida were effective today following their approval by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and the majority of shippers in each region.

Licenses making the provisions of the agreements mandatory on all shippers will become effective Dec. 18, according to the announcement by the agriculture adjustment administration.

The agreements seek to increase the returns to shippers through regulation of supply. California and Arizona were linked in a single district and Florida was placed in a separate district.

Under the plan, to which Texas and Puerto Rico citrus fruit growers also may adhere, national control of citrus fruit shipments will be possible. The national program contemplates two national citrus stabilization committees, one each of oranges and grapefruit, comprised of representatives of the industry from the citrus regions. The two committees are to select a national citrus coordinator to correlate th[illegible] work.

The agreements provide for proration of shipments among shippers. The amount of fruit which should move to market will be estimated weekly and this amount will be prorated among shippers in proportion to the volume of fruit which they control.

A shipper may ship such fruit as is covered in a written contract of agreement giving him authority for such shipment; he may ship fruit to which he has legal title; or he may ship fruit for which he has paid 20 per cent of the purchase price, the AAA explained.

Two committees of eight members each will administer the California-Arizona agreement. The first, a growers' advisory committee of producers, will consist of four members selected by the California Fruit Exchange, two by the Mutual Orange Distributors, and two by independent buyers. The distribution committee will be selected similarly.

The California-Arizona growers committee is empowered to join with similar committees under other citrus marketing agreements to select the national citrus stabilization committees. On the national orange committee there will be 11 members, four each from California and Florida, and one each from Arizona, Texas and Puerto Rico. The national grapefruit committee is to have 10 members, with four representatives from Florida, three from Texas, and one each from California, Arizona and Puerto Rico.

DEBT PAYMENT DEFAULTED BY FRANCE TODAY

Formal Notification Received by State Department of Default

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(UP)—The French government formally notified the United States today that France will default on her debt installment of $22,200,927 due today.

The notification was contained in a formal note presented to Acting Secretary of State Phillips by the French ambassador, Andre de Laboulaye, on behalf of his government.

The French note, it was understood, followed nearly parallel lines with the note presented by Belgium several days ago announcing Belgium's intention to default this payment, as she and France and Poland have defaulted regularly since last December 15.

The Belgium note informed the United States that no further payments could be expected from Bel-

AIRPLANES RESUME NORMAL SCHEDULES

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—(UP)—Airlines resumed normal schedules and coastal shipping was restored today after general storms from Los Angeles to Portland.

Snow fell to great depth in the Sierras, temporarily trapping two miners, Paul Ray and Elmer Weaver. They were rescued by Denis King, who used skis to reach them. They were taken to Soda Springs by toboggan.

Mt. Diablo and Mt. Hamilton, in Alameda county, were mantled by snow, as were the Livermore foothills.

Clearing skies were expected today.

FLOOD WILL SUIT NEARS SETTLEMENT

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—(UP)—The long and bitter fight of Constance May Gavin, self-styled illegitimate daughter of the late James Flood, for a share of the millions Flood's father made in the famous Comstock lode, may be settled out of court, it was reported here today.

The reports were given credence by the presence here of Mrs. Gavin, wife of a Los Angeles bank teller. Also Theodore J. Roche, attorney for the Flood heirs, refused to deny the truth of the rumors. It was said that both Roche and defense counsel agreed upon a settlement to avoid further costly litigation.

SCHOOL BOARD ACCEPTS FUNDS FOR BUILDINGS

Half Million to Be Used an High School; $200,000 on Elementary

WITH DR. MARGARETE Baker and Rollo Hays vigorously opposing any application that would reduce the amount already set aside by the R. F. C. committee for use under the Green bill for rehabilitation of Santa Ana's schools the Santa Ana board of education this morning voted to accept $500,000 of the $700,000 already tentatively set aside for work on the high school unit and $115,000 for elementary schools, and to request an additional $85,000 for elementary school work.

Dr. Baker and Hays based their opposition on their belief that at this time no one knows exactly what the rehabilitation requirements would be that it would be better to apply for more money than is necessary for the work and return that portion which is unused, than it would be to start work and find that because of increased labor and material costs the fund available was not sufficient.

W. M. Burke led the fight for a reduction of the amount previously asked for, declaring that if the entire $700,000 were accepted, Allison and Allison, architects employed by the board to prepare plans for the work, would see to it that the entire amount is expended for erection of new buildings.

Immediately after the vote was taken on the high school fund, Burke moved to accept the $115,000 set aside for rehabilitation work on the elementary schools and to ask an additional grant of $85,000, bringing the sum up to $200,000 for the elementary district, in addition to $100,000 estimated as necessary for work at Julia Lathrop school which is included in the high school apportionment.

Original Request

The elementary school request originally was for $250,000 but when presented to state authorities and the R. F. C. agency for approval was reduced to $115,000. Burke this morning said that while he had no actual evidence to prove it, he was of the opinion that the elementary appropriation was cut and not the high school request, because the firm of Allison and Allison had the architectural job at the high schol and did not have the other. Frederick Eley, Santa Ana architect, has been given the work of repairing the elementary schools and the Lathrop Junior High school.

In making his motion, which was carried over the opposition vote of Dr. Baker, Burke said that he felt that the elementary school amount was not sufficient as allowed as the estimates now prepared were not definite. Dr. Baker in declaring her vote said that she opposed the attempt to secure additional funds for work in the elementary schools because she felt that she could not

HEARING IS SLATED FOR WEDNESDAY

OTHER ARRESTS LOOM

SAN JOSE, Calif., Dec. 15.—(UP)—Eighteen year-old Anthony Cataldi who boasted he led the mob that lynched Jack Holmes and Thomas Thurmond, kidnap killers of Brooke Hart, was arraigned today on a charge of participating in the hangings and preliminary hearing was set for 2 p. m. next Wednesday.

The boy's arrest was brought about by the American Civil Liberties Union which, as a part of its nationwide campaign against lynchings, interested itself in prosecution of the San Jose hangers. He was calm as he stood before Justice of the Peace Chester Moore.

"You are charged with participating in these lynchings which constitute a felony," Moore said. "Do you wish to plead?"

Cataldi's attorney, Richard Bessani, intervened and asked for the preliminary hearing. The date was set, and Cataldi, with his father and Bessani, left the little courtroom.

The boy has been at liberty in $10,000 bail since his arrest. Meantime the C. L. U. has been attempting to bring about other arrests, but to no avail.

After the lynchings Cataldi gave newspapermen a statement saying he went to San Jose speakeasies and other resorts and recruited the ring-leaders who incited the mob to violence. He said many of them, himself among them, had been drinking.

Holmes and Thurmond were hanged in St. James park here a month ago, a few hours after young Hart's body was found in San Francisco bay. Hart had been kidnaped a week earlier.

FERRYBOAT WORKERS VOTE TO WALK OUT

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—(UP)—Ferryboat union leaders were invested today with full power to call a strike affecting all automobile ferries in San Francisco bay should present arbitration efforts fail.

The strike authority was given the joint union committee by a vote taken among the 600 union men protesting continuance of a 10 per cent wage cut by the Southern Pacific-Colden Gate ferries Co. Reliable authority said that 99 per cent of the workers approved the walkout plan.

George Creel, local chairman of the national labor board, insisted that there must be no strike.

Acting Secretary Morgenthau Makes Recommendations at Hearing

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(UP)—A lower federal tax on earned income than on income from investments was recommended today by Acting Secretary of Treasury Morganthau.

Appearing before the house ways and means committee, Morganthau also urged abandonment of the present system permitting husbands and wives to file separate income tax returns. Under existing procedure some couples have been able to pay smaller taxes than would have been required under a joint return.

The treasury head suggested other important changes in proposals of a ways and means subcommittee designed to plug loopholes in the present tax laws, raise new revenues and simplify the income tax structure.

The subcommittee had estimated its proposed changes would yield $270,000,000 of new revenue. Treasury experts, however, estimated the gain at nearer $100,000,000.

Morgenthau made no specific recommendations on the amount of new tax rates and said he would not be able to do so until federal budget estimates are completed.

He agreed with the committee, however, that there should be only one set of normal tax rates instead of two, and that surtax rates be adjusted accordingly.

Makes Criticism

In addition to the earned income recommendations, the treasury criticised the proposal to limit depreciation deductions of corporations to 75 per cent of the amount actually sustained. The treasury recommended that provisions for "discovery depletion" in connection with mining enterprises be eliminated in order to place all taxpayers on the same basis.

Morgenthau recommended retention of income tax on capital gains. But as long as capital gains are taxed, Morgenthau said, some deductions for capital losses must be allowed. It is by deductions for capital losses, particularly on sales of stock that many wealthy persons have escaped income taxes.

"It is essential, however," he said, "That restrictions be imposed upon the deduction of capital losses from ordinary income, since our experience indicates that no method of tax avoidance is more widely employed than this. In the opinion of the treasury it is fair to provide that capital losses may be deducted only from capital gains, with perhaps the qualification that any capital net loss may be carried forward for one year and applied against a capital gain in such later year.

Limit Deductions

"In the alternative, perhaps an arbitrary limitation of the deduction of capital losses to an amount of not more than 50 per cent of the capital gains would be desir-

CLINE HELD QUILTY ON THEFT CHARGES

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Dec. 15.—(UP)—A. L. Cline, well-to-do Glendale insurance man, faced a possible return to prison today after being convicted of robbing Martin Frame, elderly Los Angeles resident, with the aid of a narcotic.

A jury found him guilty of grand theft charges last night after five hours of deliberation. The defendant was ordered to appear for sentence Monday and was returned to his jail cell.

Cline, who once served a term in the Colorado state prison for forgery, was accused of giving Frame a portion of luminol in a glass of buttermilk and robbing him of $240 while his aged victim was in a comatose condition. The defendant denied the charges.

TUNA FISH PACKERS SEEK FEDERAL AID

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(UP)—Tuna fish and the plight of Pacific coast seiners and packers who prepare them for the American market posed a difficult problem today for the agricultural adjustment administration, the state department and the White House.

Pacific coast packers represented by Arch E. Eckdale complain that Japanese competitors have forced tuna fish packeries in San Pedro and San Diego, Calif., to close.

In reliable unofficial sources it was said that a year-old tariff commission report recommending increased rates against imported canned Tuna has reached President Roosevelt and is under consideration in connection with a plea for an AAA embargo under terms of the National Industry Recovery act.

NO CHANGE MADE IN GOLD PRICE TODAY

The London price today was 126 shillings 7 pence, up 6 pence from yesterday. On the basis of the opening exchange rate for the pound sterling ($5.15 1-2) this was equivalent to $32.63 an ounce.

The dollar remained at 69.78 cents.

MARKETING AGREEMENTS FOR CITRUS FRUITS TO BECOME EFFECTIVE ON DECEMBER 18

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(UP)—Marketing agreements for citrus fruits in California, Arizona and Florida were effective today following their approval by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and the majority of shippers in each region.

Licenses making the provisions of the agreements mandatory on all shippers will become effective Dec. 18, according to the announcement by the agriculture adjustment administration.

The agreements seek to increase the returns to shippers through regulation of supply. California and Arizona were linked in a single district and Florida was placed in a separate district.

Under the plan, to which Texas and Puerto Rico citrus fruit growers also may adhere, national control of citrus fruit shipments will be possible. The national program contemplates two national citrus stabilization committees, one each of oranges and grapefruit, comprised of representatives of the industry from the citrus regions. The two committees are to select a national citrus coordinator to correlate their work.

The agreements provide for proration of shipments among shippers. The amount of fruit which should move to market will be estimated weekly and this amount will be prorated among shippers in proportion to the volume of fruit which they control.

A shipper may ship such fruit as is covered in a written contract of agreement giving him authority for such shipment; he may ship fruit to which he has legal title; or he may ship fruit for which he has paid 20 per cent of the purchase price, the AAA explained.

Two committees of eight members each will administer the California-Arizona agreement. The first, a growers' advisory committee of producers, will consist of four members selected by the California Fruit Exchange, two by the Mutual Orange Distributors, and two by independent buyers. The distribution committee will be selected similarly.

The California-Arizona growers committee is empowered to join with similar committees under other citrus marketing agreements to select the national citrus stabilization committees. On the national orange committee there will be 11 members, four each from California and Florida, and one each from Arizona, Texas and Puerto Rico. The national grapefruit committee is to have 10 members, with four representatives from Florida, three from Texas, and one each from California, Arizona and Puerto Rico.

DEBT PAYMENT DEFAULTED BY FRANCE TODAY

Formal Notification Received by State Department of Default

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(UP)—The French government formally notified the United States today that France will default on her debt installment of $22,200,927 due today.

The notification was contained in a formal note presented to Acting Secretary of State Phillips by the French ambassador, Andre de Laboulaye, on behalf of his government.

The French note, it was understood, followed nearly parallel lines with the note presented by Belgium several days ago announcing Belgium's intention to default this payment, as she and France and Poland have defaulted regularly since last December 15.

The Belgium note informed the United States that no further payments could be expected from Bel-

AIRPLANES RESUME NORMAL SCHEDULES

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—(UP)—Airlines resumed normal schedules and coastal shipping was restored today after general storms from Los Angeles to Portland.

Snow fell to great depth in the Sierras, temporarily trapping two miners, Paul Ray and Elmer Weaver. They were rescued by Denis King, who used skis to reach them. They were taken to Soda Springs by toboggan.

Mt. Diablo and Mt. Hamilton, in Alameda county, were mantled by snow, as were the Livermore foothills.

Clearing skies were expected today.

FLOOD WILL SUIT NEARS SETTLEMENT

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—(UP)—The long and bitter fight of Constance May Gavin, self-styled illegitimate daughter of the late James Flood, for a share of the millions Flood's father made in the famous Comstock lode, may be settled out of court, it was reported here today.

The reports were given credence by the presence here of Mrs. Gavin, wife of a Los Angeles bank teller. Also Theodore J. Roche, attorney for the Flood heirs, refused to deny the truth of the rumors. It was said that both Roche and defense counsel agreed upon a settlement to avoid further costly litigation.

SCHOOL BOARD ACCEPTS FUNDS FOR BUILDINGS

Half Million to Be Used an High School; $200,000 on Elementary

WITH DR. MARGARETE Baker and Rollo Hays vigorously opposing any application that would reduce the amount already set aside by the R. F. C. committee for use under the Green bill for rehabilitation of Santa Ana's schools the Santa Ana board of education this morning voted to accept $500,000 of the $700,000 already tentatively set aside for work on the high school unit and $115,000 for elementary schools, and to request an additional $85,000 for elementary school work.

Dr. Baker and Hays based their opposition on their belief that at this time no one knows exactly what the rehabilitation requirements would be that it would be better to apply for more money than is necessary for the work and return that portion which is unused, than it would be to start work and find that because of increased labor and material costs the fund available was not sufficient.

W. M. Burke led the fight for a reduction of the amount previously asked for, declaring that if the entire $700,000 were accepted, Allison and Allison, architects employed by the board to prepare plans for the work, would see to it that the entire amount is expended for erection of new buildings.

Immediately after the vote was taken on the high school fund, Burke moved to accept the $115,000 set aside for rehabilitation work on the elementary schools and to ask an additional grant of $85,000, bringing the sum up to $200,000 for the elementary district, in addition to $100,000 estimated as necessary for work at Julia Lathrop school which is included in the high school apportionment.

Original Request

The elementary school request originally was for $250,000 but when presented to state authorities and the R. F. C. agency for approval was reduced to $115,000. Burke this morning said that while he had no actual evidence to prove it, he was of the opinion that the elementary appropriation was cut and not the high school request, because the firm of Allison and Allison had the architectural job at the high schol and did not have the other. Frederick Eley, Santa Ana architect, has been given the work of repairing the elementary schools and the Lathrop Junior High school.

In making his motion, which was carried over the opposition vote of Dr. Baker, Burke said that he felt that the elementary school amount was not sufficient as allowed as the estimates now prepared were not definite. Dr. Baker in declaring her vote said that she opposed the attempt to secure additional funds for work in the elementary schools because she felt that she could not

SAN JOSE, Calif., Dec. 15.—(UP)—Eighteen year-old Anthony Cataldi who boasted he led the mob that lynched Jack Holmes and Thomas Thurmond, kidnap killers of Brooke Hart, was arraigned today on a charge of participating in the hangings and preliminary hearing was set for 2 p. m. next Wednesday.

The boy's arrest was brought about by the American Civil Liberties Union which, as a part of its nationwide campaign against lynchings, interested itself in prosecution of the San Jose hangers. He was calm as he stood before Justice of the Peace Chester Moore.

"You are charged with participating in these lynchings which constitute a felony," Moore said. "Do you wish to plead?"

Cataldi's attorney, Richard Bessani, intervened and asked for the preliminary hearing. The date was set, and Cataldi, with his father and Bessani, left the little courtroom.

The boy has been at liberty in $10,000 bail since his arrest. Meantime the C. L. U. has been attempting to bring about other arrests, but to no avail.

After the lynchings Cataldi gave newspapermen a statement saying he went to San Jose speakeasies and other resorts and recruited the ring-leaders who incited the mob to violence. He said many of them, himself among them, had been drinking.

Holmes and Thurmond were hanged in St. James park here a month ago, a few hours after young Hart's body was found in San Francisco bay. Hart had been kidnaped a week earlier.

FERRYBOAT WORKERS VOTE TO WALK OUT

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—(UP)—Ferryboat union leaders were invested today with full power to call a strike affecting all automobile ferries in San Francisco bay should present arbitration efforts fail.

The strike authority was given the joint union committee by a vote taken among the 600 union men protesting continuance of a 10 per cent wage cut by the Southern Pacific-Golden Gate ferries Co. Reliable authority said that 99 per cent of the workers approved the walkout plan.

George Creel, local chairman of the national labor board, insisted that there must be no strike.

gium unless and until the German reparation payments to Belgium are resumed.

The French note, it was understood, contained much the same inference, but used less specific language. It informed the American government that the conditions which prompted the first French default last December 15, and again June 15, still prevail, and that under the circumstances the French government finds itself unable to meet the current installment.

The French note practically completed the debt negotiations on the current installment. France, Belgium, Esthonia and Poland defaulted outright.

Finland paid in full her installment of $229,623. She was the only government to pay in full.

Great Britain, Italy, Latvia, Czechoslovakia and Lithuania made "token" payments of a small percentage of the amounts due. Britain paid $7,500,000 on an installment of $117,670,665; Italy paid $1,000,000 on an installment of $2,133,906; Czechoslovakia paid $150,000 on an installment of $1,682,813; Latvia paid $8500 on an installment of $180,706; Lithuania paid $10,000 on an installment of $105,474.

Total payments received today or for which notification of intention to pay was received, mounted to $8,898,123. This compared with a total of $153,496,247 falling due.

able. Since the taxpayer himself may determine the time at which a sale of capital assets may be made, and therefore has considerable leeway in determining when he may be taxable on any gains or when he will deduct his losses, such limitations as these are not unreasonable.

"They will further prevent the serious reduction in the revenues from the income tax which accurred prior to 1932 from the deduction of capital losses from ordinary income."

The treasury, Morgenthau said, is in accord with the general plan of subjecting undistributed income of personal holding companies to a higher rate of tax than that of other corporations.

Morgenthau disagreed with the ways and means committee's recommendation for abolition of consolidated income tax return of corporations. He said this would bring in little additional revenue.

"The present law," he said, "permits a return in accord with business practice, and gives the treasury broad powers to make the necessary rules and regulations to prevent escape from the tax."

The treasury also disagreed with new restrictions recommended for partnerships like J. P Morgan & Co.

Partnership Loses

The treatment of partnership income and deductions should be consistent, Morgenthau said. So long as the partner must report all partnership income, he should be permitted to deduct the corresponding partnership losses.

Losses now deductable, Morgenthau said, are not fictitious or imaginary and do not represent either evasion or avoidance of income tax. In the opinion of the department, the proposal would probably operate with extreme injustice upon the many small business partnerships.

"It has long been recognized both in this country and abroad," Mongenthau said, in discussing the income tax burden on small taxpayers, "that earned money should be taxed at a lower rate than income from investments.

"The salaried man, unlike the recipient of income from investment, is under the necessity of providing for the gradual loss of his earning power by building up a fund sufficient to care for his old age, for sickness, and the care of his family during his old age and after his death.

Capacity To Pay

"In consequence, his capacity to pay income taxes is actually less than that of a man with a similar income from capital investments, who is under no such necessity. For these reasons and others, provision was made in the revenue laws of 1924, 1926 and 1928 for a credit against the tax applicable to earned income, but the provision was deleted in the 1932 law on account of the acute need for revenue.

"Since the burden of taxation will necessarily be heavy during the next few years, it is more essential that the burden be distributed as equitably as possible.

"The treasury, therefore, strongly recommends that the principle of a lower tax on earned income should again be recognized at the same time that the basic rate of tax are adjusted. For simplicity in administration, it is recommended that the provision take the form of a deduction, of some agreed percentage of the taxpayers' earned income; and that it contain a limitation of the application of the section to incomes of not more than $25,000."

Under questioning by committee members, Dr. Roswell Magill, new treasury tax expert, recommended that surtaxes start at $6500 instead of $4000 as proposed by the sub-committee. Present surtaxes start at $6000. Magill read a large part of Morgenthau's statement to the committee.

Rep. Treadway, Repn., Mass., asked Morgenthau if Magill had authority to speak for the treasury.

"He has authority and my confidence," Morgenthau replied.

"How long have you been in the treasury," Treadway asked Magill.

Magill replied "about three weeks," there was considerable laughter.

HICKS PAROLE MATTER BEFORE COURT TODAY

BULLETIN

Judge Edward Hendersen, who heard evidence in the case of W. L. Hicks, Santa Ana grocer, charged with statutory offenses against several Santa Ana grade school girls, and who was convicted by a jury on one count, today granted the defendant probation for a period of 10 years, provided he spend one year in the county jail. The probation department's recommendation was that probation be denied.

Decision on the parole application of W. L. Hicks, Santa Ana grocer recently convicted of a statutory offense against a 12-year-old school girl, was continued until this afternoon by Superior Judge Edward Hendersen of Ventura county, who heard testimony in the case. The hearing was held by Judge Hendersen in department three, superior court.

When the hearing started this morning Judge Hendersen declared that a petition signed by many persons had been presented to him apparently for the purpose of influencing the court and not to assist the court. He said that he hoped the proponents of the petition were not so weak as to think that the court would make its decision in the matter on such grounds. It was believed by those in the courtroom that he referred to a petition circulated by the P.-T. A.

Later in the hearing Judge Henderson said that in his mind the district attorney was completely vindicated in his original action of accepting a plea of guilty to one offense, thus making it unnecessary to bring numerous children into court to testify as to acts of the accused grocer. He said that his only criticism of the district attorney was in listening to outside criticism and consenting to file an amended complaint against the man, making it necessary for the children to come into court and testify.

Thomas McFadden, attorney for Hicks, at this point informed the court that the district attorney had decided to follow his original program, but had acted upon the request of McFadden. He explained his request to the district attorney to file an amended complaint alleging five counts to which Hicks pleaded not guilty, because serious charges had been inferred that "a lot of money had been spent to influence prosecution."

When first arrested Hicks was charged with five offenses, and following his preliminary hearing, went into superior court and pleaded guilty to one count and asked for probation. Considerable agitation started, and Hicks withdrew the guilty plea and pleaded not guilty to five counts. He was exonerated on two counts, convicted on one, the jury disagreed on another and the fifth was dismissed.

McFadden this morning declined to present any testimony in connection with Hicks' application and contented himself with a lengthy plea to the court. Just before the noon recess he completed his plea, and Deputy District Attorney James L. Davis called as his first witness resisting probation Deputy Sheriff Nicholson, who testified that in his investigation of the charges against Hicks he had learned of 10 children against whom the grocer was alleged to have committed offenses.

A young dramatic actress and her husband, both of whom are identified with the local Little Theater movement, were sought for questioning on the possibility they could throw some light on these nocturnal wanderings or on other incidents in his life. The couple was not at home when detectives called.

Several members of the upper strata of Pasadena society were questioned without result.

One was Mrs. Frances Coen Cooke, wealthy divorcee, who awaited Siever at her home the hour he met death from two bullet wounds beside his parked automobile. Mrs. Cooke said she did not know the dentist but that an introduction had been arranged by a mutual friend.

Question Aviatrix

Mrs. Peggy LaJotte, titian-haired aviatrix, also was questioned but she said she had not seen him in two months. Mrs. W. Paul Loveland, society leader who termed herself a friend of several years standing, also could name no enemy who might have inspired his death.

"We often discussed his feminine acquaintances but at no time did he reveal anything that would indicate any woman friend was wildly jealous of him," Mrs. Loveland said. "I know he had been quite attentive to several women and there may have been a great love in his life, but I'd rather not say anything on that point."

The dentist was described as "the most secretive man I ever saw" by a colleague, Dr. George Donner.

"He could turn his charm on and off, like a faucet," Dr. Donner said. "He was a man of many and varied moods."

MERLE MILLIGAN RITES

PLACENTIA, Dec. 15.—Merle Milligan, brother of the Rev. Don Milligan, pastor of Calvary church, was buried Thursday in Inglewood cemetery. He died at Santa Barbara last Sunday. The Rev. Mr. Milligan had charge of short services at Santa Barbara before interment was held at Inglewood.

All tax proposals remained contingent on whether the bill which the ways and means committee will draft call for a revenue sharing plan with states which refrain from gallonage taxes.

WILL ROGERS says:

PHOENIX, Dec. 15.— (To the Editor of The Register:) Roscoe Turner and I just breezed in here, 400 miles in two hours, to do a little stage acting at a benefit. Roscoe's jokes better be good, for with the Democrats doing all that can be done and the Republicans keeping still, why it don't leave me much to work on, so my little riddles are not so hot.

France handed us their yearly laugh; we told 'em it was debt-paying time and they just said "Yeah?" They have even borrowed our English language. Say, with Jesse Jones offering $34 an ounce for new gold, every man, woman or child that could get a burro and a pick have gone to the hills. This country has gone "nugget minded." And if they do what they ought to do and make silver a money instead of just a thing to shoot craps with, why this whole West will boom and we will have the King coming over with a pick and shovel.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

glum unless and until the German reparation payments to Belgium are resumed.

The French note, it was understood, contained much the same inference, but used less specific language. It informed the American government that the conditions which prompted the first French default last December 15, and again June 15, still prevail, and that under the circumstances the French government finds itself unable to meet the current installment.

The French note practically completed the debt negotiations on the current installment. France, Belgium, Esthonia and Poland defaulted outright.

Finland paid in full her installment of $229,623. She was the only government to pay in full.

Great Britain, Italy, Latvia, Czechoslovakia and Lithuania made "token" payments of a small percentage of the amounts due. Britain paid $7,500,000 on an installment of $117,670,665; Italy paid $1,000,000 on an installment of $2,133,906; Czechoslovakia paid $150,000 on an installment of $1,682,818; Latvia paid $8500 on an installment of $180,706; Lithuania paid $10,000 on an installment of $105,474.

Total payments received today or for which notification of intention to pay was received, mounted to $8,898,123. This compared with a total of $153,496,247 falling due.

Bowman Funeral Set for Saturday

Funeral services for Homer C. Bowman, 59, brother of Melville C. Bowman, Santa Ana, and William H. Bowman, Tustin, will be held at his home near Downey at 2 p. m. tomorrow, it was announced today. Bowman, who died at his home Wednesday, also is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mabelle Bowman; a daughter, Mrs. Horace Shafer; one sister, Miss Olive Bowman, and another brother, Edgar S. Bowman.

able. Since the taxpayer himself may determine the time at which a sale of capital assets may be made, and therefore has considerable leeway in determining when he may be taxable on any gains or when he will deduct his losses, such limitations as these are not unreasonable.

"They will further prevent the serious reduction in the revenues from the income tax which accurred prior to 1932 from the deduction of capital losses from ordinary income."

The treasury, Morgenthau said, is in accord with the general plan of subjecting undistributed income of personal holding companies to a higher rate of tax than that of other corporations.

Morgenthau disagreed with the ways and means committee's recommendation for abolition of consolidated income tax return of corporations. He said this would bring in little additional revenue.

"The present law," he said, "permits a return in accord with business practice, and gives the treasury broad powers to make the necessary rules and regulations to prevent escape from the tax."

The treasury also disagreed with new restrictions recommended for partnerships like J. P Morgan & Co.

Partnership Loses

The treatment of partnership income and deductions should be consistent, Morgenthau said. So long as the partner must report all partnership income, he should be permitted to deduct the corresponding partnership losses.

Losses now deductable, Morgenthau said, are not fictitious or imaginary and do not represent either evasion or avoidance of income tax. In the opinion of the department, the proposal would probably operate with extreme injustice upon the many small business partnerships.

"It has long been recognized both in this country and abroad," Mongenthau said, in discussing the income tax burden on small taxpayers, "that earned money should be taxed at a lower rate than income from investments.

"The salaried man, unlike the recipient of income from investment, is under the necessity of providing for the gradual loss of his earning power by building up a fund sufficient to care for his old age, for sickness, and the care of his family during his old age and after his death.

Capacity To Pay

"In consequence, his capacity to pay income taxes is actually less than that of a man with a similar income from capital investments, who is under no such necessity. For these reasons and others, provision was made in the revenue laws of 1924, 1926 and 1928 for a credit against the tax applicable to earned income, but the provision was deleted in the 1932 law on account of the acute need for revenue.

"Since the burden of taxation will necessarily be heavy during the next few years, it is more essential that the burden be distributed as equitably as possible.

"The treasury, therefore, strongly recommends that the principle of a lower tax on earned income should again be recognized at the same time that the basic rate of tax are adjusted. For simplicity in administration, it is recommended that the provision take the form of a deduction of some agreed percentage of the taxpayers' earned income; and that it contain a limitation of the application of the section to incomes of not more than $25,000."

Under questioning by committee members, Dr. Roswell Magill, new treasury tax expert, recommended that surtaxes start at $6500 instead of $4000 as proposed by the sub-committee. Present surtaxes start at $6000. Magill read a large part of Morgenthau's statement to the committee.

Rep. Treadway, Repn., Mass., asked Morgenthau if Magill had authority to speak for the treasury.

"He has authority and my confidence," Morgenthau replied.

"How long have you been in the treasury," Treadway asked Magill.

Magill replied "about three weeks," there was considerable laughter.

BULLETIN

Judge Edward Hendersen, who heard evidence in the case of W. L. Hicks, Santa Ana grocer, charged with statutory offenses against several Santa Ana grade school girls, and who was convicted by a jury on one count, today granted the defendant probation for a period of 10 years, provided he spend one year in the county jail. The probation department's recommendation was that probation be denied.

Decision on the parole application of W. L. Hicks, Santa Ana grocer recently convicted of a statutory offense against a 12-year-old school girl, was continued until this afternoon by Superior Judge Edward Hendersen of Ventura county, who heard testimony in the case. The hearing was held by Judge Hendersen in department three, superior court.

When the hearing started this morning Judge Hendersen declared that a petition signed by many persons had been presented to him apparently for the purpose of influencing the court and not to assist the court. He said that he hoped the proponents of the petition were not so weak as to think that the court would make its decision in the matter on such grounds. It was believed by those in the courtroom that he referred to a petition circulated by the P.-T. A.

Later in the hearing Judge Henderson said that in his mind the district attorney was completely vindicated in his original action of accepting a plea of guilty to one offense, thus making it unnecessary to bring numerous children into court to testify as to acts of the accused grocer. He said that his only criticism of the district attorney was in listening to outside criticism and consenting to file an amended complaint against the man, making it necessary for the children to come into court and testify.

Thomas McFadden, attorney for Hicks, at this point informed the court that the district attorney had decided to follow his original program, but had acted upon the request of McFadden. He explained his request to the district attorney to file an amended complaint alleging five counts to which Hicks pleaded not guilty, because serious charges had been inferred that "a lot of money had been spent to influence prosecution."

When first arrested Hicks was charged with five offenses, and following his preliminary hearing, went into superior court and pleaded guilty to one count and asked for probation. Considerable agitation started, and Hicks withdrew the guilty plea and pleaded not guilty to five counts. He was exonerated on two counts, convicted on one, the jury disagreed on another and the fifth was dismissed.

McFadden this morning declined to present any testimony in connection with Hicks' application and contented himself with a lengthy plea to the court. Just before the noon recess he completed his plea, and Deputy District Attorney James L. Davis called as his first witness resisting probation Deputy Sheriff Nicholson, who testified that in his investigation of the charges against Hicks he had learned of 10 children against whom the grocer was alleged to have committed offenses.

A young dramatic actress and her husband, both of whom are identified with the local Little Theater movement, were sought for questioning on the possibility they could throw some light on these nocturnal wanderings or on other incidents in his life. The couple was not at home when detectives called.

Several members of the upper strata of Pasadena society were questioned without result.

One was Mrs. Frances Coen Cooke, wealthy divorcee, who awaited Siever at her home the hour he met death from two bullet wounds beside his parked automobile. Mrs. Cooke said she did not know the dentist but that an introduction had been arranged by a mutual friend.

Question Aviatrix

Mrs. Peggy LaJotte, titian-haired aviatrix, also was questioned but she said she had not seen him in two months. Mrs. W. Paul Loveland, society leader who termed herself a friend of several years standing, also could name no enemy who might have inspired his death.

"We often discussed his feminine acquaintances but at no time did he reveal anything that would indicate any woman friend was wildly jealous of him," Mrs. Loveland said. "I know he had been quite attentive to several women and there may have been a great love in his life, but I'd rather not say anything on that point."

The dentist was described as "the most secretive man I ever saw" by a colleague, Dr. George Donner.

"He could turn his charm on and off, like a faucet," Dr. Donner said. "He was a man of many and varied moods."

MERLE MILLIGAN RITES

PLACENTIA, Dec. 15.—Merle Milligan, brother of the Rev. Don Milligan, pastor of Calvary church, was buried Thursday in Inglewood cemetery. He died at Santa Barbara last Sunday. The Rev. Mr. Milligan had charge of short services at Santa Barbara before interment was held at Inglewood.

Local Briefs

Deputy Sheriff Arthur Eells of Fullerton has taken out a building permit for alterations on a house at 805 North Van Ness street, to cost $2350. The work will be done by J. A. Thompson and Son, contractors.

INITIATE NEW MEMBERS AT LEGION MEET

Initiation of four new members featured the regular bi-monthly meeting of Santa Ana Post No. 131, American Legion, last night in Getty hall.

Members initiated were A. J. Clubb, H. E. Hughett, Harold Honer and M. E. Straw. Initiation ceremonies were conducted by the initiatory team of the Legion drum and bugle corps.

Entertainment for the session was provided by the American Legion Auxiliary Glee club, directed by Cecil Fross Willitts.

Sunday, December 24, at 1:30 p. m. was the date and hour set for the Christmas party to be staged by the Legion post, in cooperation with Santa Ana Elks club, in Birch park. An entertainment program will be presented in charge of Harold Brown and Santa Claus will make a personal appearance to distribute candy and apples to the hundreds of children expected to attend the event.

Franklin Grouard, chairman of the Legion building committee, reported progress on the reconstruction of the Legion home on Birch between Third and Fourth streets. He said the building probably will be completed by the middle of March.

PORT PROJECT GETS BACKING OF COAST BODY

Unanimous endorsement of the Orange county harbor bonds was given by the members of the Orange County Coast association last night at Seal Beach, where the annual Christmas party of the organization was held at the city hall. The action followed an enthusiastic talk by Lew H. Wallace, Newport Beach banker, who was one of the leaders in the first movement to improve the harbor at Newport bay, 27 years ago.

The annual frolic of the association, held for several years in Seal Beach, was carried out in the joval spirit of the season. A Christmas tree, loaded with presents and decorated according to tradition, stood at one end of the hall, and each person present received a gift. Paper caps, toy balloons and Christmas stockings were handed to each diner.

A typical Christmas dinner was served by women of the Altar society of the Seal Beach Catholic church. The members were welcomed by Mayor Elmer J. Hughes. An entertainment, provided by the Seal Beach members, included the singing of Christmas carols and a number of songs and dances.

Dr. C. G. Huston of Costa Mesa spoke briefly on the Christmas lighting program, informing the meeting that all communities from Seal Beach to San Clemente will co-operate in the Christmas lighting plan. Most of the cities will be strung with colored lights, and each town will have a community Christmas tree visible from the highway.

It was announced that the annual meeting of the association will be held at the Hotel Laguna, Laguna Beach, January 16, at which time reports will be made by the various officers and committees. The president, Mayor Thomas F. Murphine, of San Clemente, appointed a nominating committee, of which J. P. Greeley of Balboa was made chairman. The others are Dan Mulherron, San Clemente; E. M. Scofield, representing the communities in the South Coast Water district, south of Laguna Beach; Mayor Frank B. Champion, Laguna Beach; W. W. Middleton, Costa Mesa; Judge C. P. Patton, Huntington Beach; Jesse A. Armitage, Sunset Beach, and Mayor Elmer J. Hughes, Seal Beach. If precedent is followed, Hallam Cooley of Three Arch Bay, first vice president, is in line to be president of the association next year.

Various officers and prominent members of the association were remembered with special gifts, including Harry Welch of Balboa, secretary since the body was organized, who was voted a substantial gift by the board of directors.

Dr. Thomas Spencer Miller of Laguna Beach invited the members to attend the meeting of the Coast Council on Beautification to be held in the sun room of the Hotel Laguna, Saturday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, following a luncheon to be held by the shade tree committee of the Garden club.

Name Placentia Auxiliary Heads

PLACENTIA, Dec. 15. — Mrs. Gertrude White was elected president of Placentia American Legion auxiliary at a meeting this week, replacing for the balance of the year, Mrs. Helen Reeder, resigned.

Mrs. Reeder has moved with her family to Pomona. Miss Anna Johnson was elected secretary to replace Mrs. White, who had served in that capacity.

If precedent is followed, Hallam Cooley of Three Arch Bay, first vice president, is in line to be president of the association next year.

Various officers and prominent members of the association were remembered with special gifts, including Harry Welch of Balboa, secretary since the body was organized, who was voted a substantial gift by the board of directors.

Dr. Thomas Spencer Miller of Laguna Beach invited the members to attend the meeting of the Coast Council on Beautification to be held in the sun room of the Hotel Laguna, Saturday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, following a luncheon to be held by the shade tree committee of the Garden club.

WOMAN SHOOTS SELF: CORONER INVESTIGATES

In doubt whether Mrs. Mabel McIntyre, 33, 1611 South Van Ness street, committed suicide or was accidently shot while handling a revolver,, Coroner Earl Abbey said today he had not decided whether to hold an inquest concerning the shooting, which occurred last night at 10 o'clock in front of the woman's home.

Mrs. McIntrye died at 5:15 a. m. today at the Santa Ana Valley hospital, seven hours after she walked out of her home during a party and fired a shot into her body from a .44-caliber revolver. Her husband, Alexander McIntyre, and George Hubbard, of Orange, and Miss Maria Danielson, 1706 West First, guests in the home, denied any quarrelling or trouble and said that Mrs. McIntyre walked from the house to talk to her nephew, Ray L. Downs, of Laguna Beach, who was exhibiting a camp car to Mrs. Rena North of Orange, who lives with the mother of Hubbard.

According o Downs, Mrs. McIntyre sat in the front seat and asked him if a gun in a box were loaded. When he replied that it was, she began handling it, and shot herself through the stomach. He turned on the lights and found her slumped in the seat. Hubbard rushed her to the hospital.

The body has been removed to the Harrell and Brown funeral home, when funeral arrangements will be announced later. Mrs. McIntyre is survived by her husband, Alexander McIntyre; one brother, Charles Grover Coyle, 16, Los Angeles; four sisters, Mrs. H. Downs, Pomona; Mrs. Carter Copenhaver, Sierra Madra; Mrs. O. E. Hawk and Mrs. J. L. Somers, Santa Barbara.

MAN KILLED IN TRAFFIC CRASH: ARREST DRIVER

Bringing the total of traffic fatalities in Orange county to 56 for this year, Lorenzo Martinez, 48, Stanton, was killed, four other persons were hurt and one of the drivers is in the county jail for investigation on manslaughter after a wreck at 7 a. m. today at Grand avenue and Orangethorpe road in Buena Park.

Oakley T. Warren, 39, Long Beach oil worker, driver of the car which struck the machine in which Martinez was riding, was knocked unconscious in the accident and was taken to the Buena Park Emergency hospital for treatment. He was removed to the county jail at noon by California Highway Patrolman Ernest Sawyer on a charge of investigation of manslaughter.

Only meager details could be learned of the wreck but heavy fog was blamed for the crash. Billy Alverez, Long Beach, riding with Warren, is confined in the Buena Park hospital and two Mexicans riding with Martinez, whose names could not be learned, were hurt. The body was removed to the McAulay and Suters funeral home after Martinez expired about 9 o'clock. The inquest probably will be held Monday by Coroner Earl Ebbey.

The wreck occurred less than a mile from where Billy Ament, 15-year-old Fullerton high school freshman, was killed last Saturday night by a hit and run driver.

Three other persons were hurt in a wreck at Anaheim at 8 a. m. today. Cars driven by Steve Swanner, 33, 709 East Sixth street and E. J. Adams, 56, 600 block South Philadelphia street, Anaheim, collided when Swanner backed out of an alley on Water street between Philadelphia and Claudina streets. Those hurt were Adams, Bob Adams, 13, and Phoebe Cooper, 17, 603 South Olive street, Anaheim.

FARM BUREAU NAMES BISHOP TEMPORARY SEC'Y; PLEDGES ACTION ON LAND BANK LOANS

Four important matters were acted upon by the board of directors of the Orange County Farm Bureau at the first meeting of the fiscal year yesterday in an all-day session in the new quarters in the medical building.

The directors, by adoption of a statement of policy submitted by the Rural Credits committee, pledged themselves to work for the interests of Orange county farmers in securing fair loans on agricultural property from the Berkeley Federal Land bank.

A budget which estimated the Farm Bureau income to be $7385 for the ensuing fiscal year and the estimated potential expenditure including provision for all possible contingencies, figured at $7409, was adopted as submitted by the ways and means committee.

It was pointed out that last year the Farm Bureau budget was set at $7600 while actual expenditures amounted to but $7000. It is usual to estimate the budget at more than is used during the year, it was stated.

Temporary Secretary

The board appointed Holmes Bishop to act as acting executive-secretary of the Farm Bureau until the directors can act with assurance on applications for the position. Eight applications were considered at the meeting. R. D. Flaherty resigned the position to accept one as secretary of the Orange County Production Credits association.

The statement of policy adopted by the directors is as follows:

"We recognize the importance and necessity of a long time loan program based upon local co-operative farmer-owned associations, federated into great regional and national land banks, supervised and capitalized by the federal government and through the sale of bonds to the investing public. These bonds to be sold upon the security of sound loans on farmer-owner operated farms. This is the set-up of the Federal Land Bank system.

"Any member of the Orange County Farm Bureau, who has any difficulty in securing a loan, will secure prompt, active and vigorous co-operation in protecting his interests as their equity may appear from our investigation.

"We shall continue to work for revisions of rules, regulations, policies and even the law itself, whenever and wherever, in our judgment, the interests of Orange county farmers are not being served.

"We shall not be satisfied with the service of the Berkeley Federal Land bank until they are completing loans in approximately 30 days, and loans are being made for amounts per acre, which recognize a fair valuation on the producing ability and the records of our specialty crops such as valencia oranges, avocados, lima beans and vegetables."

Ratify Committees

Ways and Means: F. B. Browning, Chairman, Tustin; R. J. McFadden, R. 1, Placentia; S. W. Stanley, Tustin; J. W. Crill, R. 4, Anaheim; J. J. Denni, R. 2, Anaheim; A. R. Marshburn, Yorba Linda; Holmes Bishop, R. 1, Orange.

Tax: L. A. Bortz, Chairman, Olive; D. R. Gardner, Box 267, Orange; C. E. Crumrine, San Juan Capistrano; Frank C. Latham, R. 1, Santa Ana; 118 Orange Grove, Placentia; E. J. Menard, 257 E. Center, Anaheim.

Water Conservation: O. E. Steward, chairman; D. D. Waynick, Box J, Anaheim; J. E. Lewis; 118 E. Brookdale, Fullerton; W. C. Mauerhan, R. 4, Anaheim; J. A. Murdy jr., R. 1, Box 459, Huntington Beach; E. E. Campbell, R. 1, Orange; N. M. Launer, La Habra; C. Roy Browning, Tustin; R. J. McFadden, R. 1, Placentia; Walter Humphreys, Fullerton and Henry Burdorf, 247 E. Maple, Fullerton.

Legislative: Holmes Bishop, chairman, R. 1, Orange; J. W. Crill, R. 4, Anaheim; L. A. Bortz, Olive; O. E. Steward, 321 N. Philadelphia, Anaheim; A. J. McFadden, 1108 N. Main St., Santa Ana.

Rural Credits: R. J. McFadden, Chairman, R. 1, Placentia; R. A. Chaffee, Garden Grove; Stanley Chapman, Fullerton; H. L. Wakeham, R. 1, Santa Ana; M. J. Pickering, La Habra; B. L. Chandler, R. 3, Anaheim.

Auditing: S. W. Stanley, chairman, Tustin; F. B. Browning, Tustin; J. W. Crill, R. 4, Anaheim.

Farm Bureau News: Bert Shaw, chairman, Yorba Linda; Alfred Bonney, R. 4, Anaheim; Joe Witt, R. 2, Orange.

C. A. Palmer resigned as a director at large from the Farm Bureau directorate at the session. He gave the reason for his resignation as being that he did not have sufficient time to take care of his activities in connection with the Federal Land bank and to serve on the board as well. He had been a director for the past year.

CLOTHING GAS SOAKED: LIGHTS PIPE: MAY DIE

Victim of an unusual accident and fire, C. W. Gates, 65, 279 Redondo avenue, Long Beach, is lying near death in the Orange county hospital with second and third degree burns over his entire body as the result of starting to light his pipe when his clothes were soaked with gasoline.

Gates, who was hunting near his cabin in White Horse canyon yesterday afternoon, drove his automobile over a severe bump in the road and broke the connection of the gasoline tank. In trying to stop the leak, he saturated his clothes with gasoline and was unable to repair the car. After walking a few feet from the car on his way to his cabin, he lit his pipe and the exploding gasoline fumes set fire to his clothes.

He staggered about 100 feet and was unable to extinguish the flames before his clothing was completely burned. After a considerable length of time, J. T. Workban, CWA foreman and C. P. Elliott, of Orange, found him in the road at 3:45 p. m. and rushed him to the CCC camp at Modjeska's home. An ambulance was called and he was taken to the hospital in a semi-conscious condition. He received the severest burns about the head, right shoulder, back and legs.

Deputy Sheriffs L. H. Nicholson and E. E. Perry found the car in Ladd canyon with the gas line broken, as related by Gates. A burned hat was found 50 feet from the car and the pipe about 10 feet away.

LEGISLATORS OPPOSED TO WATER PROJECT

Answering persistently circulated reports by proponents of the $170,000,000 state-wide water bond proposal that they were "for" the bonds, Orange county representatives in the state legislature today definitely stated that they are opposed to the bond proposal.

The statement was jointly prepared today by Senator N. T. Edwards and Assemblymen Ted Craig and James B. Utt. It follows:

"The Central Valley Water Project came before the special session of the legislature in July as Assembly Bill 259, in amended form, and the legislators were polled as to their attitude toward attachment of an urgency clause to the measure, which would have precluded a referendum vote upon it, in the event it was passed.

"The urgency clause was turned down, Orange county legislators being among those who opposed it. The bill then came before us without such clause, and we were willing to vote it out of the legislature and before the people, knowing that it would come before them on referendum, and feeling that the people of Southern California would not support the measure on the ballot, because of the apparent state-wide obligation attached to the bonds. As a matter of fact, state officials would be made officers of the proposed water district. For instance, the state treasurer and the state engineer would occupy similar offices in the water district.

"The prospect of having state credit behind the district is hardly attractive, inasmuch as many irrigation and other districts through the central valley have been in extreme financial difficulties and in default of bonds.

"We are in full sympathy with the problems of the area affected but, since it is possible that the state could be tied to the project, we believe that our own county can consistently oppose the proposal."

Betty Koster Will Dance at Benefit

Betty Jean Koster, talented juvenile dancer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Koster, 1121 South Birch street, will be featured in the big benefit performance to be staged in Los Angeles tonight, it was learned today. Moving picture actors and actresses and other celebrities will participate in the show, which is being staged at the Shrine auditorium, Los Angeles.

The local dancer will appear in in the Harmony Trio and in dance numbers with the Meglin Kiddies. She will start a week's performance at Pantages,' Hollywood, on December 22. She recently appeared in a moving picture, "Gold Diggers of 1933."

WORLD AFFAIRS GROUP HEARS HITLER PLANS

Treating the principal phases of the Hitler regime in Germany and severely censuring the German dictator for his "inhuman treatment of the Jews," S. M. Davis, Sam Hurwitz and Thomas H. Glenn lead the discussion at the meeting last night in the Y. W. C. A. of the Santa Ana Council of International Relations.

Wilfred Taylor, president of the group, was in charge of the gathering and conducted the forum after the three talks. Davis, the first speaker, used a late book written by Hitler to outline the principal events of his life. He pointed out that Hitler was born in Austria and lived there as a youth until enlisting in the German army in 1914, at the age of 25.

After joining the German Workers Party, he advocated the theory that "the best defensive is an offensive" and always carried out this idea, the speaker said. He also gave high points of his meteoric rise to control in Germany.

Davis pointed out that Hitler's platform had four principal parts, that no social sacrifice is too great in order to promote the national movement and recover the German worker, that nationalizing the masses can never be effected by half measures, that the only way to success in winning souls of people is to destroy those opposed, and that the high classes should not be debased but the lower classes raised up.

Hurwitz presented a graphic portrayal of present-day conditions in Germany and emphasized that the cruel treatment of the Jews is more than a German question affecting the entire world. He pointed out that no country should take such drastic measures as to force thousands of refugees upon neighboring countries and such religious and racial intolerance could not be overlooked.

"Hitler needed the Jews to blame for internal troubles and used them to keep militarism and nationalism aflame," he said. The Semitic race offered an imaginary foe to conceal the real issues."

Glenn, head of the high school and junior college English department, used experiences from his stay in France last year and quotations from leading magazines and European newspapers to show what Europe is thinking about Germany. He said that statesmen of Europe are afraid of war and that the extremeties of the Nazis in their internal affairs would probably alienate any help from other countries in case of conflict.

Youth Corrects Police Report

Stating that he had been at home all the time, Gordon Ewing of Huntington Beach reported today that he was not missing and that reports filed in the sheriff's office were in error.

On Monday, three Huntington Beach boys were reported missing and a statewide search instituted. The other youths were Melvin Hanson, 15, and Lloyd Cook, 16, both of Huntington Beach. Ewing declared that he had not left the city or been away at any time and wished to correct the impression given by a story in The Register on Tuesday, which was written from records on file in the sheriff's office.

GRADING ON GRAPEVINE

Grading and paving operations are in progress on the Grapevine Route, south of Bakersfield, reports the Bakersfield office of the National Automobile club. Detours have been provided through the construction. Paving will probably not start until the spring.

The statement of policy adopted by the directors is as follows:

"We recognize the importance and necessity of a long time loan program based upon local co-operative farmer-owned associations, federated into great regional and national land banks, supervised and capitalized by the federal government and through the sale of bonds to the investing public. These bonds to be sold upon the security of sound loans on farmer-owner operated farms. This is the set-up of the Federal Land Bank system.

"Any member of the Orange County Farm Bureau, who has any difficulty in securing a loan, will secure prompt, active and vigorous co-operation in protecting his interests as their equity may appear from our investigation.

"We shall continue to work for revisions of rules, regulations, policies and even the law itself, whenever and wherever, in our judgment, the interests of Orange county farmers are not being served.

"We shall not be satisfied with the service of the Berkeley Federal Land bank until they are completing loans in approximately 30 days, and loans are being made for amounts per acre, which recognize a fair valuation on the producing ability and the records of our specialty crops such as valencia oranges, avocados, lima beans and vegetables."

Ratify Committees

Tax: L. A. Bortz, Chairman, Olive; D. R. Gardner, Box 267, Orange; C. E. Crumrine, San Juan Capistrano; Frank C. Latham, R. 1, Santa Ana; 118 Orange Grove, Placentia; E. J. Menard, 257 E. Center, Anaheim.

C. A. Palmer resigned as a director at large from the Farm Bureau directorate at the session. He gave the reason for his resignation as being that he did not have sufficient time to take care of his activities in connection with the Federal Land bank and to serve on the board as well. He had been a director for the past year.

CLOTHING GAS SOAKED: LIGHTS PIPE: MAY DIE

Victim of an unusual accident and fire, C. W. Gates, 65, 279 Redondo avenue, Long Beach, is lying near death in the Orange county hospital with second and third degree burns over his entire body as the result of starting to light his pipe when his clothes were soaked with gasoline.

Gates, who was hunting near his cabin in White Horse canyon yesterday afternoon, drove his automobile over a severe bump in the road and broke the connection of the gasoline tank. In trying to stop the leak, he saturated his clothes with gasoline and was unable to repair the car. After walking a few feet from the car on his way to his cabin, he lit his pipe and the exploding gasoline fumes set fire to his clothes.

He staggered about 100 feet and was unable to extinguish the flames before his clothing was completely burned. After a considerable length of time, J. T. Workban, CWA foreman and C. P. Elliott, of Orange, found him in the road at 3:45 p. m. and rushed him to the CCC camp at Modjeska's home. An ambulance was called and he was taken to the hospital in a semi-conscious condition. He received the severest burns about the head, right shoulder, back and legs.

Deputy Sheriffs L. H. Nicholson and E. E. Perry found the car in Ladd canyon with the gas line broken, as related by Gates. A burned hat was found 50 feet from the car and the pipe about 10 feet away.

LEGISLATORS OPPOSED TO WATER PROJECT

Answering persistently circulated reports by proponents of the $170,000,000 state-wide water bond proposal that they were "for" the bonds, Orange county representatives in the state legislature today definitely stated that they are opposed to the bond proposal.

The statement was jointly prepared today by Senator N. T. Edwards and Assemblymen Ted Craig and James B. Utt. It follows:

"The Central Valley Water Project came before the special session of the legislature in July as Assembly Bill 259, in amended form, and the legislators were polled as to their attitude toward attachment of an urgency clause to the measure, which would have precluded a referendum vote upon it, in the event it was passed.

"The urgency clause was turned down, Orange county legislators being among those who opposed it. The bill then came before us without such clause, and we were willing to vote it out of the legislature and before the people, knowing that it would come before them on referendum, and feeling that the people of Southern California would not support the measure on the ballot, because of the apparent state-wide obligation attached to the bonds. As a matter of fact, state officials would be made officers of the proposed water district. For instance, the state treasurer and the state engineer would occupy similar offices in the water district.

"The prospect of having state credit behind the district is hardly attractive, inasmuch as many irrigation and other districts through the central valley have been in extreme financial difficulties and in default of bonds.

"We are in full sympathy with the problems of the area affected but, since it is possible that the state could be tied to the project, we believe that our own county can consistently oppose the proposal."

Betty Koster Will Dance at Benefit

Betty Jean Koster, talented juvenile dancer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Koster, 1121 South Birch street, will be featured in the big benefit performance to be staged in Los Angeles tonight, it was learned today. Moving picture actors and actresses and other celebrities will participate in the show, which is being staged at the Shrine auditorium, Los Angeles.

The local dancer will appear in in the Harmony Trio and in dance numbers with the Meglin Kiddies. She will start a week's performance at Pantages,' Hollywood, on December 22. She recently appeared in a moving picture, "Gold Diggers of 1933."

WORLD AFFAIRS GROUP HEARS HITLER PLANS

Treating the principal phases of the Hitler regime in Germany and severely censuring the German dictator for his "inhuman treatment of the Jews," S. M. Davis, Sam Hurwitz and Thomas H. Glenn lead the discussion at the meeting last night in the Y. W. C. A. of the Santa Ana Council of International Relations.

Wilfred Taylor, president of the group, was in charge of the gathering and conducted the forum after the three talks. Davis, the first speaker, used a late book written by Hitler to outline the principal events of his life. He pointed out that Hitler was born in Austria and lived there as a youth until enlisting in the German army in 1914, at the age of 25.

After joining the German Workers Party, he advocated the theory that "the best defensive is an offensive" and always carried out this idea, the speaker said. He also gave high points of his meteoric rise to control in Germany.

Davis pointed out that Hitler's platform had four principal parts, that no social sacrifice is too great in order to promote the national movement and recover the German worker, that nationalizing the masses can never be effected by half measures, that the only way to success in winning souls of people is to destroy those opposed, and that the high classes should not be debased but the lower classes raised up.

Hurwitz presented a graphic portrayal of present-day conditions in Germany and emphasized that the cruel treatment of the Jews is more than a German question affecting the entire world. He pointed out that no country should take such drastic measures as to force thousands of refugees upon neighboring countries and such religious and racial intolerance could not be overlooked.

"Hitler needed the Jews to blame for internal troubles and used them to keep militarism and nationalism aflame," he said. The Semitic race offered an imaginary foe to conceal the real issues."

Glenn, head of the high school and junior college English department, used experiences from his stay in France last year and quotations from leading magazines and European newspapers to show what Europe is thinking about Germany. He said that statesmen of Europe are afraid of war and that the extremeties of the Nazis in their internal affairs would probably alienate any help from other countries in case of conflict.

Youth Corrects Police Report

Stating that he had been at home all the time, Gordon Ewing of Huntington Beach reported today that he was not missing and that reports filed in the sheriff's office were in error.

On Monday, three Huntington Beach boys were reported missing and a statewide search instituted. The other youths were Melvin Hanson, 15, and Lloyd Cook, 16, both of Huntington Beach. Ewing declared that he had not left the city or been away at any time and wished to correct the impression given by a story in The Register on Tuesday, which was written from records on file in the sheriff's office.

GRADING ON GRAPEVINE

Grading and paving operations are in progress on the Grapevine Route, south of Bakersfield, reports the Bakersfield office of the National Automobile club. Detours have been provided through the construction. Paving will probably not start until the spring.

WANTS TO TELL THE STORY ABOUT OUR

ORANGE COUNTY HARBOR

THE FOLLOWING FACTS AND FIGURES ARE GIVEN SO THAT THE VOTER ON DECEMBER 19TH MAY KNOW ALL DETAILS REGARDING THE PROPOSED ORANGE COUNTY HARBOR IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM, ITS FINANCING AND ITS DEVELOPMENT UNDER FEDERAL COOPERATION AND SUPERVISION.

The Orange County Harbor project is a sound business proposition. We invite, and urge you, to make the most complete investigation, so that you will have no doubts that voting for the Harbor District December 19, is the economic, patriotic, wise, and profitable thing to do.

The entire lower bay will be dredged to a 10-foot depth at low tide, 35 acres of yacht anchorage basin to 15-foot depth, and the entrance or main channel, and turning basin to a 20-foot depth at low tide, with jetty extensions making the entrance safe at all times.

The United States Government will pay	$1,195,441
Orange County will pay one-third	640,000
Total improvement received by Orange County	$1,835,441

Seventy-six percent of the total cost will go for labor, direct and indirect, while the project itself will create hundreds of additional jobs in construction, industrial and boat maintenance work, which will be permanent.

The President has urged a vast re-employment program through public works, with the government paying a large share of the cost. This Harbor project offers Orange County its one big opportunity to support the recovery program, and reap a $3.00 value for every $1.00 we put into the development ourselves.

Orange County taxpayers, wherever located, will profit directly by creating new taxable wealth on the coast to help pay the tax burden. By furnishing steady employment the project will relieve the very heavy welfare work burden now borne by taxpayers; and the circulation of $1,835,441 of new money in the county will stimulate all business activity and re-establish property values over a wide radius. In addition this improvement attracts a new influx of outside capital, which always seeks investment in a progressive community.

Orange County Harbor, by this step, becomes a Federal project for the first time, with United States Army Engineers in charge of all development work and expenditure of all money. Naturally the government will, in the future, protect its investment in Orange County, just as it has done at Los Angeles, San Diego, and all other government harbors.

Army and Navy expenditures have made San Diego. The Navy Department puts two million dollars into circulation in the Long Beach-San Pedro district EVERY MONTH. Think what it will mean to Your property, to Your business, to Your job, for the Navy to begin buying provisions and other supplies in Orange County, which it will surely do as soon as its smaller vessels, such as submarines, destroyers and sub-chasers, can use our harbor in safety.

Harbors grow, with government aid, as demand for harbor facilities increase. The course of empire moves westward to the Pacific coast. The Pacific era has dawned. The Pacific coast has few natural harbors. One of them is situated in Orange County.

The cost is negligible. The increased tax rate to pay principal and interest will average 2.6 cents per $100.00 assessed valuation over the life of the bonds, or 26 cents per year for a home worth $3000.00 and assessed at $1,000.00. As a matter of fact, new and increased valuation will pay enough additional taxes to retire the bonds, and leave a profit in the county treasury for the benefit of all county taxpayers.

Oil taxes have probably reached their peak and will be reduced in the coming years. Citrus and orchard acreage today cannot be materially increased in Orange County. Ranchers and home owners in Orange County can best prevent tax increases in the future by helping to develop the coast areas, and build up their values, so they will bear the increased tax costs of the future. As a matter of fact relief for the taxpayers in Orange County MUST come and can ONLY come from the bringing in of new wealth and the creating of New values in Orange County.

Why do We Call it a $2 for $1 Proposition?

Because under the plan as approved, if Orange County will provide $1.00 the Government will spend $2.00 additional, the County's share being $640,000 and the Government's share $1,195,441.

The total amount to be expended will be $1,835,441.

What Harbor Work Will Be Done for This $1,835,441?

(a) The two jetties at the harbor entrance will be extended to make the entrance safe and keep it clear of sand.

(b) The entrance will be dredged 500 feet wide, and 20 feet deep at low tide, and this depth will be carried to the county-owned frontage and dock near The Arches in a channel 200 to 300 feet wide 3½ miles long.

(c) Thirty-five acres, adjoining the yacht club, will be dredged to a depth of 15 feet at low tide, to provide anchorage for many large yachts and other craft anxious to move here.

(d) All other harbor area in the lower bay, below the state highway bridge, and from Newport to Corona del Mar, will be dredged to a depth of 10 feet, eliminating all dangerous shoals and mud banks.

(e) This plan will put Ten feet or more of water at low tide over the entire lower bay area comprising 700 acres. The improvements herein proposed will provide a harbor for all kinds of yachts, vessels of the coastwise trade, fishing craft, destroyers, sub-chasers, and lighter craft of the Navy.

HOW MUCH WILL IT COST ME?

Your House or Ranch worth $3000 is assessed at about $1000 and it will cost 26 cents a year.

Your House or Ranch worth $6000 is assessed at about $2000 and it will cost you for Harbor Bonds JUST ONE CENT A WEEK.

VOTE ORANGE COUNTY HARBOR DISTRICT

Accept Uncle Sam's cooperation in the sum of $1,195,441.00—Uncle Sam will also loan the $640,000.00 for your Bonds in order to start work right away. Create more jobs and help relieve unemployment.

What is the Orange County Harbor Proposition?

The proposal, as it will appear on the ballot on December 19, calls for the formation of a harbor district and the issuance of $640,000 in bonds, repayable over a period of 30 years, AND BEARING INTEREST AT ONLY FOUR PER CENT.

How Will the Harbor Development Program Be Handled?

The entire job will be in direct and complete charge of United States Army Engineers, who will award all contracts, and supervise all work.

Can the Bonds Be Sold, and if so, Who Will Take Them?

The United States government will take the bonds at par, and advance the money, immediately, so there will be no delay in starting the work. Bonds will bear interest at only 4 per cent per annum.

How Will It Relieve Unemployment?

Major General Brown, Chief of Engineers has stated that 76 per cent of the cost of dredging projects are used for labor, direct and indirect. Other construction resulting from this harbor activity will add greatly to the number of jobs which will be created.

All of the money expended will be retained in Southern California as all material required can be secured here and the bulk of the money is actually spent in wages, unlike so many projects which call for the spending of the largest share of the funds in steel and other materials which come from the East.

The government has set aside Three Billion Three Hundred Million Dollars to relieve unemployment through public works which we must help to pay. Why not get our share of it?

The harbor project offers us our big opportunity to cooperate with the Administration in this Recovery objective, and at the same time build for ourselves an important harbor of permanent value to a wide contiguous territory.

In addition this Harbor Project is the only opportunity Orange County has to secure any important amount from the Three Billion Three Hundred Million Dollar Public Works Fund.

If we do not secure our share of this money for our harbor it will be spent by the Public Works Board on some other harbor and we will have to contribute our part along with everybody else in Federal Taxes.

What Will It Mean to Have a Federal Harbor in Orange County?

It probably will mean everything in the future, for this is the first official recognition of the harbor by the Federal Government.

The history of all other harbors proves that once the government is interested, its interest continues and further appropriations are made as needed to expand harbor facilities and do additional dredging so that still larger boats may use the harbor.

COUNTY AMONG 1ST 50 IN U. S. APRICOT CROP

Orange county was thirty-eighth in a list of 50 leading counties in the United States, based on the number of trees bearing age, and reached thirty-fifth in the value of the crop produced, according to word received today from the department of commerce, Bureau of the Census, at Washington, D. C., based on figures of the 1930 census.

This county has 9552 trees of bearing age and produced 10,781 bushels of fruit, which returned $17,516 in the year 1930, when the census was taken. Santa Clara county, California, was the leading county in the United States, with 22.6 per cent of the trees of bearing age. In 1930 growers were returned $3,319,800 from the crop.

Forty-two of the 50 leading countiesc were in California. The remainder of the counties, with the exception of Marion, Kansas, which is fiftieth on the list, are located in Washington, Oregon and the mountain states.

The value of apricots represente d1.9 per cent of the value of all fruits and nuts harvested in the nation.

Contrary to common belief, the sun is farther from the earth in summer than in winter.

S. A. PHARMACISTS NAMED ON GROUP

Five Santa Ana registered pharmacists have been selected for membership in the A. D. S. Fellowship, acording to word received here today from Fellowship headquarters, New York City.

They are Charles A. Pedroja, 802 East Fourth; K. C. Hillestad, 122 North Sycamore; W. H. Davis, 1250 South Main; Frank Koss, Sixth and Main, and C. E. Guard, 633 South Main and 1301 North Main.

The A. D. S. Fellowship is an informal organization of registered pharmacists all over the country who take pride in their profession and who render their services in the field of public health in rigid adherence to the highest standards and principles of pharmacy, according to the announcement.

CAMPAIGN FOR SCOUT FUNDS RAISES $4370

With more than 200 men in the field, the "Crusade of Understanding" and campaign for financial support being carried on throughout Orange county during this week by the Orange County Council, Boy Scouts of America gained considerable ground, according to reports made today.

As the first reports came in it was revealed that of the $12,000 needed to provide for the program of activities contemplated for this year, $4370, or 36.4 per cent, already has been made available.

"The campaign being carried on in Santa Ana," C. L. Pritchard, in charge of this district, said, "is in accordance with permission granted by the Community Chest and the more than 40 men working in the downtown business section are calling upon those who, for one reason or another, did not subscribe to the Chest.

Team organization work in downtown Santa Ana is headed by Majors Homer C. Chaney, aided by Billie Wells, Harry Hanson, John Henderson, C. E. Stewart, Kenneth E. Morrison, Glenn Tidball, Ralph Raitt, Major Fred Rowland, Major Alvin F. Nowotny, Major Harold Brown and his workers, C. G. Dowds, Joe F. Hershiser, Roy Burns, W. F. Croddy, Harry Berry, Halstead McCormac, Lyle Kelly, Paul Dale and W. H. Winchester.

Aid Society In Christmas Affair

FULLERTON, Dec. 15.—Members of the Presbyterian Aid society enjoyed a Christmas party yesterday afternoon at the church, after a morning of sewing and a luncheon at the church.

A feature of the program was the singing of a Christmas song by Mrs. Charlotte Snyder, the song being one composed by Mrs. Beth Porter, who played the accompaniment. Mrs. McCart presented a reading, as did Lois Hollingsworth.

Before the special numbers, Mrs. F. E. Moll played the accompaniment for Christmas carols.

Jupiter Pluvius apparently used a bucket to drench the vicinity of Olive in the rainfall during the past 24 hours, but employed a sprinkler to distribute a generous shower over most of the balance of the county.

In two freak downpours which visited Olive, a total of 1.10 inches of rain fell during the past 24 hours, making the total for the storm 3.15 inches, second on the list in the county for the storm, and 4.62 inches for the season, first in the entire county, as compared with 2.38 inches at the same time last year.

The precipitation throughout the county was spotted. In Santa Ana, .36 inches fell during the period, making the storm total 1.94 and the season total 2.54 as compared with 2.81 at this time last year.

Eleven communities in the county today had passed the total for last year at this time. The precipitation ranged from the high figure of 1.10 inches for Olive down to .05 inches for Irvine.

The rainfall during the 24-hour period boosted county totals enough to be of immeasurablevalue to agriculturalists in the county, according to Farm Advisor Harold E. Wahlberg. Cover crops especially were benefitted, he said.

EDISON OFFICES AT ORANGE TO MOVE

Plans were completed this morning for moving the Southern California Edison offices in Orange from its present location at 108 West Chapman avenue to the corner of Chapman avenue and Olive street in the building owned by the Orange Development company and formerly occupied by the Saddle Rock cafe. The lease for the building is expected to be signed the first of the week.

According to Rodney E. Bacon, division manager of the Southern California Edison company, the building will be remodeled to meet the needs of the company and additional window display space will be provided for displaying electrical appliances. New equipment will be installed and the company will spend about $1000 for this item and new wiring and an electric sign. The remodeling cost is not included in this estimate.

Air Classes See Army Corps Film

Requirements for entrance to the Air corps at Randolph field were explained by Frank F. Petersen, instructor. The meeting was arranged by Ralph Greer, aeronautics class president, and was particularly timely, as many of the students are preparing for work at Randolph field.

ge behind the experts who had reduced the apportionment and for the additional reason that she always felt the original request for elementary school rehabilitation was too high.

Fight Precipitated

Considerable fight on the proposal to accept the $700,000 set aside for high school work and return the unused portion was based upon a report turned in by a committee of contractors, J. S. Fluor, Jules Markel and R. C. McMillen, declaring that the estimates by Allison and Allison were too high. This committee submitted two proposed programs, one of which would cost, according to their estimates $200,188 and the second involving expenditure of approximately $238,574.

This morning Dr. Baker suggested that the same committee of contractors be asked to make a similar survey of elementary buildings to determine what work on those structures should cost. She offered to place this suggestion in the form of a motion but no action was taken.

The board also instructed Business Manager George Newcom to file with the Civil Works Administration local committee an application for labor to demolish the high school auditorium which already has been condemned. It will be requested that if the project is approved that work be not started until after the plebiscite on the rehabilitation of Santa Ana schools is held which probably will be in January.

Omit "Frills"

During the discussion Burke declared that if the architects know that there is only $500,000 to be expended they will be able to prepare plans for that amount. He said that in his opinion a plant could be constructed for $500,000 that would house the students and it is not necessary to have any of the "frills."

Hays declared that the board has no idea at this time what it will cost to repair the buildings or to do what is necessary to them. In view of this, he said, the board should be prepared with sufficient money. The board will know the exact cost as soon as bids are received and can return the unused portion. He said, "If the old buildings can be remodeled at a saving I am for it, but if such remodeling should cost 50 per cent of new construction it might be good business to erect new buildings." He also said that he believed the public had sufficient confidence in the school board to support them in the building plan and that the board should not be afraid to do the right thing. He also pointed out that when the original announcement of the amounts to be asked was made there was no criticism.

It was also declared that in a conference held yesterday with members of the Compton board that group declared its intention of accepting the entire amount allocated the community for rehabilitation. The additional information was received during the Compton conference that the contract sent as a preliminary move to securing the money was merely signatory of intention and would be followed by a contract embodying suggestions of the board borrowing the money.

FOUR ARRESTED ON DRUNK CHARGES

Four men were booked for drunkenness at the county jail yesterday, including two from Santa Ana, one from Orange and one from Stanton.

Arrested after his car ran over the curb, struck an electric light post and turned over in the 2600 block on North Main street, Charles Prather, 19, Tustin, was booked at the jail at 10:30 p. m. by Officers A. T. Holmes, J. F. McWilliams and C. E. Neer. No one saw the accident so he was booked for drunkenness and was released several hours later on a $50 bail bond. He was pronounced moderately intoxicated and admitted drinking beer. Holmes, being near the scene of the wreck, held Prather until other officers arrived.

Christ Sterling, 50, 633 West Maple street, Orange, was booked at the jail yesterday afternoon on an intoxication charge by Officer John Eltiste of Orange.

Francisco Trujillo, 48, Stanton, was arrested yesterday afternoon and booked by Deputy Sheriff Earl Nickles.

Ernest Bickford, Santa Ana, was arrested last evening by Officer C. V. Adams after residents near Chestnut and Birch streets reported that a man was lying in the gutter.

ENGRAVER GETS JUDGMENT IN FIESTA SUIT

After taking the case under advisement until this noon, Judge Kenneth Morrison ruled today that M. E. Johnson, Santa Ana engraver, representing himself and five other merchants, should recover for $659.53 from the Santa Ana Merchants association and the Fiesta Del Oro association on bills contracted during the Fiesta del Oro in July.

The trial was held yesterday in the justice court, with the merchants association and its directors, and John Wilcox and Ralph McCutcheon, as defendants. The plaintiffs were Johnson, Orange County Printing and Publishing company, Carlyle Dennis, A. G. Flagg, D. H. McDonald and C. W. Rowland. The original complaint asked for $677.08 but on the motion of McKinney yesterday, the claim of $17.55 from the Orange County Printing and Publishing company was withdrawn.

Judge Morrison ruled on the basis that a contract between the two associations implied joint liability. Wilcox and McCutcheon were the promoters and the merchants were given control of funds through Ivie Stein, appointed to handle the financial matters. Any profits were to have been divided between the two groups, according to the contract.

Defense Attorney Charles Swanner argued that the Merchants Association was not liable and that the entire liability was with Wilcox and McCutcheon. Attorney B. Z. McKinney, representing Johnson, claimed that both associations were liable while Otto Jacobs, representing Wilcox and McCutcheon, took little part in the case except to assist McKinney in implicating the Merchants association.

Witnesses called were Walter Swanberger, president of the merchants association, A. Cavalli, secretary-manager, R. A. Emerson, A. G. Flagg, Joe Peterson, M. E. Johnson, C. W. Rowland, D. H. McDonald, John Wilcox and Ivie Stein. Johnson charged that he performed work after Cavalli and Ivie Stein guaranteed payment of the bills and said that the merchants association was backing the venture.

BURGLAR RANSACKS HOME OF PRIEST

Nothing has been reported missing from the home of Father Felix Moreno, priest of the Church of Our Lady of Guadelupe, 314 East Third street, although the house was ransacked yesterday, between 10 a. m. and 10 p. m., in another of Orange county's "cut screen burglaries."

The screen on the back porch door was cut so that the hook could be unlatched, and then the inside door to the house was forced. A second door into the dining room was also forced after the key was stuck in the lock. A writing desk, drawers and bedroom were searched thoroughly, but nothing taken.

Police believe the same person attempted the burglary that has been operating in various cities during the past week. Nine homes were entered in Orange last weekend, and several in Fullerton and Santa Ana.

Past Presidents Of Calumpit Camp Select Officers

Calumpit Past Presidents' club members and their wives were entertained last night in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Winter, 1724 Valencia street, in celebration of the birthday anniversary of the host and the completion of the club's first year of existence.

During a business interval Frank P. Rowe was elected president and Charles E. Waffle, secretary. At the January meeting the club will receive into full membership, Sherman Glaze, retiring commander of Calumpit Camp, U. S. W. V., Major A. F. Moulton, recently elected as commander, will become an honorary member of the club, since the custom is to receive the camp commander, his wife, and the wives of past commanders as honorary members.

The club presented a handsome smoking jacket to the host in accordance with a plan to give such a jacket to each past commander on his birthday anniversary. Mrs. Charles Waffle selected this year's gifts. Next year W. R. DuBois will selected special gifts from the camp to each past commander's wife on her anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. W. R. DuBois presented a gift to each past commander's wife and Mrs. Witmer had planned a grabbag of presents which were drawn out and distributed by Master Bobby Glaze.

J. C. PRESS ISSUES VOLUME ON WEAVING

The newest production of the Santa Ana Fine Arts Press, a book on "Navajo Indian Weaving," Charles A. Amsden, was being displayed today by T. E. Williams, director of printing at the Santa Ana high school and junior college.

The book is printed in Granjon and Newland types and bound imitating a Navajo blanket. It is profusely illustrated with colored reproductions of blankets and black and white drawings.

Williams said that advance orders were exceptionally good, some having been received from all parts of the county and a few even from European collectors and museums.

JUDGE MORRISON IS J. C. CLUB SPEAKER

Interesting cases that had come under his observation were related last night by Judge Kenneth Morrison before members of the Junior college social science fraternity, Phi Sigma Alpha, at their meeting in the home of L. L. Beeman, 910 French street.

Judge Morrison went on to discuss court procedure, explaining the steps taken in criminal cases, the selection of the jury, various peculiarities of jurors and concluded with some of his observations of domestic relations.

Hollywood H. S. Debate Team Wins

Hollywood high school debate team successfully upheld the American system of radio broadcasting as opposed to the British system in a debate with the Santa Ana high school team last night.

The debate, the first league affair for the Santa Ana team, was on the question: "Resolved: that the Federal Government should enact legislation for the regulation and control of radio similar to the British system."

The decision was awarded the visitors by Judge Martel Thompson of Orange.

JURY CONVICTS J. SANCHEZ OF MURDER CHARGE

Jose Sanchez, accused by the district attorney of shooting Loren Eckles to death 16 years ago, was found guilty of first degree murdar yesterday afternoon by a jury that recommended life imprisonment.

The case went to the jury at 2:15 p. m. yesterday and a verdict was returned at 3:40 p. m. Defense Attorney W. M. Spicer filed notice of a motion for a new trial which will be argued before Superior Judge James L. Allen Monday, the time set for pronouncement of judgment.

Sanchez was convicted of shooting Eckles to death during a general fight at a Mexican dance in El Toro 16 years ago. Immediately after the shooting Sanchez fled the country and was not arrested until a few weeks ago when deputy sheriffs located him in a sanitarium in the San Fernando valley.

Testifying on his own behalf Sanchez admitted having fired several shots in the air during the free-for-all fight between Mexican and American youths. He said that he fled the country for fear of punishment from his mother when she learned that he had a pistol and had fired it at the dance. He declared that he did not know he had killed a man until approximately six years later.

RECONSTRUCTION LOAN INTEREST RATES REDUCED

Reduction of interest rates from 5 per cent to 4½ per cent was announced today by Mayor Paul Witmer on all private loans secured in Southern California from the Unified Rehabilitation Corporation for buildings damaged in the March earthquake

Witmer, with W. D. Ranney, attending a weekly meeting of the directors of the URC in Long Beach this morning, returned this afternoon with the information, which was sent to Washington, D. C., today. About 75 Santa Ana persons secured loans with a total value of more than $150,000, including $15,000 for the remodeling of the American Legion armory.

Witmer said that loans made for reconstructing schools would also benefit from the interest reduction.

Stitt Wilson To Talk On Central Valley Project

J. Stitt Wilson is speaking tonight at 7:30 at the People's Forum, Third and Bush streets, on the subject of the "Central Valley Water Project and its Value to the People of California." Wilson is former mayor of Berkeley and is well known in Southern California.

It is the hope of the People's Forum, according to Harry S. Gerhart, forum manager, that both sides of the question will be thoroughly discussed at the meeting which is open to the public.

RECOVER PART OF KELLEY THEFT LOOT

Following unsuccessful attempts to identify suspects in Santa Ana, police announced today that jewelry valued at $375 and stolen from the home of Charles S. Kelley, Santa Ana druggist, 1211 North Broadway, had been recovered early this week in Phoenix, Arizona.

Jewelry valued at $862.34 was stolen from the Kelley home in October and no trace was discovered until Phoenix police, using descriptions in a bulletin from the local department, found some of the missing items in a pawnshop. Descriptions of the man and woman who pawned the jewelry were obtained, it was learned.

Only three pieces were returned, including a gold dragon head necklace, diamond bar pin and Shrine emblem.

go behind the experts who had reduced the apportionment and for the additional reason that she always felt the original request for elementary school rehabilitation was too high.

Fight Precipitated

Considerable fight on the proposal to accept the $700,000 set aside for high school work and return the unused portion was based upon a report turned in by a committee of contractors, J. S. Fluor, Jules Markel and R. C. McMillen, declaring that the estimates by Allison and Allison were too high. This committee submitted two proposed programs, one of which would cost, according to their estimates $200,188 and the second involving expenditure of approximately $538,574.

This morning Dr. Baker suggested that the same committee of contractors be asked to make a similar survey of elementary buildings to determine what work on those structures should cost. She offered to place this suggestion in the form of a motion but no action was taken.

The board also instructed Business Manager George Newcom to file with the Civil Works Administration local committee an application for labor to demolish the high school auditorium which already has been condemned. It will be requested that if the project is approved that work be not started until after the plebiscite on the rehabilitation of Santa Ana schools is held which probably will be in January.

He also pointed out that when the original announcement of the amounts to be asked was made there was no criticism.

It was also declared that in a conference held yesterday with members of the Compton board that group declared its intention of accepting the entire amount allocated the community for rehabilitation. The additional information was received during the Compton conference that the contract sent as a preliminary move to securing the money was merely signatory of intention and would be followed by a contract embodying suggestions of the board borrowing the money.

FOUR ARRESTED ON DRUNK CHARGES

BIG PNEUMATIC TRACTOR TIRES RECEIVED HERE

Big balloon tires for tractors, standing neraly five feet high and with a tread of two feet, have arrived in Santa Ana, according to an announcement made today by E. L. Lucas, store manager for Montgomery Ward and company in Santa Ana.

Pointing out that L. A. Schneider, Garden Grove, is using a set of the new tractor tires with surprising results, Manager Lucas revealed details in connection with equipping tractors with pneumatic tires and explained "why the majority of tractors will use them since their success has been proven."

"The most successful of these tests," Lucas said, "has been made with Power Grip Pneumatics, manufactured at Montgomery-Ward's Detroit plant. The reason for this is that Power Grips do not skid as easily when moist ground is encountered, are more 'sue-footed' on sloping ground and give far betetr traction in sandy soil.

"At the termination of these tests it was found that tractors with pneumatic tires used 20 per cent less fuel than those using the old lug type steel wheels; riding qualities were better; steering easier; that th pneumatic tire did not tear up the sod, punch hay into the ground, and when used in orchards eliminated the danger of scarring the bark on trees or cutting the roots."

Another advantage disclosed by Lucas was that tractors with pneumatic tires could travel over paved roads which were forbidden to the spade lug wheel. The rubber made possible the use of the tractor to provide hauling transportation for other farm vehicles and perform as a motive power in bringing products to their destination. In other words a tractor becomes something more than a tractor—with the new tire arrangement, he said.

These tires come in two sizes either one of which will fit the majority of tractors being used in Orange county, Lucas declared.

IN "SHOW BOAT"

Perry Askam And Carmel Meyers In L. A. Production

"Show Boat," the season's first road show between here and New York city, occupies the stage of the Hollywood Pantages theater where it is drawing large and enthusiastic audiences daily. This is the stage musical version of Edna Ferber's famous novel of the same name.

Three baggage cars are required in transporting the scenic, lighting and property effects from city to city. The large cast of 110 people is headed by Perry Askam remembered for his fine performance in "Desert Song;" Carmel Meyers, Charlotte Lansing and others of importance.

It is presented at the Pantages at popular prices with three performances given daily. The original cast and production which played at advanced prices at the Curran theater in San Francisco for 10 weeks and at the Mayan theater is offered in Hollywood.

A special "Santa Ana Night" will be worked up in the near future, it is planned.

RODEO ON HOLIDAY THEME OF THRILLER

In the swift-moving picture, Tim and his two pals of the open ranges, Pat O'Malley and J. Carrol Naish, return to Tim's home town to discover that the entire countryside is celebrating the Fourth of July with a gigantic rodeo and round-up.

The three proceed to cop all the prizes offered for horse racing, broncho busting, calf-roping, and bull-dogging, which means that the sequpence is packed full of more than the usual amount of McCoy thrills.

Alice Dahl, Matthew Betz, and Joe Girard have prominent roles.

Firm Continues Dividend Rate

C. P. Hammond jr., assistant general agent for Orange county for the Aetna Life Insurance company, has received word that the directors of the company have voted a continuance of the 1933 dividend scale.

Court Notes

Alleging that her husband's treatment of her had been responsible for a nervous breakdown, Mrs. Beverley A. Bruggeman has filed suit in superior court requesting a divorce from H. A. Bruggeman, Long Beach post office clerk. She is also seeking custody of their child. She charges her husband left her on October 18, last, after telling her that he had no intention of ever living with her again. The Bruggemans were married August 28, 1921.

Applebury Freed On Check Charge

Following testimony that revealed there was insufficient evidence to hold him on a charge of issuing fictitious checks, Walter D. Applebury of Santa Ana was released by Judge Kenneth Morrison in justice court yesterday.

Deputy Sheriff Herman Zabel, fingerprint and handwriting expert, said that the handwriting of Applebury and that on the checks was dissimilar enough to remove suspicion of guilt. Lazaro Camarillo was the complaining witness.

Annual Christmas Programs Presented In Schools

LAGUNA BEACH P.-T. A. GIVES PLAY TONIGHT

LAGUNA BEACH, Dec. 15.—The annual Christmas vacation in the grammar school will begin on Saturday and the pupils will have 17 full days before returning to their class work Tuesday, January 2. A Christmas program will be put on in the auditorium this evening beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Miss Josephine Hills' orchestra and harmonica band will contribute numbers. A skit will be played by the pupils of the first grade, under the direction of Miss Marie Madden. A feature will be a one-act play by the P.-T. A. mothers. Special Christmas songs will be sung by the primary grades and the upper grades wil sing carols under the direction of Mrs. Lauretta Chilton.

C. Addison Van Loenen, principal of the school, gave a talk yesterday afternon before the Parent-Teacher association on the annual convention of the National Education association, which he attended last summer and on the World's fair, both in Chicago.

MERGER OF TUSTIN SOCIETIES PLANNED

TUSTIN, Dec. 15. — A special called meeting of the Mrs. A. D. Turner Missionary society was held in the Presbyterian church parlor Tuesday afternoon, with the president, Mrs. C. A. Day, presiding.

A talk on the foreign missions topic, "Siam," was given by Miss Erna Knapp and the national missions topic, "Southern Mountains," was covered by Mrs. John W. Sauers. The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. Frank McInteer.

During the business session, it was voted that the Mrs. Turner society and the Women's Missionary society of the Presbyterian church merge into one new society with a new name and a new staff of officers from both societies.

Plans were made for the annual Christmas party to be held December 19 in the home of Mrs. John W. Sauers, with Mrs. Sauers, Mrs. Frank McInteer, Mrs. S. McKamy and Mrs. E. R. Byrne as hostesses. Each member is asked to bring a "white elephant" for the Christmas tree gift exchange and also a gift of food for Christmas charity work.

Those present were Mesdames C. A. Day, John W. Sauers, A. F. Hibbet, Earl Marshall, William Kellams, A. E. Ashcraft, Sylvia Wieden, George Lange, J. Stuart Hydanus, Gavin Baxter, Grant Henderson, Frank R. McInteer and the Misses Erna Knapp and Minnie Windler.

Dinner Observes 52nd Anniversary

WINTERSBURG, Dec. 15.—Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Hodgins observed their 52nd wedding anniversary with a turkey dinner at Irvine park this week.

Among those with Mr. and Mrs. Hodgins were their two daughters, one of whom arrived with her young son just in time for the anniversary. They will spend the winter with their local relatives. The visitors are Mrs. O. S. Borson and son, Harvey Borson, of Foam Lake, Saskatchewan, Canada. The other daughter is Mrs. Mills Cowling, of this place. Others of the dinner party were Mills Cowling, Wesley, Ross, Verle and Lloyd Cowling, son-in-law and grandsons of the honor guests; their granddaughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gardner, and friends, Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Henry, all of this place.

Mrs. F. T. O'Hara Hostess To Club

TUSTIN, Dec. 15.—Baskets of pink roses and Christmas holly were used by Mrs. F. T. O'Hara in decorating her home on Prospect avenue Wednesday, when she was hostess to members of the Coreopsis club.

The afternoon was devoted to sewing and discussing Christmas plans. Assisted by Mrs. Fred Silver and Mrs. Mollie Smith, Mrs. O'Hara served creamed chicken paties, sandwiches, pumpkin pie and coffee at prettily appointed card tables.

Those present, other than the hostess, were Mrs. A. A. Alderman, Miss Ethel Alderman, Mrs. John F. Pieper, Mrs. Mollie Smith, Mrs. J. W. Doughty, Mrs. Fred Silver, Mrs. D. M. Forney and her house guest, Mrs. Susan Bowers, of Colorado; Mrs. Mort Hubbard, Mrs. G. Hubbard and Mrs. Sarah Mae Matthews.

PASTOR GIVES TALK ON RIGHT HOME TRAINING

COSTA MESA, Dec. 15.—Dr. Robert Burns McAulay, pastor of the Orange Presbyterian church, spoke at a meeting arranged by the local P.-T. A. in the Main auditorium of the grammar school Thursday night. He said that he believed that a Christian home is the greatest gift that any parent can give to a child.

Church and school supplement the work of the home, but the chances of a child growing into a good Christian citizen, if the home life is not right, are 100 to 1 against the child, he said. One of the greatest Christian virtues is giving, and with the Christmas season coming on, there is ample opportunity to test this trait of character, Dr. McAulay said.

The evening's program began with the audience singing "America," and Mrs. R. H. Hill, the association president, leading in the devotionals. Miss Marjory Babcock, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Lloyd Babcock, sang "Dear Little Stranger." Jackie Northrup read "Just Before Christmas" and "Through the Telephone," and Prof. Henry Abrams sang "Christmas," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Marie Pearce.

The theme of the program and decorations was Christmas, lighted trees being placed throughout the hall. Many gifts were brought to be distributed later by the local welfare department.

NEW FILM MACHINE FOR TUSTIN HIGH

'Squall' Set For Laguna January 10

LAGUNA BEACH, Dec. 15.—Following the successful production of "Madame Coke-Abney's Conscience," at the Community club Wednesday night, Director John B. Hughes is directing his attention to "The Squall," by Jean Bart, which was a sensation on the New York stage. It will be given at the club on the evening of January 10 and the dramatic section is planning the most elaborate production since its reorganization under the guidance of Hughes.

Casting will be completed early next week. Anxious to use the best material possible for each role, the director is conducting a series of tryouts and has informed the players that the choice will be made in each case on ability to read the lines according to the traditions of the play, and type. Five candidates are in the field for the part of "Nubie," the gypsy girl.

With more than 80 paid-up members in the dramatic section, Mrs. J. Walter Rankin, chairman, will have a large force of workers for details of the production. An elaborate scenic vesture is planned. Members have been invited to design and create models and the best features will be used in making the set. The setting for 'Madame Coke-Abney's Conscience" was from the design by Priscilla Frazer, executed by Mary Mead Herrick with the assistance of Ida Harris, Marion Clear, Halmar Forrest, Len Hardie, George T. Bolton, Volney Tanner, Betty Ahearn and Claire McCullough. It was considered one of the best ever used in a local production.

PASTOR GIVES TALK ON RIGHT HOME TRAINING

COSTA MESA, Dec. 15.—Dr. Robert Burns McAulay, pastor of the Orange Presbyterian church, spoke at a meeting arranged by the local P.-T. A. in the Main auditorium of the grammar school Thursday night. He said that he believed that a Christian home is the greatest gift that any parent can give to a child.

Church and school supplement the work of the home, but the chances of a child growing into a good Christian citizen, if the home life is not right, are 100 to 1 against the child, he said. One of the greatest Christian virtues is giving, and with the Christmas season coming on, there is ample opportunity to test this trait of character, Dr. McAulay said.

The evening's program began with the audience singing "America," and Mrs. R. H. Hill, the association president, leading in the devotionals. Miss Marjory Babcock, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Lloyd Babcock, sang "Dear Little Stranger." Jackie Northrup read "Just Before Christmas" and "Through the Telephone," and Prof. Henry Abrams sang "Christmas," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Marie Pearce.

The theme of the program and decorations was Christmas, lighted trees being placed throughout the hall. Many gifts were brought to be distributed later by the local welfare department.

NEW FILM MACHINE FOR TUSTIN HIGH

TUSTIN, Dec. 15.—Educationall moving pictures are being shown in the classrooms at Tustin Union High school with the recent purchase of a new projector.

The two movie projectors which had become obsolete were taken in on an even trade for the new one. Principal J. W. Means is sending to San Francisco and Los Angeles for films which will be used in science and mechanics and other classroom work. It has been proven, according to Mr. Means, that visual education is much more effective and is quicker than any other form of education.

This new machine is outfitted to be used with talking apparatus.

EBELL CHAIRMAN TALKS ON 'VINES'

NEWPORT BEACH, Dec. 15.—Mrs. J. E. Paul, of Santa Ana, chairman of the Ebell garden section, was the main speaker at the meeting of the local Ebell club Thursday. She spoke on the subject, "Vines", displaying samples of many varieties from her own garden. George Schelhaus and son, Roger, of Tustin, entertained with several Spanish songs, accompanied by Mrs. E. Rust, also of Tustin. Mrs. Rust sang several Spanish numbers.

The meeting was held at the L. E. Lounsberry home; Mrs. Lounsberry, Mrs. P. S. Castleman and Mrs. M. A. Gaskill acting as hostesses. The living room of the home was decorated in cotoneaster branches and other early winter greenery. Thirty-five persons were in attendance. Mrs. King Joslyn is president of the local club.

'Squall' Set For Laguna January 10

LAGUNA BEACH, Dec. 15.—Following the successful production of "Madame Coke-Abney's Conscience," at the Community club Wednesday night, Director John B. Hughes is directing his attention to "The Squall," by Jean Bart, which was a sensation on the New York stage. It will be given at the club on the evening of January 10 and the dramatic section is planning the most elaborate production since its reorganization under the guidance of Hughes.

Casting will be completed early next week. Anxious to use the best material possible for each role, the director is conducting a series of tryouts and has informed the players that the choice will be made in each case on ability to read the lines according to the traditions of the play, and type. Five candidates are in the field for the part of "Nubie," the gypsy girl.

With more than 80 paid-up members in the dramatic section, Mrs. J. Walter Rankin, chairman, will have a large force of workers for details of the production. An elaborate scenic vesture is planned. Members have been invited to design and create models and the best features will be used in making the set. The setting for 'Madame Coke-Abney's Conscience" was from the design by Priscilla Frazer, executed by Mary Mead Herrick with the assistance of Ida Harris, Marion Clear, Halmar Forrest, Len Hardie, George T. Bolton, Volney Tanner, Betty Ahearn and Claire McCullough. It was considered one of the best ever used in a local production.

TRAVEL SERVICE BUREAU OFFICE OPENS IN BANK

Operation of a world-wide travel service in an independent office in Santa Ana was announced officially today by Miss Constance Cruickshank of this city. Miss Cruickshank, who has been directing the bureau at the First National bank as an Orange county branch of the Southern California Tourist Bureaus, or Consolidated Ticket office, will now manage an independent service under the name of the World Travel Bureau in the main bank lobby.

A complete travel service, embracing the fullest and latest information regarding steamship and air travel to all parts of the globe, will be operated by the World Travel Bureau, while a coastal and transcontinental bus service will be adopted as required. Full data on special cruises around the world, to the South Seas, to the Orient, to the Mediterranean, to the West Indies, to Mexico and to the Pacific Northwest will be available at all times, and these cruises may be compared, and selection made, at the World Travel Bureau.

Orange county residents may make reservations there tomorrow, if desired, for the City of Los Angeles South Seas cruise, January 12; for the Lurline cruise to the South Pacific, January 24; for the Franconia World Cruise, to be accompanied by Hendrick W. Van Loon, January 26; for the second 18-day cruise to Mexico on the Chiriqui, February 3, or for any future trip. Miss Cruickshank, bureau manager, will also assist with the procuring of passports and visas necessary and will provide travelers with insurance as desired.

It was emphasized that the World Travel Bureau has been established as a service for the entire Orange county, and that its manager will meet inquiries from any part of the county regarding domestic or foreign travel, by telephone, letter or personal call.

Exhibits of the up-to-the-minute type exemplified by the Lindbergh world flight map and new United Air Line Boeing airplane model, on current display in the bureau's Main street window at the First National bank, will be another feature of this bureau reflecting the newest in travel trends, according to advice.

STORE IN TRIBUTE TO ROAD PATROLMEN

Paying tribute to members of the California State Highway Patrol, a special display has been arranged and is being showed at the Brooks Clothing company store here at Fourth and Bush streets, it was announced today by store officials.

The display is in the form of a manikin wearing the new highway patrol uniform. The manikin is mounted on a new Harley-Davidson motorcycle and is attracting considerable attention. A card on the display reads: "In appreciation for the splendid personnel of the California State Highway Patrol."

Farmers, Workers To Meet Saturday

Members of the Farmers and Workers Regional Conference of Orange County will stage a meeting at the Temple theater, Third and Bush streets, at 4:30 p. m. Saturday afternoon, it was announced today.

Various matters in connection with future activities of the organization will come before the meeting, which is open to all those interested in the purposes of the movement, according to Secretary Jack Green, of Orange.

FLYING AROUND With Dale Deckert

In the last few weeks many citizens of Santa Ana have taken advantage of the special flight offered by Floyd Martin at the local airport to view the proposed Harbor District. To really get a different and more comprehensive view of the wonderful possibilities if the harbor is developed, one should by all means make arrangements to take this air trip.

Floyd Waterman and Joe Hicks, local pilots, have returned from Palmdale where they have just installed an intermediate emergency landing field for the Department of Commerce, Aeronautics Division. It will be known as Number Five Emergency Field on the Los Angeles to Amarillo Air line.

Eddie Martin, owner of the Martin Airport, who flies for the American Airways, flew one of the new low-wing Lockheed Orins from Los Angeles to El Paso last week in three hours and fifty minutes. It is a little more than 800 miles by airline, and the average speed is 228 miles per hour. On this run Martin carried no passengers or mail; however, the ship is one of the regular ships used by the Airlines, and is powered with supercharged Wasp motor which develops 700 h.p.

A recent newspaper dispatch stated that science's latest cure for colds is to take an airplane flight. It is claimed the cold germs cannot live at high altitude. If this is true, we can soon expect airplanes to supplant the Smith Brothers.

Editor, Register:

Must we say farewell to these beautiful shores and go far away to lands that we know nought of? Must we cease to breathe this sweet, pure air, laden with the aroma of the orange blossom and all her kindred flora?

Must we bid adieu, a last farewell, to the old ocean's refreshing breeze, carrying on its wings the gathered purity and sweetness of her flowery isles?

Where will we go to find a better clime?

Where will we go to escape the hand of the oppressor?

There is no land on this wide-peopled earth where we can escape the sordid and wicked oppression of the Insulls, Morgans and their followers.

Don't blame these fathers and mothers for crying to Heaven, for help to feed and clothe these naked and starving children, for you will find, wherever on the face of this earth you may go, these conditions.

But let us not forget that there is a just God who presides over the destinies of the Infinite worlds, who will in His own good time reach out His tender and merciful hand to His beloved and strickenchildren and give them relief.

Do we not now see the dawn of other days? It seems that from the mountain tops we can hear the trumpets announcing the rising of a star in the East forboding the coming of happy days. "So let us not flee from the wrongs which now oppress us to those we know nought of." The crowned kings of wickedness and perfidy cannot and must not rob the people much longer.

C. W. ELLIS.

Editor, Register,

Dear Sir: I have just read Mr. Hale's reason for voting "No" on the Central Valley Project. To me it seems that Mr. Hale's vision is narrow and self-centered. I, too, have a personal knowledge of the Central Valley's condition and needs, and without entering into any discussion with Mr. Hale I am glad to know that my vision of the future for that valley and its needs is quite contrary to his.

A thorough discussion and investigation of the importance and immediate needs as providing in this ENABLING ACT for that valley, were fully gone into by the last state legislature, resulting in the approval of it with only 26 of the 120 members voting against it. Then, after a thorough study of it by the Governor of California, he unhesitatingly approved it.

Now it would be known by every voter that the chief objection to this project comes from one source—the power trust, and the voters should not be deceived by the propaganda against this measure, issued by and distributed by the power companies. Every orange grower here would be in favor of it, if it would help the orange industry here, as it undoubtedly will help this industry, as well as all other industries in that valley.

The central valley extended their sympathy and help to this district in our earthquake disaster, and now we should be willing to lend to them a helping hand by voting "Yes" on the question now on the ballot. If the voters through confusion or deception should fail to approve this project, it means that California will lose the benefit of an outright grant of $48,000,000 from the Federal government, and this grant would then go to some other state. A failure to pass also means that at least 25,000 men will be denied the right to work and support their families here in this state. Although we may be unable to see any direct benefit to this immediate locality, let us be broad-minded enough and have enough state loyalty to vote for the state's best interest.

For my part, I shall vote "Yes" on Proposition No. 1, the Central Valley Water project.

R. L. Thiebaud.

Dear Editor:

The few lines below are written as an appreciation in behalf of the splendid article entitled "A Cheer for the Non-Conforming German Clergy," which lately appeared on the editorial page of The Register.

I neither can nor will revoke anything, seeing that it is not safe or right to act against conscience. These words were reiterated on November 10th, at the anniversary of Luther's birth, when a minority of German ecclesiastic leaders stood firm against the inroads of Nazi politics of attempting to tamper with Holy Writ.

These 3000 orthodox Lutheran pastors were more than a match for the Nazi regime, to pagan ideas, sprinkled with modernism. These Protestant leaders will neither compromise nor surrender to anything, save the unadulterated word of Holy Writ.

As a political leader Hitler has performed wonders, but he has to learn much. He dare not separate the Old and New Testament, nor annihilate the former. The one hinges on the other, the old containing the prophesies, the new the fulfillment of these prophesies. The former interprets the latter, and vice versa. The detriment incurred by conforming to the Nazi regime relative to the above would result in chaos and confusion. It is too dangerous for either an individual or a nation to tamper with Holy Writ or pervert its teaching.

What a remarkable coincidence that on this very day of Martin Luther's anniversary both Lutherans and Catholics have made common cause in defending religious liberty.

It may be an ephocal step of separating church and state in German, which would be the fulfillment of the great reformer's treasured hope. May this firm stand of these ecclesiastic leaders serve as a warning against making political use of the church of Christ.

HELENA S. CHRISTIANSEN.

NET RETURNS FOR CALAVO MEMBERS UP 26 PER CENT

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15.—The first or October marketing pool of the new calavo-avocado season will "net" growers an average of 26 per cent higher per pound returns than that received for the corresponding pool of last season, the Calavo Growers' Exchange announced today. This higher return is in the face of generally lower avocado selling prices this season, and indicates a marked reduction in marketing costs.

The recent pool's total payment will be approximately 50 per cent greater than that of a year ago, although only 19 per cent more fruit was handled in pool No. 1 of this new season, the announcement said.

Growers netted on Calavo Pueblas from $1.92 to $1.63 per flat, or from 15 to 12.5 cents per pound," it continued. "Calavo Fuertes returned growers from $2.27 to $1.92 per flat, or from 17.5 to 15 cents per pound 'net', in the pool alone.

ASK FORECLOSURE ON 20 ACRE RANCH

Judgment for $7200 and interest and foreclosure of a mortgage on 20 acres of land in Rancho San Juan Cajon de Santa Ana is asked in a suit filed in superior court by the Southern County Bank and naming as defendants Henry S. McGregor, Mrs. Emma McGregor, the Orange County Title company and the First National Trust and Saving Bank of Fullerton.

According to the complaint McGregor executed a promissory note with the plaintiff bank on December 13, 1928 agreeing to repay $4000 within one year and mortgaged the property as security. At the time the mortgage was executed, according to the complaint, McGregor already was indebted to the bank to the extent of $3200 on another promissory note which has been extended several times.

AL PEARCE AND GANG SHOWING AT BROADWAY

This popular radio "gang" will appear in person at the Broadway theater tonight, in two shows, and in continuous shows at the theater tomorrow, Saturday. There will be no stage show this afternoon. Doors tonight will open at 6 o'clock.

Tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 the Al Pearce presentation will be broadcast over a network of 60 stations throughout the United States, over the National Broadcasting company's facilities.

Doors at the Broadway theater will open for this broadcast at 12:30 p. m., so that the house can be filled before the broadcast starts. Shows at the theater will be continuous tomorrow, with Al Pearce appearing three times more during the day.

The picture to be shown today and tomorrow is Chester Morris, in his latest attraction, "King for a Night." A thrilling drama of a man sentenced to death in the electric chair for a crime he did not commit, the story is greatly aided by the superior acting of Helen Twelvetrees.

"INVISIBLE MAN" ON AT WEST COAST

Declared to be one of the most amazing pictures yet brought to the screen, "The Invisible Man," H. G. Well's fantastic film, comes to the Fox West Coast theater today and tomorrow.

On the order of "Frankenstein," the new horror picture tells the story of a man, in order to obtain the money necessary to wed his girl, studies long and hard until he finds the secret of making a person invisible. He himself becomes invisible. The strange things that happen, as he walks about unable to be seen by huamn eyes, eventually make him a mad man and a killer.

TRAVEL SERVICE BUREAU OFFICE OPENS IN BANK

Operation of a world-wide travel service in an independent office in Santa Ana was announced officially today by Miss Constance Cruickshank of this city. Miss Cruickshank, who has been directing the bureau at the First National bank as an Orange county branch of the Southern California Tourist Bureaus, or Consolidated Ticket office, will now manage an independent service under the name of the World Travel Bureau in the main bank lobby.

A complete travel service, embracing the fullest and latest information regarding steamship and air travel to all parts of the globe, will be operated by the World Travel Bureau, while a coastal and transcontinental bus service will be adopted as required. Full data on special cruises around the world, to the South Seas, to the Orient, to the Mediterranean, to the West Indies, to Mexico and to the Pacific Northwest will be available at all times, and these cruises may be compared, and selection made, at the World Travel Bureau.

Orange county residents may make reservations there tomorrow, if desired, for the City of Los Angeles South Seas cruise, January 12; for the Lurline cruise to the South Pacific, January 24; for the Franconia World Cruise, to be accompanied by Hendrick W. Van Loon, January 26; for the second 18-day cruise to Mexico on the Chiriqui, February 3, or for any future trip. Miss Cruickshank, bureau manager, will also assist with the procuring of passports and visas necessary and will provide travelers with insurance as desired.

It was emphasized that the World Travel Bureau has been established as a service for the entire Orange county, and that its manager will meet inquiries from any part of the county regarding domestic or foreign travel, by telephone, letter or personal call.

Exhibits of the up-to-the-minute type exemplified by the Lindbergh world flight map and new United Air Line Boeing airplane model, on current display in the bureau's Main street window at the First National bank, will be another feature of this bureau reflecting the newest in travel trends, according to advice.

STORE IN TRIBUTE TO ROAD PATROLMEN

Paying tribute to members of the California State Highway Patrol, a special display has been arranged and is being showed at the Brooks Clothing company store here at Fourth and Bush streets, it was announced today by store officials.

The display is in the form of a manikin wearing the new highway patrol uniform. The manikin is mounted on a new Harley-Davidson motorcycle and is attracting considerable attention. A card on the display reads: "In appreciation for the splendid personnel of the California State Highway Patrol."

Farmers, Workers To Meet Saturday

Members of the Farmers and Workers Regional Conference of Orange County will stage a meeting at the Temple theater, Third and Bush streets, at 4:30 p. m. Saturday afternoon, it was announced today.

Various matters in connection with future activities of the organization will come before the meeting, which is open to all those interested in the purposes of the movement, according to Secretary Jack Green, of Orange.

FLYING AROUND With Dale Deckert

In the last few weeks many citizens of Santa Ana have taken advantage of the special flight offered by Floyd Martin at the local airport to view the proposed Harbor District. To really get a different and more comprehensive view of the wonderful possibilities if the harbor is developed, one should by all means make arrangements to take this air trip.

Floyd Waterman and Joe Hicks, local pilots, have returned from Palmdale where they have just installed an intermediate emergency landing field for the Department of Commerce, Aeronautics Division. It will be known as Number Five Emergency Field on the Los Angeles to Amarillo Air line.

Eddie Martin, owner of the Martin Airport, who flies for the American Airways, flew one of the new low-wing Lockheed Orins from Los Angeles to El Paso last week in three hours and fifty minutes. It is a little more than 800 miles by airline, and the average speed is 228 miles per hour. On this run Martin carried no passengers or mail; however, the ship is one of the regular ships used by the Airlines, and is powered with supercharged Wasp motor which develops 700 h.p.

A recent newspaper dispatch stated that science's latest cure for colds is to take an airplane flight. It is claimed the cold germs cannot live at high altitude. If this is true, we can soon expect airplanes to supplant the Smith Brothers.

33 SUCCESSFUL IN BECOMING NEW CITIZENS

Orange county has 33 new citizens today following the approval of applications for citizenship by Judge G. K. Scovel in superior court Wednesday.

Only five out of the total of 38 applications for naturalization were refused, one of them, the petition of Cecil Bert Hansen, Orange, being dismissed without prejudice.

The four remaining petitions were continued to a hearing set for next June. These four were the applications for citizenship of Juan Plaza, Capistrano, a Spaniard; Robert William Griffith, Mrs. Elizabeth Alice Griffith, Huntington Beach, and Charles Richmond of Anaheim, all subjects of rGeat Britain.

Applications granted are as follows: British: Arlie Curtis Barnett, 225 South Orange street, Brea; Mrs. Rosaline Amelia Newton, Huntington Beach; Mrs. Helen Gladys Bissett, 414 East Twentieth street, Santa Ana; William Henry McIntee, 2600 Central avenue, Newport Beach; Mrs. Margaretta Merriam and Horton Cook Merriam, 131 North Lincoln avenue, Fullerton; Mabel Amelia Ives and Bruce Benjamin Ives, 307 East North street, Anaheim; Mrs. Ella Bertha Winters and Robert Henry Winters, 327 East Maple avenue, Orange; Thomas Harold Campbell, 414 South Sievers avenue, Brea; Miss Emily Ann Cox, 616 West Fourth street, Santa Ana; Walter McAdam Young and Mrs. Elizabeth Margaret H. Young, 521 Beverly place, Santa Ana; Henry Dowd and Mrs. Charlotte Gladys Dowd, 219 West Santa Fe avenue, Fullerton.

Poland—Mrs. Helen Stein, Fullerton.

Editor, Register:

Must we say farewell to these beautiful shores and go far away to lands that we know nought of? Must we cease to breathe this sweet, pure air, laden with the aroma of the orange blossom and all her kindred flora?

Must we bid adieu, a last farewell, to the old ocean's refreshing breeze, carrying on its wings the gathered purity and sweetness of her flowery isles?

Where will we go to find a better clime?

Where will we go to escape the hand of the oppressor?

There is no land on this wide-peopled earth where we can escape the sordid and wicked oppression of the Insulls, Morgans and their followers.

Don't blame these fathers and mothers for crying to Heaven, for help to feed and clothe these naked and starving children, for you will find, wherever on the face of this earth you may go, these conditions.

But let us not forget that there is a just God who presides over the destinies of the Infinite worlds, who will in His own good time reach out His tender and merciful hand to His beloved and strickenchildren and give them relief.

Do we not now see the dawn of other days? It seems that from the mountain tops we can hear the trumpets announcing the rising of a star in the East forboding of the coming of happy days. "So let us not flee from the wrongs which now oppress us to those we know nought of." The crowned kings of wickedness and perfidy cannot and must not rob the people much longer.

Editor, Register,

Dear Sir: I have just read Mr. Hale's reason for voting "No" on the Central Valley Project. To me it seems that Mr. Hale's vision is narrow and self-centered. I, too, have a personal knowledge of the Central Valley's condition and needs, and without entering into any discussion with Mr. Hale I am glad to know that my vision of the future for that valley and its needs is quite contrary to his.

A thorough discussion and investigation of the importance and immediate needs as providing in this ENABLING ACT for that valley, were fully gone into by the last state legislature, resulting in the approval of it with only 26 of the 120 members voting against it. Then, after a thorough study of it by the Governor of California, he unhesitatingly approved it.

Now it would be known by every voter that the chief objection to this project comes from one source—the power trust, and the voters should not be deceived by the propaganda against this measure, issued by and distributed by the power companies. Every orange grower here would be in favor of it, if it would help the orange industry here, as it undoubtedly will help this industry, as well as all other industries in that valley.

The central valley extended their sympathy and help to this district in our earthquake disaster, and now we should be willing to lend to them a helping hand by voting "Yes" on the question now on the ballot. If the voters through confusion or deception should fail to approve this project, it means that California will lose the benefit of an outright grant of $43,000,000 from the Federal government, and this grant would then go to some other state. A failure to pass also means that at least 25,000 men will be denied the right to work and support their families here in this state. Although we may be unable to see any direct benefit to this immediate locality, let us be broad-minded enough and have enough state loyalty to vote for the state's best interest.

For my part, I shall vote "Yes" on Proposition No. 1, the Central Valley Water project.

R. L. Thiebaud.

Dear Editor:

The few lines below are written as an appreciation in behalf of the splendid article entitled "A Cheer for the Non-Conforming German Clergy," which lately appeared on the editorial page of The Register.

I neither can nor will revoke anything, seeing that it is not safe or right to act against conscience. These words were reiterated on November 10th, at the anniversary of Luther's birth, when a minority of German ecclesiastic leaders stood firm against the inroads of Nazi politics of attempting to tamper with Holy Writ.

These 3000 orthodox Lutheran pastors were more than a match for the Nazi regime, to pagan ideas, sprinkled with modernism. These Protestant leaders will neither compromise nor surrender to anything, save the unadulterated word of Holy Writ.

As a political leader Hitler has performed wonders, but he has to learn much. He dare not separate the Old and New Testament, nor annihilate the former. The one hinges on the other, the old containing the prophesies, the new the fulfillment of these prophesies. The former interprets the latter, and vice versa. The detriment incurred by conforming to the Nazi regime relative to the above would result in chaos and confusion. It is too dangerous for either an individual or a nation to tamper with Holy Writ or pervert its teaching.

What a remarkable coincidence that on this very day of Martin Luther's anniversary both Lutherans and Catholics have made common cause in defending religious liberty.

It may be an ephocal step of separating church and state in German, which would be the fulfillment of the great reformer's treasured hope. May this firm stand of these ecclesiastic leaders serve as a warning against making political use of the church of Christ.

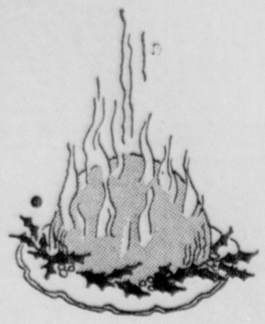
An "Old English" Dinner for Christmas

By Mrs. Penrose Lyly



THE oldest member of the family carves the turkey in England on Christmas day, and all the children, no matter how far away they may be, travel toward home for the annual family gathering at Christmas time.

That is the holiday tradition in England, and all employers grant men and women extra time off if they must travel any distance to reach the paternal hearth. Being with their own blood, rather than the giving of presents, is the important thing about Christmas to the English.

"You Americans regard turkey as your national symbol, almost," says F. C. Lloyd, president of the Wines Trade Club of London, now here on a visit of instruction to American wine distributors. "But we English wouldn't regard a Christmas dinner authentic unless turkey was the main dish. Why, last year in London, Fortnam & Mason, the noted English grocers, alone sold over 20 tons of turkey.

"What's our Christmas dinner like? Well, it's rather buxom, rather more solid than some Americans like. But we stick to our traditions and repeat, year after year, more or less the same menu. That is, 90 per cent of English families do. Of course, the very rich and sophisticated have more Continental meals and indulge in much champagne.

"Dinner begins with roast turkey, usually with chestnut stuffing and a few little sausages around it. With this we have baked potatoes—yes, plain potatoes baked in their skins, and the customary vegetable is Brussels sprouts. Burgundy wine—rich and red—that's what is drunk in most English homes at Christmas dinner."

Mr. Lloyd says nothing about salad.

"Next comes a great, hearty Christmas pudding, aflame with brandy. We use the cheapest kind of brandy for this, because it is not for flavor, but merely for the heart-warming blue flame which it gives. With this pudding we also drink Burgundy.

"After a while, the table cloth is removed. Then comes in nuts and raisins, preserved fruits, cheese, and of course port wine. We sit and sip our port and nibble away on the other things for hours, refreshing our family ties and growing happier and more mellow as Christmas night descends. You see, this is our great annual reunion of all the members of our family. Rather nice, don't you think?"

All this sounds worthy the Christmas table of the American family. But we might add, with a bow of "by your leave, sir," that a little light salad in between the turkey and Christmas pudding might seem rather wise. For the rich pudding, with its flaming brandy and its frothy sauce, should be met with a refreshed appetite after a slight, green pause.

Of course, if we prefer the traditional fruity English Christmas pudding, we can order it from the grocer, ready to steam. But if we think a somewhat lighter homemade pudding may suit us, then perhaps this recipe will be welcome.

These are the ingredients in order used: 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 well-beaten eggs, 1¼ cups grated raw carrot, ¼ teaspoon ground cloves, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg, 1⅛ cups sifted flour, grated rind of 1 small orange or tangerine, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup grated raw potato, 1 teaspoon baking soda, ⅛ pound thinly-sliced citron, ⅛ pound thinly-sliced candied ginger, ⅛ pound thinly-sliced lemon peel, and, if wanted for blending and enriching purposes, 1 cup rum.

Cream the butter and sugar and beat well. Add the eggs, stir, then add all the ground spices. Next turn in the grated carrots, stir in the flour, orange rind and salt. Beat again, then mix in the grated potato and the soda, dissolved in very little warm water.

Then stir in the citron, candied ginger and lemon peel. Mix well. Finally, beat in the rum.

Line a steaming mold with buttered paper. Pour in the batter. Cover tightly. Steam for 2 hours, timing from the moment the water begins to boil about the mold, not before.

Serve on a gay platter, pour a little cooking brandy over pudding just as you bring it to table, and touch with a match. When the blue flame dies out, slice and serve with a foamy sauce in which you have mixed about ½ cup finely-chopped almonds. And then sit back and enjoy a Merry Christmas.

HOW about a glistening Christmas tree to add festive tints to the turkey? The one shown in the photograph did not grow in a forest. It grew, instead, under the fingers of the hostess. This is the way to make one for your table:

For the tree trunk take a thin 18-inch stick, about as large around as a pencil. Cover it with white crepe paper.

Next make the branches. Cut several squares of clear, transparent cellophane, allowing four squares to each set of branches. On the tree illustrated, there are five sets of branches, the squares of each varying in size from 4 inches at the top to 12 inches at the base.

After cutting a square, take hold of it at the center, pinch and crush down the transparent material, wind a heavy piece of linen thread or a thin piece of wire around the base of the branch and fasten it to the tree trunk.

If you want more red for your table, run a wide strip of red transparent material down the center over the damask.

THESE TOYS ARE EASY TO MAKE—AND CHEAP

YES, there is always a little niece or nephew to be thought of these days. But unfortunately, there is not always enough cash on hand to make that thought for Christmas very tangible. However, these amusing toys shown in the photograph can be made very cheaply.

The outlandish-looking animal—it may be a dog, and then again it may not—falls into many and assorted funny attitudes and is guaranteed not to bite nice little girls and boys. Easy to make, for you need only a No. 0 steel crochet hook and a fold of each of these: 1 jade crepe paper and 1 yellow crepe paper.

Cut the paper in strips ½ inch wide, stretch and twist them. Now begin to crochet this fearful and wonderful beast. Use d c stitch throughout. Legs, body, head (2 parts) and tail are crocheted separately, tube fashion, and sewed together. The eyes, ears and paws are crocheted flat.

You know that holiday yearning most women have to dress a doll for some youngster's happiness? Well, indulge that yearning, even though the purse frowns on the use of silks and satins and lace. You can get a merry young lass to dress for as little as 10 cents, you know. And the dress and hat shown in the photograph demand no more than a fold of powder blue crepe paper and one of light amber.

Dress: (6" from shoulder to hem). Ch 20" with amber. Join. 1 s c, 1 ch for 1½". Continue, decreasing every fourth st until skirt measures 10" at waistline. Divide for back and front. 1 s c, 1 ch across front. 1 sl st on each side for armholes. 1 s c, 1 ch for 1", 5 sl st for neck.

For shoulder, continue 1" on each side of neck. Crochet back in two parts to allow opening from neck. Follow same directions for armholes and neck. Crochet shoulders together. S c with blue around neck, armholes and skirt.

Mrs. Penrose Lyly is glad to answer questions about her page. Address your queries to the editor of this newspaper, and make sure that each letter is accompanied by a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Chromium can help you have a gay Christmas this year—and if you doubt it, look at the sketch. It shows (1) three big chromium bracelets; (2) a black suede bag with chromium initials; (3) a constellation lamp, with chromium base and shade; (4) a smoker's stand with compartments for pipes and a deep ashtray; and (5) beer mugs and pitcher of chromium cylinders.

• USE TOO MUCH LIPSTICK AND YOU'LL LOSE OUT ON KISSES

MEN don't like to kiss lips heavily made up. They anticipate the taste of the make-up in advance and don't like it. And they also are rather embarrassed by being seen on the avenue with a woman whose cosmetic enthusiasms stick out all over her face.

That is the opinion of young Dimitri Dumas, a Frenchman, popular with American women, whose ideas on make-up have led him to invent many new cosmetics which enhance, as he says, rather than disguise the features of his clients.

"The majority of women are not beautiful," this animated expert with excited gestures insists. "Ah, not beautiful, maybe—but they can all be smart. Men like smart women better than beautiful ones—I know they do both here in America and in Europe.

"But so many women still try to make themselves beautiful, when they can't. Why waste time? Why not study how to make themselves smart, chic, alluring?"

Dumas grows impatient merely thinking of it. He spins about, makes a gesture like a fencer.

"What happens when they try to change their natural appearance with a lot of cosmetics?" he asks. "They attain nothing but ignorant sophistication. It is not smart—it is not beautiful. It is just like a petticoat showing beneath the skirt, it is just like badly groomed hair—it just makes the men furious and disgusted."

Make-up, he claims, can be successful only when cosmetic tones are harmonized with type tones. He has worked out tone scales for blonds and brunets, which will make them not only smart and more attractive, but also make them look more healthy.

"No man likes to be seen with a sickish-looking woman," he points out. "Never—he's proud of being friend to a healthy, natural creature, though. Lots of women don't seem to realize that point."

He reaches for a tray of eye shadow.

"Look," he says, "see this delicate, almost ethereal violet color? The purest type of blond actually has a certain aura of violet about her. That's why I use this violet eye shadow for her. And for her I insist on a pink pearl powder and a light coral rouge.

"The medium blond has a tinge of olive brown in her general color aura. She needs a very delicate brown tint for the eye shadow, lots of peach tone in her face powder and a deep coral for the rouge.

Mr. Lloyd says nothing about salad.

"Next comes a great, hearty Christmas pudding, aflame with brandy. We use the cheapest kind of brandy for this, because it is not for flavor, but merely for the heart-warming blue flame which it gives. With this pudding we also drink Burgundy.

"After a while, the table cloth is removed. Then comes in nuts and raisins, preserved fruits, cheese, and of course port wine. We sit and sip our port and nibble away on the other things for hours, refreshing our family ties and growing happier and more mellow as Christmas night descends. You see, this is our great annual reunion of all the members of our family. Rather nice, don't you think?"

All this sounds worthy the Christmas table of the American family. But we might add, with a bow of "by your leave, sir," that a little light salad in between the turkey and Christmas pudding might seem rather wise. For the rich pudding, with its flaming brandy and its frothy sauce, should be met with a refreshed appetite after a slight, green pause.

Of course, if we prefer the traditional fruity English Christmas pudding, we can order it from the grocer, ready to steam. But if we think a somewhat lighter homemade pudding may suit us, then perhaps this recipe will be welcome.

These are the ingredients in order used: 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 well-beaten eggs, 1¼ cups grated raw carrot, ¼ teaspoon ground cloves, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg, 1⅛ cups sifted flour, grated rind of 1 small orange or tangerine, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup grated raw potato, 1 teaspoon baking soda, ⅛ pound thinly-sliced citron, ⅛ pound thinly-sliced candied ginger, ⅛ pound thinly-sliced lemon peel, and, if wanted for blending and enriching purposes, 1 cup rum.

Cream the butter and sugar and beat well. Add the eggs, stir, then add all the ground spices. Next turn in the grated carrots, stir in the flour, orange rind and salt. Beat again, then mix in the grated potato and the soda, dissolved in very little warm water.

Then stir in the citron, candied ginger and lemon peel. Mix well. Finally, beat in the rum.

Line a steaming mold with buttered paper. Pour in the batter. Cover tightly. Steam for 2 hours, timing from the moment the water begins to boil about the mold, not before.

Serve on a gay platter, pour a little cooking brandy over pudding just as you bring it to table, and touch with a match. When the blue flame dies out, slice and serve with a foamy sauce in which you have mixed about ½ cup finely-chopped almonds. And then sit back and enjoy a Merry Christmas.

HOW about a glistening Christmas tree to add festive tints to the turkey? The one shown in the photograph did not grow in a forest. It grew, instead, under the fingers of the hostess. This is the way to make one for your table:

For the tree trunk take a thin 18-inch stick, about as large around as a pencil. Cover it with white crepe paper.

Next make the branches. Cut several squares of clear, transparent cellophane, allowing four squares to each set of branches. On the tree illustrated, there are five sets of branches, the squares of each varying in size from 4 inches at the top to 12 inches at the base.

After cutting a square, take hold of it at the center, pinch and crush down the transparent material, wind a heavy piece of linen thread or a thin piece of wire around the base of the branch and fasten it to the tree trunk.

If you want more red for your table, run a wide strip of red transparent material down the center over the damask.

Chromium Christmas

Chromium can help you have a gay Christmas this year—and if you doubt it, look at the sketch. It shows (1) three big chromium bracelets; (2) a black suede bag with chromium initials; (3) a constellation lamp, with chromium base and shade; (4) a smoker's stand with compartments for pipes and a deep ashtray; and (5) beer mugs and pitcher of chromium cylinders.

THESE TOYS ARE EASY TO MAKE—AND CHEAP

YES, there is always a little niece or nephew to be thought of these days. But unfortunately, there is not always enough cash on hand to make that thought for Christmas very tangible. However, these amusing toys shown in the photograph can be made very cheaply.

The outlandish-looking animal—it may be a dog, and then again it may not—falls into many and assorted funny attitudes and is guaranteed not to bite nice little girls and boys. Easy to make, for you need only a No. 0 steel crochet hook and a fold of each of these: 1 jade crepe paper and 1 yellow crepe paper.

Cut the paper in strips ½ inch wide, stretch and twist them. Now begin to crochet this fearful and wonderful beast. Use d c stitch throughout. Legs, body, head (2 parts) and tail are crocheted separately, tube fashion, and sewed together. The eyes, ears and paws are crocheted flat.

You know that holiday yearning most women have to dress a doll for some youngster's happiness? Well, indulge that yearning, even though the purse frowns on the use of silks and satins and lace. You can get a merry young lass to dress for as little as 10 cents, you know. And the dress and hat shown in the photograph demand no more than a fold of powder blue crepe paper and one of light amber.

Dress: (6" from shoulder to hem). Ch 20" with amber. Join. 1 s c, 1 ch for 1½". Continue, decreasing every fourth st until skirt measures 10" at waistline. Divide for back and front. 1 s c, 1 ch across front. 1 sl st on each side for armholes. 1 s c, 1 ch for 1", 5 sl st for neck.

For shoulder, continue 1" on each side of neck. Crochet back in two parts to allow opening from neck. Follow same directions for armholes and neck. Crochet shoulders together. S c with blue around neck, armholes and skirt.

USE TOO MUCH LIPSTICK AND YOU'LL LOSE OUT ON KISSES

MEN don't like to kiss lips heavily made up. They anticipate the taste of the make-up in advance and don't like it. And they also are rather embarrassed by being seen on the avenue with a woman whose cosmetic enthusiasms stick out all over her face.

That is the opinion of young Dimitri Dumas, a Frenchman, popular with American women, whose ideas on make-up have led him to invent many new cosmetics which enhance, as he says, rather than disguise the features of his clients.

"The majority of women are not beautiful," this animated expert with excited gestures insists. "Ah, not beautiful, maybe—but they can all be smart. Men like smart women better than beautiful ones—I know they do both here in America and in Europe.

"But so many women still try to make themselves beautiful, when they can't. Why waste time? Why not study how to make themselves smart, chic, alluring?"

Dumas grows impatient merely thinking of it. He spins about, makes a gesture like a fencer.

"What happens when they try to change their natural appearance with a lot of cosmetics?" he asks. "They attain nothing but ignorant sophistication. It is not smart—it is not beautiful. It is just like a petticoat showing beneath the skirt, it is just like badly groomed hair—it just makes the men furious and disgusted."

Make-up, he claims, can be successful only when cosmetic tones are harmonized with type tones. He has worked out tone scales for blonds and brunets, which will make them not only smart and more attractive, but also make them look more healthy.

"No man likes to be seen with a sickish-looking woman," he points out. "Never—he's proud of being friend to a healthy, natural creature, though. Lots of women don't seem to realize that point."

He reaches for a tray of eye shadow. "Look," he says, "see this delicate, almost ethereal violet color? The purest type of blond actually has a certain aura of violet about her. That's why I use this violet eye shadow for her. And for her I insist on a pink pearl powder and a light coral rouge.

"The medium blond has a tinge of olive brown in her general color aura. She needs a very delicate brown tint for the eye shadow, lots of peach tone in her face powder and a deep coral for the rouge.

UNDERLYING CAUSES OF WAR REVEALED IN STATEMENT ON POSITION OF CHURCH ON WAR

The article appearing in Tuesday's issue of The Register concerning Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt's suggestion for a crusade by women against war, has resulted in much comment, according to reports reaching The Register, some o fwhich referred to a recent sermon by Dr. George A. Warmer, pastor of the First M. E. church, on the topic "The Church Thinks About War."

The comments on this sermon were such that Dr. Warmer was prevailed upon to supply The Register with a copy, so that it might be printed. It follows:

"THE CHURCH THINKS ABOUT WAR"

By Dr. George A. Warmer

When one deals with the war question from the Biblical standpoint, he must distinguish between the viewpoint of the Old Testament and the New. In the former war is commanded of God; in the later it is renounced. The Old Testament is a record of a developing religious consciousness on the part of a people with a peculiar bent for religious realism. The New Testament is a document of human rights. He, who is its center, is announced as the Prince of Peace. He fulfilled the prophecy. His teaching and His death verify the attitudes He calls upon His followers to assume, to incarnate.

Christians must interpret the Bible in the light of Christ. It is not Christ in the light of the teachings of Moses, Joshua, Isaiah, Peter or Paul; it is the exact reverse. And there is a whole diameter of difference in the viewpoint.

With this principle of interpretation in mind, let us reverently but earnestly appreach the subject in hand. Maybe we can arrive at reasonable conclusions by raising four pertinent questions.

First, which is primary in the U. S. A, the call of Congress or the demands of conscience?

Conscience Governs

The U S. was born in a revolt in the interest of conscience. The constitution was written in the atmosphere of prayer. Jefferson, who was out of the country when the constitution was penned, demanded on his return the attachment thereto of the first admendments, which have come to be known as the bill of rights. The first among these reads: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

Every amendment to this great document has had a moral urge for its adoption, save the twenty-first, which has just been ratified, and it was conceived and propagated in the backwash of the World's greatest war.

We are allowing European history to be rewritten on American soil. Following the Napoleonic Wars, peace societies developed in France and became strong. They threatened to unhorse the military. But, by a process of exaltation of the state by propaganda, and the introduction of the idea of foreign intrigue, the peace societies grew weary and ceased to function. Now all historians know that that is the pivot on which France turned to face front to 1914.

The McIntosh case, in which the Supreme court ruled by a vote of 5 to 4 against granting this high-minded, scholarly professor of Yale university the privilege of naturalization, is a case in point for today and for us. The issue involved was the hight of conscience.

By contrast the list of those whom the court naturalized, while they denied McIntosh, is rather revealing. Whoever has eyes to see let him see. A rather important question might be what about the call of Congress when it relates to the matter of income taxes? Applicable to the answer to this question is a recent remark by Mr. Cecil De Mille when he said, "We have substituted legality for integrity."

The call of conscience is what made our great nation and alone can preserve it.

Thinking War

Second, can we effectively plan peace while we persistently think war?

It has become a truism in church circles that the shortest road to the millenium is through the heart of the child. Equally the way to war is over the same pathway.

In 1920 the R. O. T. C. was organized in the great universities of America, both church and state. Most of the church schools have either abandoned the plan or made it volunteer in its operation. Through the R. O. T. C., 1,349,319 youths have received military instruction. Preparedness advocates say it is necessary. They must forget that in 1913 the regular army in the U. S. consisted of 92,035 men, including 4655 officers. Yet in the 18 months between April, 1917, and November, 1918, the U. S. raised a force of nearly 4,000,000 men and transported more than 2,000,000 of them overseas.

There are those who urge that the land grant universities cannot do otherwise than demand military training. But we understand that Attorney General Mitchell rendered an opinion to the effect that, if the said schools offered the courses on an elective basis, they would satisfy all the involved requirements of their contracts.

The universities are not compelled to organize the girls on their campuses into auxiliary military groups. No one has yet advocated sending women into the trenches. The only rational conclusions from such procedure is that militarism demands the thinking of war by youth. The organized girls' groups makes it possible for all the big university-controlled-social-functions to be military balls, which add the glamor and finesee to reduce the resistance to the grind of the program.

The nations have declared in the Pact of Paris, better known as the Kellogg Treaty:

Peace Treaty

1. Treaty for Renunciation of War (Pact of Paris), August 27, 1928.

"Article I. The High Contracting Parties solemnly declare in the names of their respective peoples that they condemn recourse to war for the solution of international controversies, and renounce it as an instrument of national policy in their relations with one another.

"Article II. The High Contracting Parties agree that the settlement or the solution of all disputes or conflicts of whatever nature or of whatever origin they may be, which may arise among them, shall never be sought except by pacific means."

2. Countries in respect of which the Pact of Paris is in force.

Signatory countries: Australia, Belgium, Canada, Czechoslovakia, France, Germany, Great Britain, India, Irish Free State, Italy, Japan, New Zealand, Poland, Union of Southern Africa, United States of America.

Adhering countries: Afghanistan, Albania, Austria, Bulgaria, Chile, China, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, Estonia, Ethiopia, Finland, Free City of Danzig, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Jejaz and Nejd, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, Irsq, Latvia, Liveria, Lithmania, Luxembourg, Mexico, Netherlands, Nicaragua, Norway, Panama, Paraguay, Persia, Peru, Portugal, Roumania, Russia, Siam, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Venezuela, Jugoslavia.

"The countries which were invited to adhere but have not yet adhered are Argentine, Bolivia, Brazil, El Salvador and Uruguay. Of these, Bolivia, El Salvador and Uruguay have expressed an intention to adhere."

Stand of Churches

"We hope that adoption of that proposal (the Peace Pact of Paris) will be one more advanced step along the pathway of peace among nations. We believe that our country, powerful and isolated, should be willing to lead others along this pathway."—Five Years Meeting of Friends.

"It is our conviction that, when such vast sums are being spent in preparation for possible war, the government should stand ready to spend liberal sums in the cultivation of peace, in the holding of Disarmament Conferences, in the maintenance of a World Court and in the prosecution of other enterprises having the same end in view."—Moravian Church in America, Northern Province.

"The agencies of our church shall not be used in preparation for war; they shall be used in preparation for peace."—Methodist Episcopal Church.

"We believe that war is wrong, being contrary to the principles of the Prince of Peace."—Northern Baptist Convention.

"As a Christian church, we, too, 'renounce war as an instrument of national policy' and set ourselves to create the will to peace."—Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.

"We affirm our belief that war as a method of settling international disputes is incompatible with the teaching and example of our Lord Jesus Christ."—Disciples of Christ.

"We urge our churches and ministers by every possible means to bring public opinion to bear on this important matter (disarmament) and to induce our government to lead the way by drastic reduction in every kind of armament on land and sea and in the air."—Congregational and Christian Churches.

"We declare that we will not, as a Christian church, ever again bless or sanction war."—Evangelical Synod.

"The United Lutheran Church in America hereby declares its profound gratitude to Almighty God for every advance which is being made toward the realization of permanent peace among the nations of the earth."—United Lutheran Church in America.

"It is our profound conviction that all Christians, wherever located, are under the most solemn obligations to promote and foster the spirit of international goodwill and universal brotherhood."—Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

"We reaffirm our conviction that the nations of the world must adopt a peace system."—Protestant Episcopal Church.

"We feel it to be a primary duty of the Christian Church to accept its inherent responsibility for the proclamation of this (peace) ideal to the end that war may be abolished and co-operation and good-will may prevail."—Reformed Church in America.

"The Great War demonstrated as never before the terrible reality of the statement that 'War Is Hell.'"—United Presbyterian Church.

"We rejoice in whatever progress has been made in the last decade toward the promotion of peace among the nations of the earth."—Methodist Protestant Church.

"While a nation 'has a duty to survive,' yet its first duty is to seek justice, love, mercy, and walk humbly before God.'

"Our nation has by the Constitution and by legislative enactment even in times of ware safeguarded religious liberty, thus recognizing that a citizen's first duty is to God."—Seventh Day Baptist Churches.

Compulsory Training

The Methodist church is now peculiarly interested in this compulsory military training proposition, for two of its young men have, for conscience reasons, refused to participate, and have, therefore, been dismissed from the classrooms at U. C. L. A.

These young men believed the church was their source of support and strength in this issue, since the last General Conference requested for Methodist young people the same rights as have been granted to the young of the Friends denomination, through the years—the righ of conscientious objection in time of war. What less can we do?

To think war is the surest way to arrive at that goal. To think peace will make planning for it easy and arriving at it necessary.

Third, do human rights and the principle of love have any adequate chance for application in an atmosphere of hate? Every war has had a backwash that resulted in a moral breakdown, the major impact of which has been highly destructive of the rights of the common man. This moral breakdown manifested itself in the form of profiteering early in the period of the World War. "Before the profits of armament firms were limited in Britain, they exploited the nation shamelessly. Dr. Addison, who was minister of munitions, has given instances of prices being charged which represented dividends of over 100 per cent, and Mr. Lloyd George, war-time prime minister, stated that government action saved the country £440,000,000 (approximately $1,760,000,000) from overcharging by the armament firms."

"The American war providers were as bad. The committees on war expenditures set up by the senate in 1921 gave instances of copper companies making profits of 60, 150 and even 300 per cent. The United States Steel corporation made profits amounting to 50 per cent."

The Dearborn Independent ran a series of articles in 1920 which later appeared in a book under the title "The International Jew," but was suppressed, that is interesting reading. There is much illumination on the subject of how wars are financed.

The Manchester Guardian of December 14, 1931, refers to a speech by Paul Faure, ex-M. P. for the Creusot division, in which he says:

"The Hungarian government obtained a loan from the armament firm of Schneider at Creusot. (This loan was unknown untilit was discovered the other day by the finance committeeof the chamber.) When Schneider's asked to be repaid the Hungarian government could not product the money. Thereupon the French government lent the Hungarian government the amount necessary to repay the Schneider firm. This money was transmitted to Hungary by the Union Parisienne, in which the Schneider firm holds a controlling interest."

How does the parallel read? It reads like this:

Illustrates Incident

"The Bethlehem Steel Corporation makes a loan to the British government of $100,000,000. When the Bethlehem Steel Corporation asks for its money back, the British government refuses to pay. Whereupon the American government lends the British government $100,000,000 to repay the Bethlehem Steel company, and transmits this money to England, not by the Federal Reserve Bank but by a bank which Bethlehem Steel controls."—Cry Havoc, Nichols, page 45.)

In an article i the Daily Herald of Paris Barthe wrote, in March 31, 1933:

"Barthe explained to a hushed House how the Comite des Forges wilfully limited the development of the production of iron and steel before 1014, so that when the war came it might exploit the scarcity with profit. In this way Germany was favored and France imperilled.

"'I affirm,' he added, 'that certain members of the Comite des Forges furnished raw material to Germany during the war and that in order to conceal the affair the Comite hindered the investigation of justice.

'I affirm that either through the international solidarity of the great metallurgical industry or in order to safeguard private interests an order was given to our military chiefs not to bombard the Briey Valley factories, which were operated by the enemy during the war.

"Immune from attack, the Briey region furnished material for guns which slaughtered French and British troops. Germany would have capitulated in 1915, its ironmasters have since admitted, if Briey had been bombarded."—Cry Havoc-Nichols, pages 35 and 36.

Lynching and War

One is almost forced to the conclusion that what lynching is to a community, a county or a state, that war is on an international scale.

The remedy is an upbuilding of confidence in judicial procedure. But, sad to relate, one of the apparent reasons why it is so hard to move the U. S. A. toward civil adjudication of international disputes is the apparent lack of faith in the procedure of the courts. But, better a hundred years of readjusting court action that justice may more speedily be meted out, than one act of mob violence such as seems to be in vogue in California these days.

The courts do not inspire too great confidence with their seemingly needless delays, their standing on the supposed perrogations of contempt when high-minded and sincere groups attempt to achieve justice through petition, their procedure in the important matter of naturalization of citizens, their subordination to the practice of scheming and unscrupulous practitioners, and the apparent breakdown of the jury system, but surely these are not insurmountable barriers.

Fourth. Can the Jesus Way of life be lived, if life is considered to be cheap, nothing but cannon fodder?

It is trite to say that the supreme emphasis of Jesus is that of the inherent worth of man as man. All military tactics and procedure is in direct contradistinction to this emphasis. Tanks, long range guns, high explosives, hand grenades, numerous varieties of gas, all for the purpose of destroying life, this is war. Yet Jesus said, "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own life?"

DuPonts and War

Recently Mrs. A. P. Entenza, speaking from a forum platform in this city, said that the National Economy Act, in so far as it affected the pension and bonus to soldiers, was inspired by the DuPonts and their affiliates. It is well known that the DuPonts are the powder kings of America. While the money went for pensions they received little benefit from the business viewpoint. The money went to clothe, house and feed ex-soldiers, their widows and orphans. To expand the navy and army program and curtail pensions meant profits.

The published statements concerning the activity of the DuPonts in connection with the Association Against Prohibition would not lead one to believe that they were moved by the desire to safeguard and develop human life. They advocated repeal of prohibition and contributed large sums for propaganda purposes. Saving in taxes seems more important than conserving life. The papers have repeatedly carried the information that these leaders have said that repeal would save them $10,000,000 in income taxes.

One cannot help but wonder how much the expanded army and navy program will mean to them in profits. In the "Do You Know" column of Zion's Herald for May 24, 1933, the following facts are presented:

DO YOU KNOW—

1. That 9,998,771 soldiers were killed or died in the World War? And that another 20,297,551 were wounded?

2. That in 1918 the daily cost of war was $224,000,000?

3. That the nations are this year spending more than $10,000,000 a day for war preparations?

4. That the United States expends approximately $83,333 an hour, or $2,000,000 each day, on its army and navy?

5. That the world's expenditures for armaments for one year would pay the expenses of the League of Nations, including the World Court and the International Labor Office, for 600 years?

6. That only $545,000,000 out of a total United States budget of $3,500,000,000 will be expended on civil functions of government during the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1933? And that virtually all of this $545,000,000 will consist of taxes collected on sales of cigars, cigarets and miscellaneous fees, while all income taxes and revenue from imports and other sources go to pay for past and future wars?

7. That the cost of the battleship "Colorado" was $27,000,000? And that this sum is only $3,000,000 less than the total endowment which Johns Hopkins university has accumulated since it was founded in 1876?

Shows Self-Interest

Mr. Hugh Dalton, in the House of Commons, was speaking on the Naval Estimates, and was explaining how many Australian and British troops had been mowed down by British guns in the Dardanelles. In a moving passage, he cried:

"British armament firms have been supplying the Turkish artillery with shells which were fired into the Australian, New Zealand and British troops as they were scrambling up Anzac Cove and Cape Helles. Did it matter to the directors of these armament firms, so long as they did business and expanded the defense expenditure of Turkey, that their weapons mashed up into bloody pulp all the morning glory that was the flower of Anzac, the youth of Australia and New Zealand, yes, and the youth of our own country?"

Apparently it did not matter then, and it does not matter now. Neither to the armament firms, nor to the governments. For the license is virtually a matter of form. A matter of form! It is a delicate way of describing the export of death.

Moreover, there appears to be no possibility of making public the number of licenses granted, nor of obtaining particulars as to the countries to which the armaments are going. The League of Nations tried to enforce publicity in this matter, without success. There was a special commission, quite recently, which inquired as to the possibility of forcing governments to publish information as to the activities of their armament factories, by supplying full details, every quarter, to the secretary-general of the League.

The British delegate gave the show away when, in response to this suggestion, he said:

"We have no power to compel the manufacturers to give this information, and very few governments would have the courage to make them do so."—(Cry Havoc-Nichols, pages 52 and 53.)

The failure of disarmament is not difficult to assess.

"The rest of this chapter is simply and solely concerned to rub in the lesson that armament firms are one of the world's greatest menaces to peace." Let us note the Shearer case.

Prevents Action

Mr. Shearer was an American gentleman who was described as a "publicist"—a term that frequently covers a multitude of sins. In 1929 he sued the three largest shipbuilding corporations in America—

The Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation.

The American Brown Boveri Corporation.

For the trifling sum of $255,655.

This sum he claimed as the balance due to him for his services in preventing any effective disarmament resulting from the Naval Conference in Geneva in 1927.

He admitted that he had already received $51,230.

He claimed the remainder as a reward for his skill in influencing orders for battleships which would never have been built if the Disarmament Conference had proved successful.

In September, 1929, President Hoover instructed the attorney general to make an inquiry, and shortly afterwards Eugene Grace, who was then president of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, wrote to the President and explained that Mr. Shearer had been employed as an "observer," at a fee of $25,000.

An"observer."

Which raises the immediate question, what did Mr. Shearer "observe" that was so very valuable to this armament firm? He did not go there to write sonnets about the lake. He did not go there to paint pen pictures of the passing shadows that flitted over the eyes of Lord Cecil. His "observations" were not valuable for any literary reason. They were valuable to the admitted extent of $25,000—for another reason. That reason has been conceniently summarized in Mr. Charles A. Beard's remarkable book, "The Navy: Defense or Portent," which did not cause nearly such a stir in America as it deserved:

How He Worked

(1) For the employment of an "observer" at the Geneva Arms Conference, who was notoriously engaged in violent anti-British propaganda, in doing his best to defeat arms limitation, in entertaining naval officers and American newspaper correspondends, in stimulating the marine industry, both for navy and the marchant marine (to use his own words, Sen. Doc., p. 459), in sending out literature designed to discredit American advocates of peace, and in inserting his "publicity" in reputable American newspapers under the guise of news (ibid., p. 542).

(2) For the purpose of influencing federal legislation by maintaining a lobby in Washington in support of cruiser and merchant marine bills pending in Congress.

(3) For the preparation of political articles to be published in newspapers and magazines.

(4) For lectures before patriotic societies and other civic bodies.

(5) For the employment of "experts" and other workers, whose exact activities are unknown.

It may therefore be stated, without exaggeration, that the verb, "to observe," to the vocabulary of American armament manufacturers has a peculiarly elastic conjugation.—(Cry Havoc,Nichols, pages 46-50.)

In the Walter Lippman editorial, in the Los Angeles Times for December 1, this widely read writer advocates the control of liquor by putting it under government control and eliminating all profit from its manufacture and sale. This would eliminate the tremendous advertising drive to exploit the weaknesses of frail humanity and stop the pressure for securing licenses for its sale.

If this is good practice in liquor control, why would it not also be applicable to the manufacture of munitions with equally beneficial results?

The Peace Commission of the Methodist Church is advocating this plan. When it is human life vs. profit, human life has my vote.

MARTIN WORKING ON GIANT OCEAN PLANES

Word was received here today by C. Y. Martin, 810 Minter street, to the effect that his son, Glenn L. Martin, well known aviator and aircraft designer, now operating an airplane factory in Baltimore, Md., has recently completed delivery of 48 huge bombing planes to the United States government.

The letter received by the elder Martin stated that his son is now engaged in the construction of a new type of seaplane, capable of carrying 50 passengers and express freight, which, the letter adds, is to be used by the Transcontinental Air Transport company in service between North and South American ports in connection with the Grace Steamship company's service.

Officers Chosen By Altar Society

NEWPORT BEACH, Dec. 15.—Mrs. W. F. Strain was elected to the presidency of the Altar society of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel when the members met in the Connelly home on Balboa Island recently. Mrs. William Neville, of Costa Mesa, was made vice president, and Mrs. Harry Hyde, of Balboa, was elected secretary-treasurer.

The next regular meeting of the society will be held in the home of Mrs. Strain. At that time final arrangements will be made for a dance to be given by the organization in January.

LONGEST DISTANCE BETWEEN 2 POINTS

"I've got the 51-Point habit because I found out that the longest distance between two points is through the repair shop." This statement was made by one of our salesman customers who travels over 3,000 miles a month. But there is a thought in it for every motorist. A tank of Super-Shell and a Shell 51-Point Upkeep job means fast, economical, safe motoring between any given points. Try that combination.

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES

If you have roaring, buzzing noises in your ears, are getting hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal trouble of the ears, is hard of hearing or has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

UNDERLYING CAUSES OF WAR REVEALED IN STATEMENT ON POSITION OF CHURCH ON WAR

The article appearing in Tuesday's issue of The Register concerning Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt's suggestion for a crusade by women against war, has resulted in much comment, according to reports reaching The Register, some o fwhich referred to a recent sermon by Dr. George A. Warmer, pastor of the First M. E. church, on the topic "The Church Thinks About War."

The comments on this sermon were such that Dr. Warmer was prevailed upon to supply The Register with a copy, so that it might be printed. It follows:

"THE CHURCH THINKS ABOUT WAR"

By Dr. George A. Warmer

When one deals with the war question from the Biblical standpoint, he must distinguish between the viewpoint of the Old Testament and the New. In the former war is commanded of God; in the later it is renounced. The Old Testament is a record of a developing religious consciousness on the part of a people with a peculiar bent for religious realism. The New Testament is a document of human rights. He, who is its center, is announced as the Prince of Peace. He fulfilled the prophecy. His teaching and His death verify the attitudes He calls upon His followers to assume, to incarnate.

Christians must interpret the Bible in the light of Christ. It is not Christ in the light of the teachings of Moses, Joshua, Isaiah, Peter or Paul; it is the exact reverse. And there is a whole diameter of difference in the viewpoint.

With this principle of interpretation in mind, let us reverently but earnestly appreach the subject in hand. Maybe we can arrive at reasonable conclusions by raising four pertinent questions.

First, which is primary in the U. S. A, the call of Congress or the demands of conscience?

Conscience Governs

The U S. was born in a revolt in the interest of conscience. The constitution was written in the atmosphere of prayer. Jefferson, who was out of the country when the constitution was penned, demanded on his return the attachment thereto of the first admendments, which have come to be known as the bill of rights. The first among these reads: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

Every amendment to this great document has had a moral urge for its adoption, save the twenty-first, which has just been ratified, and it was conceived and propagated in the backwash of the World's greatest war.

We are allowing European history to be rewritten on American soil. Following the Napoleonic Wars, peace societies developed in France and became strong. They threatened to unhorse the military. But, by a process of exaltation of the state by propaganda, and the introduction of the idea of foreign intrigue, the peace societies grew weary and ceased to function. Now all historians know that that is the pivot on which France turned to face front to 1914.

The McIntosh case, in which the Supreme court ruled by a vote of 5 to 4 against granting this high-minded, scholarly professor of Yale university the privilege of naturalization, is a case in point for today and for us. The issue involved was the hight of conscience.

By contrast the list of those whom the court naturalized, while they denied McIntosh, is rather revealing. Whoever has eyes to see let him see. A rather important question might be what about the call of Congress when it relates to the matter of income taxes? Applicable to the answer to this question is a recent remark by Mr. Cecil De Mille when he said, "We have substituted legality for integrity."

The call of conscience is what made our great nation and alone can preserve it.

Thinking War

Second, can we effectively plan peace while we persistently think war?

It has become a truism in church circles that the shortest road to the millenium is through the heart of the child. Equally the way to war is over the same pathway.

In 1920 the R. O. T. C. was organized in the great universities of America, both church and state. Most of the church schools have either abandoned the plan or made it volunteer in its operation. Through the R. O. T. C., 1,349,319 youths have received military instruction. Preparedness advocates say it is necessary. They must forget that in 1913 the regular army in the U. S. consisted of 92,035 men, including 4655 officers. Yet in the 18 months between April, 1917, and November, 1918, the U. S. raised a force of nearly 4,000,000 men and transported more than 2,000,000 of them overseas.

There are those who urge that the land grant universities cannot do otherwise than demand military training. But we understand that Attorney General Mitchell rendered an opinion to the effect that, if the said schools offered the courses on an elective basis, they would satisfy all the involved requirements of their contracts.

The universities are not compelled to organize the girls on their campuses into auxiliary military groups. No one has yet advocated sending women into the trenches. The only rational conclusions from such procedure is that militarism demands the thinking of war by youth. The organized girls' groups makes it possible for all the big university-controlled-social-functions to be military balls, which add the glamor and finesee to reduce the resistance to the grind of the program.

The nations have declared in the Pact of Paris, better known as the Kellogg Treaty:

Peace Treaty

1. Treaty for Renunciation of War (Pact of Paris), August 27, 1928.

"Article I. The High Contracting Parties solemnly declare in the names of their respective peoples that they condemn recourse to war for the solution of international controversies, and renounce it as an instrument of national policy in their relations with one another.

"Article II. The High Contracting Parties agree that the settlement or the solution of all disputes or conflicts of whatever nature or of whatever origin they may be, which may arise among them, shall never be sought except by pacific means."

2. Countries in respect of which the Pact of Paris is in force.

Signatory countries: Australia, Belgium, Canada, Czechoslovakia, France, Germany, Great Britain, India, Irish Free State, Italy, Japan, New Zealand, Poland, Union of Southern Africa, United States of America.

Adhering countries: Afghanistan, Albania, Austria, Bulgaria, Chile, China, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Egypt, Estonia, Ethiopia, Finland, Free City of Danzig, Greece, Guatemala, Haiti, Jejaz and Nejd, Honduras, Hungary, Iceland, Irsq, Latvia, Liveria, Lithmania, Luxembourg, Mexico, Netherlands, Nicaragua, Norway, Panama, Paraguay, Persia, Peru, Portugal, Roumania, Russia, Siam, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Venezuela, Jugoslavia.

"The countries which were invited to adhere but have not yet adhered are Argentine, Bolivia, Brazil, El Salvador and Uruguay. Of these, Bolivia, El Salvador and Uruguay have expressed an intention to adhere."

Stand of Churches

"We hope that adoption of that proposal (the Peace Pact of Paris) will be one more advanced step along the pathway of peace among nations. We believe that our country, powerful and isolated, should be willing to lead others along this pathway."—Five Years Meeting of Friends.

"It is our conviction that, when such vast sums are being spent in preparation for possible war, the government should stand ready to spend liberal sums in the cultivation of peace, in the holding of Disarmament Conferences, in the maintenance of a World Court and in the prosecution of other enterprises having the same end in view."—Moravian Church in America, Northern Province.

"The agencies of our church shall not be used in preparation for war; they shall be used in preparation for peace."—Methodist Episcopal Church.

"We believe that war is wrong, being contrary to the principles of the Prince of Peace."—Northern Baptist Convention.

"As a Christian church, we, too, 'renounce war as an instrument of national policy' and set ourselves to create the will to peace."—Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.

"We affirm our belief that war as a method of settling international disputes is incompatible with the teaching and example of our Lord Jesus Christ."—Disciples of Christ.

"We urge our churches and ministers by every possible means to bring public opinion to bear on this important matter (disarmament) and to induce our government to lead the way by drastic reduction in every kind of armament on land and sea and in the air."—Congregational and Christian Churches.

"We declare that we will not, as a Christian church, ever again bless or sanction war."—Evangelical Synod.

"The United Lutheran Church in America hereby declares its profound gratitude to Almighty God for every advance which is being made toward the realization of permanent peace among the nations of the earth."—United Lutheran Church in America.

"It is our profound conviction that all Christians, wherever located, are under the most solemn obligations to promote and foster the spirit of international goodwill and universal brotherhood."—Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

"We reaffirm our conviction that the nations of the world must adopt a peace system."—Protestant Episcopal Church.

"We feel it to be a primary duty of the Christian Church to accept its inherent responsibility for the proclamation of this (peace) ideal to the end that war may be abolished and co-operation and good-will may prevail."—Reformed Church in America.

"The Great War demonstrated as never before the terrible reality of the statement that 'War Is Hell.'"—United Presbyterian Church.

"We rejoice in whatever progress has been made in the last decade toward the promotion of peace among the nations of the earth."—Methodist Protestant Church.

"While a nation 'has a duty to survive,' yet its first duty is to seek justice, love, mercy, and walk humbly before God.'

"Our nation has by the Constitution and by legislative enactment even in times of ware safeguarded religious liberty, thus recognizing that a citizen's first duty is to God."—Seventh Day Baptist Churches.

Compulsory Training

The Methodist church is now peculiarly interested in this compulsory military training proposition, for two of its young men have, for conscience reasons, refused to participate, and have, therefore, been dismissed from the classrooms at U. C. L. A.

These young men believed the church was their source of support and strength in this issue, since the last General Conference requested for Methodist young people the same rights as have been granted to the young of the Friends denomination, through the years—the righ of conscientious objection in time of war. What less can we do?

To think war is the surest way to arrive at that goal. To think peace will make planning for it easy and arriving at it necessary.

Third, do human rights and the principle of love have any adequate chance for application in an atmosphere of hate? Every war has had a backwash that resulted in a moral breakdown, the major impact of which has been highly destructive of the rights of the common man. This moral breakdown manifested itself in the form of profiteering early in the period of the World War. "Before the profits of armament firms were limited in Britain, they exploited the nation shamelessly. Dr. Addison, who was minister of munitions, has given instances of prices being charged which represented dividends of over 100 per cent, and Mr. Lloyd George, war-time prime minister, stated that government action saved the country £440,000,000 (approximately $1,760,000,000) from overcharging by the armament firms."

"The American war providers were as bad. The committees on war expenditures set up by the senate in 1921 gave instances of copper companies making profits of 60, 150 and even 300 per cent. The United States Steel corporation made profits amounting to 50 per cent."

The Dearborn Independent ran a series of articles in 1920 which later appeared in a book under the title "The International Jew," but was suppressed, that is interesting reading. There is much illumination on the subject of how wars are financed.

The Manchester Guardian of December 14, 1931, refers to a speech by Paul Faure, ex-M. P. for the Creusot division, in which he says:

"The Hungarian government obtained a loan from the armament firm of Schneider at Creusot. (This loan was unknown untilit was discovered the other day by the finance committeeof the chamber.) When Schneider's asked to be repaid the Hungarian government could not product the money. Thereupon the French government lent the Hungarian government the amount necessary to repay the Schneider firm. This money was transmitted to Hungary by the Union Parisienne, in which the Schneider firm holds a controlling interest."

How does the parallel read? It reads like this:

Illustrates Incident

"The Bethlehem Steel Corporation makes a loan to the British government of $100,000,000. When the Bethlehem Steel Corporation asks for its money back, the British government refuses to pay. Whereupon the American government lends the British government $100,000,000 to repay the Bethlehem Steel company, and transmits this money to England, not by the Federal Reserve Bank but by a bank which Bethlehem Steel controls."—Cry Havoc, Nichols, page 45.)

In an article i the Daily Herald of Paris Barthe wrote, in March 31, 1933:

"Barthe explained to a hushed House how the Comite des Forges wilfully limited the development of the production of iron and steel before 1014, so that when the war came it might exploit the scarcity with profit. In this way Germany was favored and France imperilled.

"'I affirm,' he added, 'that certain members of the Comite des Forges furnished raw material to Germany during the war and that in order to conceal the affair the Comite hindered the investigation of justice.

'I affirm that either through the international solidarity of the great metallurgical industry or in order to safeguard private interests an order was given to our military chiefs not to bombard the Briey Valley factories, which were operated by the enemy during the war.

"Immune from attack, the Briey region furnished material for guns which slaughtered French and British troops. Germany would have capitulated in 1915, its ironmasters have since admitted, if Briey had been bombarded."—Cry Havoc-Nichols, pages 35 and 36.

Lynching and War

One is almost forced to the conclusion that what lynching is to a community, a county or a state, that war is on an international scale.

The remedy is an upbuilding of confidence in judicial procedure. But, sad to relate, one of the apparent reasons why it is so hard to move the U. S. A. toward civil adjudication of international disputes is the apparent lack of faith in the procedure of the courts. But, better a hundred years of readjusting court action that justice may more speedily be meted out, than one act of mob violence such as seems to be in vogue in California these days.

The courts do not inspire too great confidence with their seemingly needless delays, their standing on the supposed perrogations of contempt when high-minded and sincere groups attempt to achieve justice through petition, their procedure in the important matter of naturalization of citizens, their subordination to the practice of scheming and unscrupulous practitioners, and the apparent breakdown of the jury system, but surely these are not insurmountable barriers.

Fourth. Can the Jesus Way of life be lived, if life is considered to be cheap, nothing but cannon fodder?

It is trite to say that the supreme emphasis of Jesus is that of the inherent worth of man as man. All military tactics and procedure is in direct contradistinction to this emphasis. Tanks, long range guns, high explosives, hand grenades, numerous varieties of gas, all for the purpose of destroying life, this is war. Yet Jesus said, "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own life?"

DuPonts and War

Recently Mrs. A. P. Entenza, speaking from a forum platform in this city, said that the National Economy Act, in so far as it affected the pension and bonus to soldiers, was inspired by the DuPonts and their affiliates. It is well known that the DuPonts are the powder kings of America. While the money went for pensions they received little benefit from the business viewpoint. The money went to clothe, house and feed ex-soldiers, their widows and orphans. To expand the navy and army program and curtail pensions meant profits.

The published statements concerning the activity of the DuPonts in connection with the Association Against Prohibition would not lead one to believe that they were moved by the desire to safeguard and develop human life. They advocated repeal of prohibition and contributed large sums for propaganda purposes. Saving in taxes seems more important than conserving life. The papers have repeatedly carried the information that these leaders have said that repeal would save them $10,000,000 in income taxes.

One cannot help but wonder how much the expanded army and navy program will mean to them in profits. In the "Do You Know" column of Zion's Herald for May 24, 1933, the following facts are presented:

DO YOU KNOW—

1. That 9,998,771 soldiers were killed or died in the World War? And that another 20,297,551 were wounded?

2. That in 1913 the daily cost of war was $224,000,000?

3. That the nations are this year spending more than $10,000,000 a day for war preparations?

4. That the United States expends approximately $83,333 an hour, or $2,000,000 each day, on its army and navy?

5. That the world's expenditures for armaments for one year would pay the expenses of the League of Nations, including the World Court and the International Labor Office, for 600 years?

6. That only $545,000,000 out of a total United States budget of $3,500,000,000 will be expended on civil functions of government during the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1933? And that virtually all of this $545,000,000 will consist of taxes collected on sales of cigars, cigarets and miscellaneous fees, while all income taxes and revenue from imports and other sources go to pay for past and future wars?

7. That the cost of the battleship "Colorado" was $27,000,000? And that this sum is only $3,000,000 less than the total endowment which Johns Hopkins university has accumulated since it was founded in 1876?

Shows Self-Interest

Mr. Hugh Dalton, in the House of Commons, was speaking on the Naval Estimates, and was explaining how many Australian and British troops had been mowed down by British guns in the Dardanelles. In a moving passage, he cried:

"British armament firms have been supplying the Turkish artillery with shells which were fired into the Australian, New Zealand and British troops as they were scrambling up Anzac Cove and Cape Helles. Did it matter to the directors of these armament firms, so long as they did business and expanded the defense expenditure of Turkey, that their weapons mashed up into bloody pulp all the morning glory that was the flower of Anzac, the youth of Australia and New Zealand, yes, and the youth of our own country?"

Apparently it did not matter then, and it does not matter now. Neither to the armament firms, nor to the governments. For the license is virtually a matter of form. A matter of form! It is a delicate way of describing the export of death.

Moreover, there appears to be no possibility of making public the number of licenses granted, nor of obtaining particulars as to the countries to which the armaments are going. The League of Nations tried to enforce publicity in this matter, without success. There was a special commission, quite recently, which inquired as to the possibility of forcing governments to publish information as to the activities of their armament factories, by supplying full details, every quarter, to the secretary-general of the League.

The British delegate gave the show away when, in response to this suggestion, he said:

"We have no power to compel the manufacturers to give this information, and very few governments would have the courage to make them do so."—(Cry Havoc-Nichols, pages 52 and 53.)

The failure of disarmament is not difficult to assess.

"The rest of this chapter is simply and solely concerned to rub in the lesson that armament firms are one of the world's greatest menaces to peace." Let us note the Shearer case.

Prevents Action

Mr. Shearer was an American gentleman who was described as a "publicist"—a term that frequently covers a multitude of sins. In 1929 he sued the three largest shipbuilding corporations in America—

The Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation.

For the trifling sum of $255,655.

This sum he claimed as the balance due to him for his services in preventing any effective disarmament resulting from the Naval Conference in Geneva in 1927.

He admitted that he had already received $51,230.

He claimed the remainder as a reward for his skill in influencing orders for battleships which would never have been built if the Disarmament Conference had proved succesful.

In September, 1929, President Hoover instructed the attorney general to make an inquiry, and shortly afterwards Eugene Grace, who was then president of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, wrote to the President and explained that Mr. Shearer had been employed as an "observer," at a fee of $25,000.

An"observer."

Which raises the immediate question, what did Mr. Shearer "observe" that was so very valuable to this armament firm? He did not go there to write sonnets about the lake. He did not go there to paint pen pictures of the passing shadows that flitted over the eyes of Lord Cecil. His "observations" were not valuable for any literary reason. They were valuable to the admitted extent of $25,000—for another reason. That reason has been conceniently summarized in Mr. Charles A. Beard's remarkable book, "The Navy: Defense or Portent," which did not cause nearly such a stir in America as it deserved:

How He Worked

(1) For the employment of an "observer" at the Geneva Arms Conference, who was notoriously engaged in violent anti-British propaganda, in doing his best to defeat arms limitation, in entertaining naval officers and American newspaper correspondends, in stimulating the marine industry, both for navy and the marchant marine (to use his own words, Sen. Doc., p. 450), in sending out literature designed to discredit American advocates of peace, and in inserting his "publicity" in reputable American newspapers under the guise of news (ibid., p. 542).

(2) For the purpose of influencing federal legislation by maintaining a lobby in Washington in support of cruiser and merchant marine bills pending in Congress.

(3) For the preparation of political articles to be published in newspapers and magazines.

(4) For lectures before patriotic societies and other civic bodies.

(5) For the employment of "experts" and other workers, whose exact activities are unknown.

It may therefore be stated, without exaggeration, that the verb, "to observe," to the vocabulary of American armament manufacturers has a peculiarly elastic conjugation.—(Cry Havoc,Nichols, pages 46-50.)

In the Walter Lippman editorial, in the Los Angeles Times for December 1, this widely read writer advocates the control of liquor by putting it under government control and eliminating all profit from its manufacture and sale. This would eliminate the tremendous advertising drive to exploit the weaknesses of frail humanity and stop the pressure for securing licenses for its sale.

If this is good practice in liquor control, why would it not also be applicable to the manufacture of munitions with equally beneficial results?

The Peace Commission of the Methodist Church is advocating this plan. When it is human life vs. profit, human life has my vote.

MARTIN WORKING ON GIANT OCEAN PLANES

Word was received here today by C. Y. Martin, 810 Minter street, to the effect that his son, Glenn L. Martin, well known aviator and aircraft designer, now operating an airplane factory in Baltimore, Md., has recently completed delivery of 48 huge bombing planes to the United States government.

The letter received by the elder Martin stated that his son is now engaged in the construction of a new type of seaplane, capable of carrying 50 passengers and express freight, which, the letter adds, is to be used by the Transcontinental Air Transport company in service between North and South American ports in connection with the Grace Steamship company's service.

Officers Chosen By Altar Society

NEWPORT BEACH, Dec. 15.—Mrs. W. F. Strain was elected to the presidency of the Altar society of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel when the members met in the Connelly home on Balboa Island recently. Mrs. William Neville, of Costa Mesa, was made vice president, and Mrs. Harry Hyde, of Balboa, was elected secretary-treasurer.

The next regular meeting of the society will be held in the home of Mrs. Strain. At that time final arrangements will be made for a dance to be given by the organization in January.

LONGEST DISTANCE BETWEEN 2 POINTS

"I've got the 51-Point habit because I found out that the longest distance between two points is through the repair shop." This statement was made by one of our salesman customers who travels over 3,000 miles a month. But there is a thought in it for every motorist. A tank of Super-Shell and a Shell 51-Point Upkeep job means fast, economical, safe motoring between any given points. Try that combination.

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES

If you have roaring, buzzing noises in your ears, are getting hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal trouble of the ears, is hard of hearing or has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

What's in a number, or numbers, if you will?

Santa Ana jaysee's two most important football games this year—Fullerton and Los Angeles—were won on passes from Harold Welty to Walt Gunther.

Both are former Orange high school boys.

Six months from now, it won't be much fun reading the sport pages unless you like night baseball. Through Santa Ana summers the nocturnal stuff always gets a "play," first, because of human interest; second, because the game has only mild competition.

But right now, night ball has a tough time breaking space at all. For example: the Southern California Night Ball association was supposed to have its annual winter meeting up at Riverside last week. But only one club from the National division, Rialto, was represented. The American wheel did little better, so the "meeting" developed into a social gathering, and no business was transacted.

And here's a hint that comes right from the feed-box. They do say that what Connie Mack did to his Athletics is nothing compared with what will happen next spring to Torrance, Southern Cal. night ball champions. Torrance players, expecting some real sugar after going through lengthy playoffs with both Huntington Beach and Rialto, were not a little disgruntled when the payoff totaled exactly nothing. The Torrance management figured it needed the dough worse than its group of temperamental stars, and pocketed the receipts which, incidentally, weren't much.

Night ball, as a matter of fact, went through a rather tempestous season financially. Anaheim's split, which reached all-time high under the win-at-any-cost regime of George Pace two years ago, shrank to $40 last summer. Santa Ana's Stars, down in the ruck, got less than that. Once they received $225 for a summer's work.

I have it on the authority of no less than the man himself that Sam Sampson will be back in boxing early next year, whether or not the Santa Ana city council acts favorably on Sampson's petition to conduct an arena on West Third street, within the city limits.

Sampson and "Bud" Rutledge, who will tie up with Sampson in the venture, have other sites in prospect, but much prefer to locate downtown where transportation problems will not affect their business so much.

Boxing has not been allowed in the city since 1920 when the boys used to have-at-it on the stage of the old Grand Opera House at Fourth and Bush streets.

Trojan titbits:

The University of Southern California, non-sectarian, had two Catholics and one Jew on its varsity football squad this season. They were Bob McNeish, Larry Stevens and Aaron Rosenberg. Guess what! They were the three invited to play in the Shrine charity game in San Francisco New Year's Day. . . . . "Cotton" Warburton lays aside his All-American certificates now and trys out for his old job as water boy for the S. C. basketball team. He did all right last year until the U. C. L. A. game when he fumbled the bucket and had to get down on his knees and wipe up water while the game was held up. . . . . Julie Bescos, left end, the best-looker on the S. C. troupe, is said to be in line for the '34 captaincy. . . . . Height of the ridiculous: the squawkers' cry about "bought officials." During the past season every Pacific Coast conference official was appointed by San Francisco's Herb Dana, commissioner of officials. Troy had nothing whatever to say about who would "work" its games. . . . . Of Southern California's five first-string freshmen basketball players, two hail from Martinsville, Ind. and two register from Gary, Ind. The fifth comes, of all places, from Palo Alto, Cal. . . . . "Killer" Keller, the big back who looked for the world like a potential All-American at Inglewood Hi, will be a running guard for the S. C. varsity, 'tis said. He's in line to replace "Rosy" Rosenberg.

JESS BOBS UP AGAIN

Reports of a motor accident on the coast bring the name of big Jess Willard back into the picture . . . a driver emerged suddenly from a side street and cracked Willard's wagon . . . the big boy is said to have taken one of his best Sunday punches at the man . . . anyway, Jess was arrested and charged with assault and battery.

Willard's name brings back memories of old fighting days . . . big Jessica never was a popular heavyweight . . . and never was liked as a champion. . . . He came along at a time when the world was looking for a "white hope" to knock off Jack Johnson . . . all sorts of stories were told about the Willard-Johnson bout in Havana . . . pictures show Johnson on his back with his right hand up over his eyes to shield them from the sun . . . fight fans put it down generally as "one of those things" and refused to believe that Willard was good enough to beat Johnson . . . the Ethiopian had come to be regarded as a superfighter.

NO CHEERING SECTION

Odd thing about Willard . . . nearly every fighter at one time or another has had a public following, great or small . . . Dempsey was idolized after he lost to Gene Tunney in a rain-drenched ring at Philadelphia . . . even Jack Johnson had a crowd with him, admirers of his skill . . . but somehow the folks never could go for Jess . . . a man who was cold, aloof, without much color.

When he went into the ring at Toledo the fight world was hoping he would be butchered . . . and when he was destroyed they weren't sorry . . . there was more than mere applause in the cheer that Dempsey got that day . . . an echo of bitterness for Willard went along with it.

BUSINESS MAN

Jess was a factory-made prize ring product who did not like to fight . . . he went into the ring for what could be made out of it . . . he was just a big business man in there . . . he had the acumen of Firpo with none of the old Wild Bull's savage desires . . . Big Jess fought so he could amass enough money to be comfortable . . . then, with his earnings in his pocket, he decided to set up a great grocery . . . and was taken for a huge bundle of dough.

Jess has only the memory of big moments now . . . defeats mostly . . . the nightmare of Toledo . . . the drubbing he took at the hands of the Wild Bull . . . a trimming that Gunboat Smith gave him shortly before the big chance came against Jack Johnson.

And the Johnson fight! . . . a winner, but unloved, unhonored . . . the whole affair a matter of whisperings.

FULLERTON AND WHITTIER LOSE HOOP BATTLES

Survivors of a spirited first round, Chaffey and Redlands, of Class A; Corona, Bonita and Downer, of Class B, and Newport Harbor, of Class C, were seeking further honors in Huntington Beach's fifth annual invitational basketball tournament today, along with Santa Ana, Orange, Anaheim and Pasadena, of Class A; Chino and Excelsior, of Class B; Placentia, Tustin, San Juan Capistrano, North Long Beach, Claremont and Hemet, of Class C, as the big court carnival went into its second day.

Fullerton and Whittier, Class A contenders, were eliminated yesterday by Chaffey and Redlands, respectively, by scores of 21-11 and 29-21; while in Class B, Corona defeated the Long Beach Poly sophomores, 18-15; Downey trimmed Huntington Beach, 19-9, and Bonita won from Brea-Olinda, 18-9. Newport Harbor eliminated Garden Grove, 23-15, in the only Class C game scheduled.

Santa Ana was paired with Orange in its first game at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Coach Reese Greene's Saints were held favorites over the Panthers, although an upset was not considered improbable.

Other games today: Class A—Pasadena vs. Anaheim, at 8 p. m.; Class B—Chino vs. Excelsior, at 5 p. m.; Class C—Placentia vs. North Long Beach, at 4 p. m.; Tustin vs. Claremont, at 6 p. m.; San Juan Capistrano vs. Hemet, at 7 p. m.

PRINCETON PICKS SOFT ONES

ROSENBLOOM NO. 1 FIGHTER?

BY HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Being nothing more than six, seven or eight paragraphs on this, that and the other:

Princeton, thanks to a great coach and the happy coincidence that a herd of prep school stars enrolled the same year he took charge, stands to have one of the mightiest teams in its history next year. Already the men of Old Nassau are claiming the 1934 National championship.

Yet their claim will be a hollow one, for not since old Snaggle-tooth Carnera's triumphal tour through the tall timbers a while back has a schedule called for as many round-heeled pushovers as Princeton's next year. The first half of the season will be devoted to Amherst, Williams, Washington and Lee, and Cornell; the second to Harvard, Lehigh, Yale and Dartmouth.

If beating that bunch entitles you to a football championship, then outpointing Baby Leroy in 15 rounds is good for the heavyweight title.

If asked for their opinion as to the greatest fighter in the ring, 99 out of 100 citizens would answer either Carnera or Max Baer. The dissenter would be James Joy Johnston of Madison Square Garden.

"Maxie scales less than 175 pounds, but I'd bet a year's pay he could beat any heavyweight in the ring."

Mr. Johnston was asked why he didn't match Maxie with the big boys, and he was good for two reasons. One is that the heavyweights will have nothing to do with Maxie. And the second is that the heavyweights are the real money-makers for a promoter, and it's a daffy promoter, indeed, who exposes them to the danger of getting them beaten by smaller men

Johnston admits that he made a dire mistake by letting Sharkey get in there with Mickey Walker. It cost Sharkey prestige and the Garden money.

You might do worse with your spare money than buy baseball players. Good ones, I mean. Bob Dunn of Baltimore picked up "Lefty" Grove for the price of a good meal and lived to see him go to Philadelphia for better than $100,000. And Connie Mack just sold him for $125,000.

Maranville cost his original owners haircut money, and so did Walter Johnson, Jimmy Foxx, Frisch and a host of others. Oh, yes, you're liable to pick a lemon. The Giants paid $75,000 for Len Koenecke, and where's he now?"

SURVEYING CURRENT SPORTS WITH HENRY M'LEMORE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—One of the horses that did most for racing never had his name in the turf guide....He was Hominy Joe, the ancient nag on which Tod Sloan developed the modern technique of riding during backward experimentation at Kokomo, Indiana.... Johnny Dundee, that amizing ring veteran, has a new cure for colds....he goes into a fymnasium and steps three or four rounds with a good fighter..

Ellsworth Vines rates Jack Crawford as the world's greatest tennis player, but believes Bill Tilden would be a good bet against anybody in a singles match, providing, of course, the stake was high enough to get Bill interested....

Stanislaus Loayza, who'll fight Billy Petrolle here soon, has earned a quarter of a million dollars with his fists, but is dead broke ....Loayza, by the way, was a jockey for two years before taking up fighting, and established some sort of a record by never riding a winner....Says it was the "bum horses, not me"....

Paul Berlenbach, who not so long ago was getting as high as $70,000 for a single fight, received $10 for wrestling up in Harlem the other night...."Babe" Didrickson (you remember her, don't you) has lowered her financial goal to $250,000....It was an even million smackers when she turned professional....Babe, who holds her athletic prowess lightly, still insists she'll be the National golf champion in a year or so....

Mose Kelsch of the Pittsburgh Pirates football team, is 40 years old and going strong...."Mule" Haas, Chicago White Sox outfielder, has opened a beer tavern in his home town, Montclair, N. J. ....Leslie Munn, who will pitch for Brooklyn next season, is conditioning himself by cutting and sawing wood in the Great North Woods....Six members of Boston U's football squad sing in the glee club....

A good bet to make is that Columbia will not be trailing Stanford at the end of the second period....The Lions will hold their own until the climate and Stanford's manpower begins to take effect.

Several days behind in court practice on account of their extended football season, Santa Ana's Dons welcomed the bye which they received in the first round of the Eastern conference junior college basketball schedule, released today.

Coach Bill Cook's quintet will be given its opening conference test against the Pomona Cossacks here January 20. Citrus here, Riverside there, Fullerton there, Chaffey here, and San Bernardino there follow on successive Saturdays.

There are two conflicts with Santa Ana high school's schedule in the Coast Preparatory league which must be ironed out. Coach Reese Greene's Saints, it is believed, will be unable to change their dates, since they are playing a double round. The high school travels to Glendale January 19, returns here the next evening to entertain the Dynamiters. Then on Jan. 27 it opposes Alhambra here, following a match on the Moor court Jan. 26.

The Santa Ana-Pomona jaysee tilt may be changed from Jan. 20 to Jan. 19, and the Santa Ana-Citrus game from Jan. 27 to Jan. 25 in order to settle the schedule difficulties, according to Cook.

The Eastern conference schedule:

Jan. 13—Santa Ana, bye; Riverside at Pomona; San Bernardino at Fullerton; Chaffey at Citrus.
Jan. 20— Pomona at Santa Ana; Fullerton at Riverside; Citrus at San Bernardino; Chaffey, bye.
Jan. 27—Citrus at Santa Ana; Pomona at Chaffey; Riverside at San Bernardino; Fullerton, bye.
Feb. 3—Santa Ana at Riverside; San Bernardino at Chaffey; Fullerton at Pomona; Citrus, bye.
Feb. 10—Santa Ana at Fullerton; Chaffey at Riverside; Pomona at Citrus; San Bernardino, bye.
Feb. 17—Chaffey at Santa Ana; San Bernardino at Pomona; Citrus at Fullerton; Riverside, bye.
Feb. 24—Santa Ana at San Bernardino; Fullerton at Chaffey; Riverside at Citrus; Pomona, bye.

INDIANS QUIT GRID UNTIL DECEMBER 25

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Dec. 15.—(INS)—The glamour of the Rose Bowl football classic was temporarily shut from the minds of Stanford grid stars today as they "bore down" for final examinations next week.

"The boys have enough to worry about for the present," said Coach "Tiny" Thornhill. "I'm not going to bother them with any practice sessions until we arrive in Pasadena next week."

The Stanford band and a large number of the Stanford student body, alumni and Northern California rooters plan to accompany the Cardinal gridders south. The team will leave December 23, holding a practice in Pasadena Christmas Day.

BEAVERS TO KEEP OLD PARK

PORTLAND, Dec. 15.—(UP)—The Portland club of the Pacific Coast league will use the Vaughn street baseball park again in 1934. City council over-rode property owners' objections by granting the club the use of the park.

Smiles in SPORTS

The old football cheer, "Yea, team!" didn't work very well the only time it ever was used in baseball. At least Umpire Bill Klem didn't go for it.

Manager George Stallings of the old Braves invited Percy Haughton, Harvard coach, to deliver an inspirational talk to the club. Haughton spoke somewhat in this wise:

"When one of you fellows fights with the umpire and gets ordered from the game you are hurting not only yourself but the whole team. When you see one of the players arguing with an umpire, go to him and say 'The team, the team!' That will restrain him."

Next day Rabbit Maranville was called out on strikes and he set up an awful roar. As his argument with Klem waxed warmer and warmer, the Braves came rushing out of the dugout, led by Sherwood Magee.

But Bill was not to be outdone. He ordered out of the game every one of the members of the cheering section, strangely allowing the Rabbit to stay in the game. When Maranville returned to the bench, he sat down next to Haughton and said:

Germany Plans Big Stadium For 1936 Games

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—(INS)—Adolf Hitler has taken personal charge of the Olympic Games to be held in Germany in 1936.

In a pronouncement today the German chancellor gives his consent to the building of the finest Olympic stadium in the world. Hitler made no mention of race or creed, and the ministry of propaganda advised it was without authority to say whether the pronouncement was issued in order to lift the athletic ban on German Jews, as demanded by the American Amateur Athletic union.

In urging all organizations to support the movement for a great Olympic Games, Hitler said the Reich sports leader would be responsible to him only, which kills present efforts to put all German sports under the authority of the storm troops.

MAJOR LEAGUE ALL-STARS TO INVADE JAPAN

TOKYO, Dec. 15.—(INS)—Negotiations for a second invasion of Japan by an all-star team of American big league baseball players were under way here today.

"Lefty" O'Doul, New York Giants star, was in Tokyo conferring with interested parties concerning formation of professional teams, hitherto banned in Japan because of objections by college authorities.

The Tokyo newspaper, Yomiuri, was said to be planning to sponsor the games next fall.

The 1934 series would be between the American all-star team and the Japanese professionals, providing they can be organized. The only previous all-star tour of American players was in 1931. They played Japanese college teams before enthusiastic crowds totaling more than half a million persons.

Big Deal Fails; Malone Remains Member Of Cubs

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—(INS)—What might have been the most colossal deal in baseball this year had succumbed to controversy today when the Chicago Cubs failed to close a transaction that would have brought them "Pinkey" Whitney, of the Boston Braves and "Lefty" Hallahan, of the St. Louis Cardinals.

The primary purpose of the Chicago team was to dispose of Pitcher Pat Malone. The deal collapsed because the Braves didn't want Malone and the Cubs couldn't get either Whitney or Ed Brandt, Boston left-hander.

CHET WYNNE NAMED COACH AT KENTUCKY

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 15.—(UP)—Chet Wynne prepared today to relinquish Dec. 31 his duties as head football coach and athletic director at Alabama Polytechnic institute (Auburn) and become head football coach at the University of Kentucky.

BEAVERS TO PLAY U. S. F.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—(UP)—University of San Francisco and Oregon State will play a night football game at Corvallis, Ore., Sept. 28 next season, according to announcement here today. In their 1933 meeting, O. S. C. won by a 12-7 score in the last minute of play.

FOOTE NAMES 17 LETTERMEN: SIX TO RETURN

Defeated six times this year, Santa Ana's Saints look for an improved season when returns from all precincts are in this time in 1934.

The list of returning players, while hardly studded with outstanding players, numbers a group of linemen that should give Coach Bill Foote a nucleus for a stronger team than that which went to the post for Santa Ana Hi this semester.

Foote today formally announced the Saints' 1933 lettermen, 17 in all, and of these only six return. But many other players who came close to winning their numerals, especially some promising linemen, are expected to be first-stringers with the benefit of a year's maturity and experience.

Stranske, the star of the squad also was the Saints' "iron man" for he played a total of 376 minutes this season. Newton came next with 358, followed by Roemer, 357, DeSmet, 321; Hendrie, 289; Williams, 270; Hales, 250; Underwood, 246; Halderman, 236; Levens, 226; Schultz, 198; Webb, 133; Nott, 131; Smith, 125; Hamilton, 134; Erdhaus, 112, and Evans, 98.

Of this group, Nott and Smith, backs, and DeSmet, Schultz, Evans and Hamilton, linemen, will be back next season.

But Foote nourishes ambitions for many another Saint player of less experience than these. He believes such '33 reserves as Leonard Ash, guard; Bain Alexander, tackle; Erwin Youel, Roger McCune and Bill Hawkins, ends; Warren Mann, Ray Clark and Dick White, backs, have fine possibilities. These boys all saw considerable action in non-conference games. They all look like 1934 regulars.

Foote's chief problem will be the development of almost new backfield. He will miss the power of Stranske and the speed of Hendrie of this year's outfit. But he should have a better line than this one, and so his backs may not have to be as good.

Olympic Club To Retain Grid Team

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—(UP)—Officials of the Olympic club today announced that the organization would sponsor a football team next season and would meet six opponents already scheduled.

S. C. CAGERS WIN EASILY

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15.—(UP)—The University of Southern California basketball squad displayed a powerful scoring offense yesterday by running up a 46-24 score against the navy's best hoopsters from the U. S. S. Tennessee, fleet champions. The freshmen squad defeated the U. S. S. Colorado quintet, 51 to 14.

WEST WINDS

Here and There in Local Sport

By EDDIE WEST

What's in a number, or numbers, if you will?

Santa Ana jaysee's two most important football games this year—Fullerton and Los Angeles—were won on passes from Harold Welty to Walt Gunther.

Both are former Orange high school boys.

Six months from now, it won't be much fun reading the sport pages unless you like night baseball. Through Santa Ana summers the nocturnal stuff always gets a "play," first, because of human interest; second, because the game has only mild competition.

But right now, night ball has a tough time breaking space at all. For example: the Southern California Night Ball association was supposed to have its annual winter meeting up at Riverside last week. But only one club from the National division, Rialto, was represented. The American wheel did little better, so the "meeting" developed into a social gathering, and no business was transacted.

And here's a hint that comes right from the feed-box. They do say that what Connie Mack did to his Athletics is nothing compared with what will happen next spring to Torrance, Southern Cal. night ball champions. Torrance players, expecting some real sugar after going through lengthy playoffs with both Huntington Beach and Rialto, were not a little disgruntled when the payoff totaled exactly nothing. The Torrance management figured it needed the dough worse than its group of temperamental stars, and pocketed the receipts which, incidentally, weren't much.

Night ball, as a matter of fact, went through a rather tempestous season financially. Anaheim's split, which reached all-time high under the win-at-any-cost regime of George Pace two years ago, shrank to $40 last summer. Santa Ana's Stars, down in the ruck, got less than that. Once they received $225 for a summer's work.

I have it on the authority of no less than the man himself that Sam Sampson will be back in boxing early next year, whether or not the Santa Ana city council acts favorably on Sampson's petition to conduct an arena on West Third street, within the city limits.

Sampson and "Bud" Rutledge, who will tie up with Sampson in the venture, have other sites in prospect, but much prefer to locate downtown where transportation problems will not affect their business so much.

Boxing has not been allowed in the city since 1920 when the boys used to have-at-it on the stage of the old Grand Opera House at Fourth and Bush streets.

Trojan titbits:

The University of Southern California, non-sectarian, had two Catholics and one Jew on its varsity football squad this season. They were Bob McNeish, Larry Stevens and Aaron Rosenberg. Guess what! They were the three invited to play in the Shrine charity game in San Francisco New Year's Day. . . . . "Cotton" Warburton lays aside his All-American certificates now and trys out for his old job as water boy for the S. C. basketball team. He did all right last year until the U. C. L. A. game when he fumbled the bucket and had to get down on his knees and wipe up water while the game was held up. . . . Julie Bescos, left end, the best-looker on the S. C. troupe, is said to be in line for the '34 captaincy. . . . Height of the ridiculous: the squawkers' cry about "bought officials." During the past season every Pacific Coast conference official was appointed by San Francisco's Herb Dana, commissioner of officials. Troy had nothing whatever to say about who would "work" its games. . . . Of Southern California's five first-string freshmen basketball players, two hail from Martinsville, Ind. and two register from Gary, Ind. The fifth comes, of all places, from Palo Alto, Cal. . . . "Killer" Keller, the big back who looked for the world like a potential All-American at Inglewood Hi, will be a running guard for the S. C. varsity, 'tis said. He's in line to replace "Rosy" Rosenberg.

JESS BOBS UP AGAIN

Reports of a motor accident on the coast bring the name of big Jess Willard back into the picture . . . a driver emerged suddenly from a side street and cracked Willard's wagon . . . the big boy is said to have taken one of his best Sunday punches at the man . . . anyway, Jess was arrested and charged with assault and battery.

Willard's name brings back memories of old fighting days . . . big Jessica never was a popular heavyweight . . . and never was liked as a champion. . . . He came along at a time when the world was looking for a "white hope" to knock off Jack Johnson . . . all sorts of stories were told about the Willard-Johnson bout in Havana . . . pictures show Johnson on his back with his right hand up over his eyes to shield them from the sun . . . fight fans put it down generally as "one of those things" and refused to believe that Willard was good enough to beat Johnson . . . the Ethiopian had come to be regarded as a superfighter.

Odd thing about Willard . . . nearly every fighter at one time or another has had a public following, great or small . . . Dempsey was idolized after he lost to Gene Tunney in a rain-drenched ring at Philadelphia . . . even Jack Johnson had a crowd with him, admirers of his skill . . . but somehow the folks never could go for Jess . . . a man who was cold, aloof, without much color.

When he went into the ring at Toledo the fight world was hoping he would be butchered . . . and when he was destroyed they weren't sorry . . . there was more than mere applause in the cheer that Dempsey got that day . . . an echo of bitterness for Willard went along with it.

BUSINESS MAN

Jess was a factory-made prize ring product who did not like to fight . . . he went into the ring for what could be made out of it . . . he was just a big business man in there . . . he had the acumen of Firpo with none of the old Wild Bull's savage desires . . . Big Jess fought so he could amass enough money to be comfortable . . . then, with his earnings in his pocket, he decided to set up a great grocery . . . and was taken for a huge bundle of dough.

Jess has only the memory of big moments now . . . defeats mostly . . . the nightmare of Toledo . . . the drubbing he took at the hands of the Wild Bull . . . a trimming that Gunboat Smith gave him shortly before the big chance came against Jack Johnson.

And the Johnson fight! . . . a winner, but unloved, unhonored . . . the whole affair a matter of whisperings.

FULLERTON AND WHITTIER LOSE HOOP BATTLES

Survivors of a spirited first round, Chaffey and Redlands, of Class A; Corona, Bonita and Downer, of Class B, and Newport Harbor, of Class C, were seeking further honors in Huntington Beach's fifth annual invitational basketball tournament today, along with Santa Ana, Orange, Anaheim and Pasadena, of Class A; Chino and Excelsior, of Class B; Placentia, Tustin, San Juan Capistrano, North Long Beach, Claremont and Hemet, of Class C, as the big court carnival went into its second day.

Fullerton and Whittier, Class A contenders, were eliminated yesterday by Chaffey and Redlands, respectively, by scores of 21-11 and 29-21; while in Class B, Corona defeated the Long Beach Poly sophomores, 18-15; Downey trimmed Huntington Beach, 19-9, and Bonita won from Brea-Olinda, 18-9. Newport Harbor eliminated Garden Grove, 23-15, in the only Class C game scheduled.

Santa Ana was paired with Orange in its first game at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Coach Reese Greene's Saints were held favorites over the Panthers, although an upset was not considered improbable.

Other games today: Class A—Pasadena vs. Anaheim, at 8 p. m.; Class B—Chino vs. Excelsior, at 5 p. m.; Class C—Placentia vs. North Long Beach, at 4 p. m.; Tustin vs. Claremont, at 6 p. m.; San Juan Capistrano vs. Hemet, at 7 p. m.

PRINCETON PICKS SOFT ONES

ROSENBLOOM NO. 1 FIGHTER?

BY HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Being nothing more than six, seven or eight paragraphs on this, that and the other:

Princeton, thanks to a great coach and the happy coincidence that a herd of prep school stars enrolled the same year he took charge, stands to have one of the mightiest teams in its history next year. Already the men of Old Nassau are claiming the 1934 National championship.

Yet their claim will be a hollow one, for not since old Snaggle-tooth Carnera's triumphal tour through the tall timbers a while back has a schedule called for as many round-heeled pushovers as Princeton's next year. The first half of the season will be devoted to Amherst, Williams, Washington and Lee, and Cornell; the second to Harvard, Lehigh, Yale and Dartmouth.

If beating that bunch entitles you to a football championship, then outpointing Baby Leroy in 15 rounds is good for the heavyweight title.

If asked for their opinion as to the greatest fighter in the ring, 99 out of 100 citizens would answer either Carnera or Max Baer. The dissenter would be James Joy Johnston of Madison Square Garden.

"Maxie scales less than 175 pounds, but I'd bet a year's pay he could beat any heavyweight in the ring."

Mr. Johnston was asked why he didn't match Maxie with the big boys, and he was good for two reasons. One is that the heavyweights will have nothing to do with Maxie. And the second is that the heavyweights are the real money-makers for a promoter, and it's a daffy promoter, indeed, who exposes them to the danger of getting them beaten by smaller men.

Johnston admits that he made a dire mistake by letting Sharkey get in there with Mickey Walker. It cost Sharkey prestige and the Garden money.

You might do worse with your spare money than buy baseball players. Good ones, I mean. Bob Dunn of Baltimore picked up "Lefty" Grove for the price of a good meal and lived to see him go to Philadelphia for better than $100,000. And Connie Mack just sold him for $125,000.

Maranville cost his original owners haircut money, and so did Walter Johnson, Jimmy Foxx, Frisch and a host of others. Oh, yes, you're liable to pick a lemon. The Giants paid $75,000 for Len Koenecke, and where's he now?"

SURVEYING CURRENT SPORTS WITH HENRY M'LEMORE

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—One of the horses that did most for racing never had his name in the turf guide....He was Hominy Joe, the ancient nag on which Tod Sloan developed the modern technique of riding during backward experimentation at Kokomo, Indiana.... Johnny Dundee, that amizing ring veteran, has a new cure for colds....he goes into a fymnasium and steps three or four rounds with a good fighter..

Ellsworth Vines rates Jack Crawford as the world's greatest tennis player, but believes Bill Tilden would be a good bet against anybody in a singles match, providing, of course, the stake was high enough to get Bill interested....

Stanislaus Loayza, who'll fight Billy Petrolle here soon, has earned a quarter of a million dollars with his fists, but is dead broke ....Loayza, by the way, was a jockey for two years before taking up fighting, and established some sort of a record by never riding a winner....Says it was the "bum horses, not me"....

Paul Berlenbach, who not so long ago was getting as high as $70,000 for a single fight, received $10 for wrestling up in Harlem the other night...."Babe" Didrickson (you remember her, don't you) has lowered her financial goal to $250,000....It was an even million smackers when she turned professional....Babe, who holds her athletic prowess lightly, still insists she'll be the National golf champion in a year or so....

Mose Kelsch of the Pittsburgh Pirates football team, is 40 years old and going strong...."Mule" Haas, Chicago White Sox outfielder, has opened a beer tavern in his home town, Montclair, N. J. ....Leslie Munn, who will pitch for Brooklyn next season, is conditioning himself by cutting and sawing wood in the Great North Woods....Six members of Boston U's football squad sing in the glee club....

A good bet to make is that Columbia will not be trailing Stanford at the end of the second period....The Lions will hold their own until the climate and Stanford's manpower begins to take effect.

Several days behind in court practice on account of their extended football season, Santa Ana's Dons welcomed the bye which they received in the first round of the Eastern conference junior college basketball schedule, released today.

Coach Bill Cook's quintet will be given its opening conference test against the Pomona Cossacks here January 20. Citrus here, Riverside there, Fullerton there, Chaffey here, and San Bernardino there follow on successive Saturdays.

There are two conflicts with Santa Ana high school's schedule in the Coast Preparatory league which must be ironed out. Coach Reese Greene's Saints, it is believed, will be unable to change their dates, since they are playing a double round. The high school travels to Glendale January 19, returns here the next evening to entertain the Dynamiters. Then on Jan. 27 it opposes Alhambra here, following a match on the Moor court Jan. 26.

The Santa Ana-Pomona jaysee tilt may be changed from Jan. 20 to Jan. 19, and the Santa Ana-Citrus game from Jan. 27 to Jan. 25 in order to settle the schedule difficulties, according to Cook.

The Eastern conference schedule:

Jan. 13—Santa Ana, bye; Riverside at Pomona; San Bernardino at Fullerton; Chaffey at Citrus.

Jan. 20—Pomona at Santa Ana; Fullerton at Riverside; Citrus at San Bernardino; Chaffey, bye.

Jan. 27—Citrus at Santa Ana; Pomona at Chaffey; Riverside at San Bernardino; Fullerton, bye.

Feb. 3—Santa Ana at Riverside; San Bernardino at Chaffey; Fullerton at Pomona; Citrus, bye.

Feb. 10—Santa Ana at Fullerton; Chaffey at Riverside; Pomona at Citrus; San Bernardino, bye.

Feb. 17—Chaffey at Santa Ana; San Bernardino at Pomona; Citrus at Fullerton; Riverside, bye.

Feb. 24—Santa Ana at San Bernardino; Fullerton at Chaffey; Riverside at Citrus; Pomona, bye.

INDIANS QUIT GRID UNTIL DECEMBER 25

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Dec. 15.—(INS)—The glamour of the Rose Bowl football classic was temporarily shut from the minds of Stanford grid stars today as they "bore down" for final examinations next week.

"The boys have enough to worry about for the present," said Coach "Tiny" Thornhill. "I'm not going to bother them with any practice sessions until we arrive in Pasadena next week."

The Stanford band and a large number of the Stanford student body, alumni and Northern California rooters plan to accompany the Cardinal gridders south. The team will leave December 23, holding a practice in Pasadena Christmas Day.

BEAVERS TO KEEP OLD PARK

PORTLAND, Dec. 15.—(UP)—The Portland club of the Pacific Coast league will use the Vaughn street baseball park again in 1934. City council over-rode property owners' objections by granting the club the use of the park.

Smiles in SPORTS

The old football cheer, "Yea, team!" didn't work very well the only time it ever was used in baseball. At least Umpire Bill Klem didn't go for it.

Manager George Stallings of the old Braves invited Percy Haughton, Harvard coach, to deliver an inspirational talk to the club. Haughton spoke somewhat in this wise:

"When one of you fellows fights with the umpire and gets ordered from the game you are hurting not only yourself but the whole team. When you see one of the players arguing with an umpire, go to him and say 'The team, the team!' That will restrain him."

Next day Rabbit Maranville was called out on strikes and he set up an awful roar. As his argument with Klem waxed warmer and warmer, the Braves came rushing out of the dugout, led by Sherwood Magee.

But Bill was not to be outdone. He ordered out of the game every one of the members of the cheering section, strangely allowing the Rabbit to stay in the game. When Maranville returned to the bench, he sat down next to Haughton and said:

Germany Plans Big Stadium For 1936 Games

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—(INS)—Adolf Hitler has taken personal charge of the Olympic Games to be held in Germany in 1936.

In a pronouncement today the German chancellor gives his consent to the building of the finest Olympic stadium in the world. Hitler made no mention of race or creed, and the ministry of propaganda advised it was without authority to say whether the pronouncement was issued in order to lift the athletic ban on German Jews, as demanded by the American Amateur Athletic union.

In urging all organizations to support the movement for a great Olympic Games, Hitler said the Reich sports leader would be responsible to him only, which kills present efforts to put all German sports under the authority of the storm troops.

MAJOR LEAGUE ALL-STARS TO INVADE JAPAN

TOKYO, Dec. 15.—(INS)—Negotiations for a second invasion of Japan by an all-star team of American big league baseball players were under way here today.

"Lefty" O'Doul, New York Giants star, was in Tokyo conferring with interested parties concerning formation of professional teams, hitherto banned in Japan because of objections by college authorities.

The Tokyo newspaper, Yomiuri, was said to be planning to sponsor the games next fall.

The 1934 series would be between the American all-star team and the Japanese professionals, providing they can be organized. The only previous all-star tour of American players was in 1931. They played Japanese college teams before enthusiastic crowds totaling more than half a million persons.

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—(INS)—What might have been the most colossal deal in baseball this year had succumbed to controversy today when the Chicago Cubs failed to close a transaction that would have brought them "Pinkey" Whitney, of the Boston Braves and "Lefty" Hallahan, of the St. Louis Cardinals.

BEAVERS TO PLAY U. S. F.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—(UP)—University of San Francisco and Oregon State will play a night football game at Corvallis, Ore., Sept. 28 next season, according to announcement here today. In their 1933 meeting, O. S. C. won by a 12-7 score in the last minute of play.

FOOTE NAMES 17 LETTERMEN: SIX TO RETURN

Defeated six times this year, Santa Ana's Saints look for an improved season when returns from all precincts are in this time in 1934.

The list of returning players, while hardly studded with outstanding players, numbers a group of linemen that should give Coach Bill Foote a nucleus for a stronger team than that which went to the post for Santa Ana Hi this semester.

Foote today formally announced the Saints' 1933 lettermen, 17 in all, and of these only six return. But many other players who came close to winning their numerals, especially some promising linemen, are expected to be first-stringers with the benefit of a year's maturity and experience.

Stranske, the star of the squad also was the Saints' "iron man" for he played a total of 376 minutes this season. Newton came next with 358, followed by Roemer, 357, DeSmet, 321; Hendrie, 289; Williams, 270; Hales, 250; Underwood, 246; Halderman, 236; Levens, 226; Schultz, 198; Webb, 133; Nott, 131; Smith, 125; Hamilton, 134; Erdhaus, 112, and Evans, 98.

Of this group, Nott and Smith, backs, and DeSmet, Schultz, Evans and Hamilton, linemen, will be back next season.

Foote's chief problem will be the development of almost new backfield. He will miss the power of Stranske and the speed of Hendrie of this year's outfit. But he should have a better line than this one, and so his backs may not have to be as good.

Olympic Club To Retain Grid Team

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—(UP)—Officials of the Olympic club today announced that the organization would sponsor a football team next season and would meet six opponents already scheduled.

Installation Conducted By Eastern Star Chapter

OVER 350 AT CEREMONIES OF SCEPTER GROUP

ORANGE, Dec. 15. — Lovely gowns, beautiful flowers and impressive ceremony made the installation of officers of Scepter chapter of the Eastern Star here Thursday night one of the most brilliant of seasonal events.

Installing officers included Mrs. Elsie Gillogly, past matron, who served as district deputy last year; L. W. Thompson, Mrs. Etta Chapman, out-going worthy matron and J. F. Rowley. Mrs. Gillogly and Mrs. Chapman were in white satin and white lace and with beautiful corsages, Mrs. Chapman's being of talisman roses with a shower of golden ribbon.

Officers installed were, worthy matron, Mrs. Hezena Rowley; worthy patron, W. C. Lee; associate matron, Mrs. Lillian Edwards; associate patron, Robert Bunch; conductress, Mrs. Gwendolyn Thompson ;associate conductress, Mrs. Rae Bunch; treasurer, Mrs. Dan Gruwell; secretary, Mrs. Cora Gregg.

Points of the star were: Electa, Miss Helen Gillogly; Ruth, Mrs. Florence Donegan; Esther, Mrs. Audrey Isbell Peterson; Martha, Mrs. Cora Kolkhorst; chaplain, Mrs. Matilda Blankmeier chaplain, Mrs. Frances Thompson; warden, Mrs. Gelsemina Eye; marshal, Mrs. Iva Lee; sentinel, Dan Gruwell; organist, Mrs. Dora Smith; flag bearer, Miss Ethel Suffern; soloist, Miss Helen Gillogly. Mrs. Lillian Bascom was the mistress of ceremonies. Mrs. Rowley wore a corsage of red rosebuds with a shower of silver ribbons and Mrs. Edwards a corsage of pink rosebuds with similar ribbons. All of those taking part in the ceremony were attractively gowned in white and other officers wore corsages of vari-colored sweetpeas with showers of pastel-tinted ribbons.

The chapter room was decorated in a yuletide motif with tall torcheres which held tall red tapers. Quantities of greenery and red berries furthered the chosen decorative scheme. Included among the 350 who were present were Mrs. Mae Henry, district deputy grand matron, and Mrs. Myrtle Clayton, of Brea, district deputy grand matron.

During the evening Leo and Lloyd Robbins, well known young violinists, played violin duets. Mrs. Gwendolyn Goode sang "The Easterner's Prayer," as the five points of the star knelt at the altar. Mrs. Marguerite Parks was the accompanist. Baskets of colorful early winter blossoms added to the beauty of the setting for the ceremonies.

Mrs. Chapman was presented with a past matron's jewel by Mrs. Gillogly.

BETTER TIMES PREDICTED BY BANKER IN ROTARY ADDRESS

ORANGE, Dec. 15.—"The Trend of the Times' was the pertinent subject discussed at the meeting of the Rotary club yesterday by Ora Monnette, of Los Angeles, vice president of the Bank of America. Monnette struck a note of optimism in his talk in the course of which he declared that the trend of the times was toward a greater America.

The speaker decried the methods of demagogues, who, he said, stand on the sidelines, taking no part but crying, "I am the remedy." Each generation, he said, has at some time or other heard some wiseacre declare, "Things are going to the dogs."

"Discussion of the present situation is getting tiresome," said the speaker, "because there is nothing new to say. We all have lost confidence in ourselves and all have had our fortunes reduced and all are apt to think the other fellow is a horse thief.

"If the debacle of 1929 occurred because we no longer had trust, why do we want conditions of 1929 back again? If what we lost was so bad why do we want it back? Is human selfishness less in 1934 than it was in 1929? Every plan suggested has no plan for the revision of human life and its relations but is concerned with 'how can we get back that which is lost?'"

Monnette declared that the present period of time is the most momentous in the history of the nation. Only four things make civilzaton, he declared, knowledge, custom, apprecation and discipline. The business depression, he declared, tends toward the preparation of America toward greater success for the benefit of mankind.

The speaker called attention to what he classified as the "book on the horizon," H. G. Wells' "The Shape of Things to Come."

In closing the speaker declared that "We are faced with a new destiny under a new deal which we may make into a new world.'

CHURCH WOMEN IN SCHOOL DAY YULE PROGRAM

ORANGE, Dec. 15.—Christmas time of school days was the theme used yesterday for one of the loveliest of the year's series of friendship teas given at the First Presbyterian church, with Mrs. W. C. Ahlman as the hostess committee head and Mrs. Clyde Watson as her assistant.

The auditorium was beautifully decorated with poinsettias and catoneaster and a Christmas tree which touched the ceiling was silvered with Christmas ornaments. The program was opened with the singing of "School Days," led by Mrs. Watson, who later conducted an old fashioned spelling match.

"The Other Wise Man," by Henry Van Dyke, was presented by the pupils of the sixth grade of the Intermediate school under the direction of Miss Margaret Dean. Christmas carols were sung and these included "Holy Night" and "Joy to the World."

Mrs. Gwendolyn Glasscock, talented vocalist of Los Angeles, sang two solos, accompanied by Mrs. Ralph Watson of Santa Ana. At the close of the program guests were seated in groups where hostesses for teas for each month of the year became better acquainted with each other.

Napkins and refreshments were in a yule motif. Nearly 150 women shared the enjoyable event.

MISS KROENER IS HONOREE AT SHOWER AFFAIR

ORANGE, Dec. 15.—Honoring Miss Helen Kroener, who on Christmas day will become the bride of Lawrence Archibald, Mrs. Augusta Wedge entertained with a gingham girl kitchen shower at her home in Orange Park Acres this week. The home was beautifully decorated with white gardenias and rose buds.

An enjoyable evening was spent playing pit, with the high score going to Mrs. William Chandler, and the low score going to Mrs. R. O. DuBois.

Later in the evening, shopping bags and market baskets filled with kitchen utensils were presented to Miss Kroener.

During the evening guests were told the history of the remarkable fireplace in the living room of the home, which is built of stones and geological formations from nearly every country of the world. Several of those present had contributed material for the fireplace which they had gathered while traveling and this made the tale one of unusual interest.

Refreshments were served later in the evening to the following: Mesdames Sarah Fletcher, Charlotte Wallace, John Cassidy, Ernest Davis, Clinton Baker, O. B. Howard, Dale M. Bay, R. O. DuBois, Wilhelmina Callaway, William Chandler, T. C. McBride, Wayne Daniels, E. W. Danielson, Jenett Jacobs, William Saxton, Jennie Archibald, W. S. Wallace, Elizabeth Kroenen and the Misses Grace Trueblood, Rosealyn Wagers, Lulu O'Byrne, Bertha Peterkin, Violet Waller, Thelma Bay, Mary Eisenbraun and Alice Phillips, all of Orange; Mrs. Harold Girton, of Anaheim; Mrs. Raymond Meierhoff, of Olive; Mrs. Florence Flessman, of Santa Ana; Mr. C. M. Archibald, of Long Beach, and Mrs. W. F. Kroener and Margaret Kroener, of Whittier.

The January meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Bird, 159 Lester drive.

Circle No. 4

Mrs. R. M. Buckles, 280 North Center street, was hostess at the meeting of Circle No. 4, decorating her home with red tapers and poinsettias. Luncheon was followed by a business meeting conducted by the president, Mrs. H. Z. Sawyer.

Group singing of "Joy to the World" preceded devotions. Members participated in a guessing game on Biblical characters. The program included a piano solo by Miss Eleanor Buckles, daughter of the home, and a reading by Miss Mary Bogue.

The group spent the time doing fancy work. The next meeting is to be held with Mrs. A. G. Parsons, 264 North Grand street.

Those present, other than Mrs. Buckles, were Mesdames O. M. Coate, George Moroff, Starr Batchelor, F. A. Melvin, Jennie Archibald, May Parsons, G. W. Smith, Blanche Campbell, D. A. Kelsey, H. Z. Sawyer Miss Mary Bogue and a special guest, Mrs. E. R. Boyd of Glendale.

Circle No. 1

Members of Circle No. 1 are to have their Christmas meeting next Tuesday in the home of Mrs. J. B. Kilgore, 156 South Center street. Mrs. John Moore will be co-hostess.

There will be a noon day covered dish luncheon. The afternoon program will be in keeping with the holiday theme, and there will be exchange of gifts. Mrs. George Moody is leader of the circle.

ROYAL NEIGHBORS SELECT OFFICERS

ORANGE, Dec. 15.—Officers were elected at an all day meeting of the Royal Neighbors held in the Ehlen and Grote hall Wednesday. Officers elected were:

Orance, Mrs. Minnie Young; vice oracle, Mrs. Mabel Lee; recorder, Mrs. Delores Goodwin; receiver, Mrs. Rebecca Baier; chancellor, Mrs. Katie Heitshusen; marshal, Mrs. Ella Simmermaker; inner sentinel, Mrs. Cora Reynolds; outer sentinel, Mrs. Anna Linnartz; musician, Mrs. Ella Kilgore; manager, Mrs. Dorothy Burnette, who was elected for a term of three years.

Preceding the election of officers, a pot luck luncheon was served at gaily decorated tables, stressing the Christmas motif.

During a short business meeting, presided over by Hart Pennington, announcement was made concerning a Christmas benefit card party to be held in the hall the afternoon of December 27. Those in charge of the affair are Mrs. Dolores Goodwin and Mrs. Amanda Amos.

Yule Lights In Plaza On Saturday

ORANGE, Dec. 15. — The Christmas season will be opened here tomorrow night with the lighting of the Christmas trees in the circle around the plaza. Arrangements for the event were made at a meeting of the Merchants' Service bureau with J. Willis Thompson presiding. Stores will be kept open evenings until Christmas and decorations will be kept in place until after the New Year.

BAPTIST WOMEN MEET

ORANGE, Dec. 15.—Women of First Baptist church held their last sewing meeting of the year yesterday in the social hall. They met in the morning, devoting the time to working on two comforters. A covered dish luncheon was served at noon.

During the afternoon session Mrs. F. H. Sheerer conducted the Sunday school lesson for next Sunday. Weekly meetings of the sewing group will be resumed in January.

SOCIAL CIRCLE ARRANGES FOR GIFT EXCHANGE

ORANGE, Dec. 15.—Scepter Social Circle members and their families are to take part in a Christmas party Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock in Masonic hall. This is to take the place of the regular session originally scheduled for next Tuesday.

The affair will open with a covered dish dinner. There will be a Christmas tree, with exchange of gifts not to exceed 15 cents in value. In addition, members are to contribute gifts of food or clothing for the needy.

Card games will be played following the dinner. Mrs. E. J. Brown, Mrs. E. Kirkwood, Mrs. Lillian Bishop and Mrs. Gertrude Case, president, are on the committee arranging for the affair. Election of officers will take place during a business session.

Ask Reservations For Club Dinner

ORANGE, Dec. 15.—W. C. Armstrong, secretary of the Men's club, which will meet Monday night at the Trinity church parish hall, today urged that all members or others who plan to be present at the dinner, make reservations as early as possible. All men of the community are invited to be present to hear Buron Fitts discuss "The District Attorney's Office."

Thomas Flippen will present a number of instrumental selections, it has been announced by the program chairman, M. M. Fishback.

HELD FOR TRIAL

ORANGE, Dec. 15.—Pete Martinez, of El Modena, was bound over to the superior court in the court of Judge A. W. Swayze yesterday afternoon on a charge of rape. He was placed under bond of $2000, which he was unable to make, and was returned to the Orange county jail.

Make Appeal For C. C. C. Recreation Hall Furnishings

OFFICER ASKS DONATION OF RUGS, CHAIRS

Starting a movement to make the recreation hall at the Camp Trabuco, El Toro, C. C. C., a more home-like place for the 200 boys at camp, Lieut. David R. Hamilton, welfare officer at camp, through The Register, today made a public appeal for old cast-off rugs, furniture of any description or decorations which would brighten and add to the cheeriness of camp.

Lieutenant Hamilton, in a letter to The Register, pointed out that the boys have no diversion six days a week except to sit on hard benches in the recreation hall and play cards, or amuse themselves in other ways. Two trucks are available, and if persons with articles to donate will notify The Register or write Lieutenant Hamilton at headquarters, 912th Company, C. C. C., Camp Trabuco, El Toro, the articles will be picked up.

The letter from the welfare officers follows:

"We recall your very generous write-up of several weeks ago, and wish to take this opportunity to thank you for taking such an interest in our camp.

"As you know, we have 200 men here for whose comfort and welfare I am responsible. Their sole diversion during the week is to sit on hard benches in our recreation hall and either read or play cards. Rather prosaic for a bunch of lads who are accustomed to something better.

"I have tried to make their recreation hall as comfortable as possible and to give them everything within the means of our rather limited funds. Unfortunately, we have nothing with which to work.

"It has occurred to me that you might be able to help us through the medium of your paper. If we could make our hall a comfortable, home-like place instead of a barren barracks, I believe the boys would be far better satisfied and the espirit de corps and morale of our command would increace many fold. I believe it could be done by an appeal through your press to the citizenry of Santa Ana for old, but serviceable, rugs, cast-off furniture or any article of decoration that would brighten and add to the cherriness of this camp, the only home the boys have for six days each week. We have two trucks available and can send them at once at your convenience.

"I appeal to you for co-operation in this matter, and assure you you will have the appreciation of 200 fine young men, many of them from Santa Ana."

Charges Cruelty In Asking Divorce

Mrs. Helen Wilson Dolan has filed suit for divorce in superior court, alleging cruelty. The Dolans were married April 20, 1918, and were separated November 20, last, when her husband left the home of her parents at Costa Mesa where they were living at the time. Mrs. Dolan listed as community property household furnishings valued at $500 located at the home of her parents. In her complaint Mrs. Dolan alleged that her husband was given to sudden bursts of anger and said that on one occasion while at the table he struck their child above the eye with a spoon inflicting a permanent scar.

Washington Storms Wreck Highways, Flood Towns

PAST HARBOR DEVELOPMENT RESULTS IN BRINGING WEALTH TO TAX ROLLS

Showing how the growth and development of Newport Harbor has attracted hundreds of people from all over the United States to build fine homes in the district, because of its facilities for yachting, aquatic sports and other forms of recreational activities enhanced by ideal climate and weather conditions, a survey has just been completed which also reveals the harbor has proven a profitable investment for residents of Orange county.

Here hundreds of sportsmen, registering from all parts of the United States, as far away as staid and conservative Boston, have built beautiful homes. Some of these dwellings are veritable show places, comparing favorably in design and accommodations with those seen at the fashionable resorts on the Atlantic coast. Many of these residences have been built for all year round use. The greater number, however, at the present time, are classified as beach or summer homes.

The county tax bills on these homes run into a good-sized amount, and contributes toward the support of the city of Newport and the Orange county government. Surrounded by miniature gardens, and other forms of landscaping, these homes of wealthy sportsmen today furnish the nucleus of what with further harbor improvements may some day form a counterpart of the romantic resorts on the Mediterranean coast.

Island Growth

Thirty-five years ago Balboa Island, now one of the principal residence districts, was not much more than a mud flat. It was then known as Snipe Island—this because of the fact that snipe hatched there by the thousands. Its existence as a piece of real property did not appear on the records of the county assessor. Today, as a result of harbor improvements undertaken some 15 years ago, there are more than a thousand attractive homes. With clean, well paved and adequately lighted streets, the tract of barren mud flats has been transformed into an idyllic residence section. Located on the bay front is the Balboa Island Yacht club, a center of recreational and social activities during the summer months.

Not so many years ago what today is known as Lido Isle was also spoken of as overgrown sand bar. Today it is a high class, restricted residence district with streets and avenues, ornamental lighting posts, and other up-to-date improvements. These improvements alone represent an investment of more than a million dollars. There are no unsightly poles or wires, everything is underground. In additional to a beautiful clubhouse, there are close to 50 attractive homes, and now ones are either under construction or being planned.

Adding a touch of "haut monde" to the environs of the yacht colony is the swanky peninsula section with its stately mansions and beautiful homes, owned by men holding prominent positions in finance and industry. The influence of this exclusive section is beginning to be felt throughout the community, and is gradually changing the tone of the place. The creation of this fashionable district, housing the homes of the large yacht owners and other sportsmen, is due first and last to harbor improvement.

"Who's Who"

UNEMPLOYED COOPERATIVE ENDORSES PORT

Approval of the harbor improvement project as an unemployment measure as well as a much needed county development undertaking, is contained in a resolution adopted by the Cooperative Distributing Committee of Orange County at a meeting held yesterday afternoon at the committee's office and warehouse located on East Fourth street, near the Santa Fe depot.

The resolution follows:

"Whereas, prolonged unemployment and steady decrease in volume of business activities have resulted in a state of national emergency, and

"Whereas, as a result of such emergency, entailing considerable suffering among destitute persons, it has been found necessary as a matter of public policy to appropriate large amounts of county tax money for unemployment relief purposes, and

"Whereas, pursuant to such a policy, the Federal government has indicated a willingness to not only make a free gift of $1,195,441 but to advance the entire amount of $1,835,441, required for the financing of the proposed harbor improvement project, and

"Whereas, the county's share toward financing the project has been set at $640,000, or about one-third of the total cost, to be covered by a bond issue in that amount, and

"Whereas the proposed harbor improvement project will not only contribute in a large measure toward relieving unemployment in the county but at the same time pave the way for further development of the coast section, which in turn will lead to demand for labor, therefore

"Be It Resolved, that the Cooperative Distributing Committee of Orange county, representing 20 cooperative units, goes on record as endorsing the proposed labor bond issue, to be voted on next Tuesday, December 19, 1933, as a relief measure, providing the necessary fiscal machinery for a much needed county improvement project."

The resolution carries the signatures of Frank M. Bungan, vice chairman; William Ruddiman, secretary and treasurer; George Himes and M. Siddoway. In the absence of N. L. Dunsdon, of Garden Grove, chairman, who was unable to attend the meeting, Bungan presided over the meeting.

LEADERS GIVE APPROVAL TO HARBOR BONDS

The names of two community leaders, the Rev. Father F. A. Wekenman, pastor of the St. Joseph's Catholic Church of Santa Ana, and Mrs. Clara McPherson Jones, widely known W. C. T. U. worker of Orange, were added today to the growing list of supporters of the Orange county harbor development program, to be voted on next Tuesday.

The humanitarian side of the harbor project, as well as the economic side, is important in securing a deciding vote for the harbor district next Tuesday, declared Father Wekenman when asked for his views of the harbor improvement program.

"Right now is the time to take advantage of the most value per dollar investment that has ever been offered Orange county taxpayers in the development of Newport Bay, where nature already has given us one of the very few natural harbors on the Pacific coast," he declared.

Mrs. Jones, in expressing herself on the project, said, "Orange county must be a unit in developing this natural asset without petty sectional feeling. A vote for the harbor bonds will be an expression of the faith that most of us have in the future growth and prosperity of Orange county, and will indicate to the federal government the completeness of our co-operation in the national reemployment and recovery program."

Make Appeal For C. C. C. Recreation Hall Furnishings

OFFICER ASKS DONATION OF RUGS, CHAIRS

Starting a movement to make the recreation hall at the Camp Trabuco, El Toro, C. C. C., a more home-like place for the 200 boys at camp, Lieut. David R. Hamilton, welfare officer at camp, through The Register, today made a public appeal for old cast-off rugs, furniture of any description or decorations which would brighten and add to the cheeriness of camp.

Lieutenant Hamilton, in a letter to The Register, pointed out that the boys have no diversion six days a week except to sit on hard benches in the recreation hall and play cards, or amuse themselves in other ways. Two trucks are available, and if persons with articles to donate will notify The Register or write Lieutenant Hamilton at headquarters, 912th Company, C. C. C., Camp Trabuco, El Toro, the articles will be picked up.

The letter from the welfare officers follows:

"We recall your very generous write-up of several weeks ago, and wish to take this opportunity to thank you for taking such an interest in our camp.

"As you know, we have 200 men here for whose comfort and welfare I am responsible. Their sole diversion during the week is to sit on hard benches in our recreation hall and either read or play cards. Rather prosaic for a bunch of lads who are accustomed to something better.

"I have tried to make their recreation hall as comfortable as possible and to give them everything within the means of our rather limited funds. Unfortunately, we have nothing with which to work.

"It has occurred to me that you might be able to help us through the medium of your paper. If we could make our hall a comfortable, home-like place instead of a barren barracks, I believe the boys would be far better satisfied and the espirit de corps and morale of our command would increace many fold. I believe it could be done by an appeal through your press to the citizenry of Santa Ana for old, but serviceable, rugs, cast-off furniture or any article of decoration that would brighten and add to the cherriness of this camp, the only home the boys have for six days each week. We have two trucks available and can send them at once at your convenience.

"I appeal to you for co-operation in this matter, and assure you you will have the appreciation of 200 fine young men, many of them from Santa Ana."

Charges Cruelty In Asking Divorce

Mrs. Helen Wilson Dolan has filed suit for divorce in superior court, alleging cruelty. The Dolans were married April 20, 1918, and were separated November 20, last, when her husband left the home of her parents at Costa Mesa where they were living at the time. Mrs. Dolan listed as community property household furnishings valued at $500 located at the home of her parents. In her complaint Mrs. Dolan alleged that her husband was given to sudden bursts of anger and said that on one occasion while at the table he struck their child above the eye with a spoon inflicting a permanent scar.

Washington Storms Wreck Highways, Flood Towns

PAST HARBOR DEVELOPMENT RESULTS IN BRINGING WEALTH TO TAX ROLLS

Showing how the growth and development of Newport Harbor has attracted hundreds of people from all over the United States to build fine homes in the district, because of its facilities for yachting, aquatic sports and other forms of recreational activities enhanced by ideal climate and weather conditions, a survey has just been completed which also reveals the harbor has proven a profitable investment for residents of Orange county.

Here hundreds of sportsmen, registering from all parts of the United States, as far away as staid and conservative Boston, have built beautiful homes. Some of these dwellings are veritable show places, comparing favorably in design and accommodations with those seen at the fashionable resorts on the Atlantic coast. Many of these residences have been built for all year round use. The greater number, however, at the present time, are classified as beach or summer homes.

The county tax bills on these homes run into a good-sized amount, and contributes toward the support of the city of Newport and the Orange county government. Surrounded by miniature gardens, and other forms of landscaping, these homes of wealthy sportsmen today furnish the nucleus of what with further harbor improvements may some day form a counterpart of the romantic resorts on the Mediterranean coast.

Island Growth

Thirty-five years ago Balboa Island, now one of the principal residence districts, was not much more than a mud flat. It was then known as Snipe Island—this because of the fact that snipe hatched there by the thousands. Its existence as a piece of real property did not appear on the records of the county assessor. Today, as a result of harbor improvements undertaken some 15 years ago, there are more than a thousand attractive homes. With clean, well paved and adequately lighted streets, the tract of barren mud flats has been transformed into an idyllic residence section. Located on the bay front is the Balboa Island Yacht club, a center of recreational and social activities during the summer months.

Not so many years ago what today is known as Lido Isle was also spoken of as overgrown sand bar. Today it is a high class, restricted residence district with streets and avenues, ornamental lighting posts, and other up-to-date improvements. These improvements alone represent an investment of more than a million dollars. There are no unsightly poles or wires, everything is underground. In additional to a beautiful clubhouse, there are close to 50 attractive homes, and now ones are either under construction or being planned.

Adding a touch of "haut monde" to the environs of the yacht colony is the swanky peninsula section with its stately mansions and beautiful homes, owned by men holding prominent positions in finance and industry. The influence of this exclusive section is beginning to be felt throughout the community, and is gradually changing the tone of the place. The creation of this fashionable district, housing the homes of the large yacht owners and other sportsmen, is due first and last to harbor improvement.

"Who's Who"

UNEMPLOYED COOPERATIVE ENDORSES PORT

Approval of the harbor improvement project as an unemployment measure as well as a much needed county development undertaking, is contained in a resolution adopted by the Cooperative Distributing Committee of Orange County at a meeting held yesterday afternoon at the committee's office and warehouse located on East Fourth street, near the Santa Fe depot.

The resolution follows:

"Whereas, prolonged unemployment and steady decrease in volume of business activities have resulted in a state of national emergency, and

"Whereas, as a result of such emergency, entailing considerable suffering among destitute persons, it has been found necessary as a matter of public policy to appropriate large amounts of county tax money for unemployment relief purposes, and

"Whereas, pursuant to such a policy, the Federal government has indicated a willingness to not only make a free gift of $1,195,441 but to advance the entire amount of $1,835,441, required for the financing of the proposed harbor improvement project, and

"Whereas, the county's share toward financing the project has been set at $640,000, or about one-third of the total cost, to be covered by a bond issue in that amount, and

"Whereas the proposed harbor improvement project will not only contribute in a large measure toward relieving unemployment in the county but at the same time pave the way for further development of the coast section, which in turn will lead to demand for labor, therefore

"Be It Resolved, that the Cooperative Distributing Committee of Orange county, representing 20 cooperative units, goes on record as endorsing the proposed labor bond issue, to be voted on next Tuesday, December 19, 1933, as a relief measure, providing the necessary fiscal machinery for a much needed county improvement project."

The resolution carries the signatures of Frank M. Bungan, vice chairman; William Ruddiman, secretary and treasurer; George Himes and M. Siddoway. In the absence of N. L. Dunsdon, of Garden Grove, chairman, who was unable to attend the meeting, Bungan presided over the meeting.

Woman's Club Section Presents Enjoyable Evening Party

With various club husbands to help swell the crowd, Social section members of Santa Ana Woman's club staged a most enjoyable party Tuesday night, for which they were privileged to entertain in the Frank Ey home, 201 East Ninth street, with Mrs. E. M. Waycott and Mrs. R. C. Harris as hostesses, with Mrs. Ey's assistance.

The holiday theme of vivid decorations was enhanced by the gayety of the evening, which opened with a short program to which little Miss Patricia Ey and Master Donald Burns contributed a special number, a dance song, "Petting in the Park." Miss Patty followed this with a pretty reading, and then members of the club gave an amusing skit directed by Mrs. Waycott. Those taking part were Mesdames William Whitehead, M. M. Davis, Watkins, Mason and G. O. Goodwin.

Six tables were required for bridge players, while another group gathered around a special table reserved for anagrams. Attractive prizes selected by the hostess went to Mrs. W. E. Almas and to E. M. Waycott, scoring first and second high in bridge, and to Mrs. Mason, winner in anagrams.

Woman's club members are anticipating their Christmas meeting, to be held next Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Mrs. Ey's home. Mrs. E. M. Waycott, chairman, has promised a special musical program and an interesting speaker.

Wrycende Maegdenu

Miss Lucille Robinson led in group singing of Christmas carols, accompanied at the piano by Miss Clara Spelman. Miss Beulah Dudgeon, president, was in charge of the business interval, during which it was announced that a Christmas party will be held at the meeting next Tuesday night. All members are to contribute food to go in the club's Christmas baskets for those in need.

Class work is being suspended until after Christmas, when study groups will be resumed.

Eastern Star Chapter Holds Impressive Installation

Heading the staff of officers installed at the latest meeting of Santa Ana chapter O. E. S. in Masonic temple, Mrs. Lloyd Folger has taken her place as the youngest worthy matron in Orange county Eastern Star chapters.

There were the usual preliminaries to the ceremony, with George Shipe as master of ceremonies, introducing Nell Spaugh, installing marshal; Lillian Dawson, installing marshal; Mrs. Nye Martin, organist. Mrs. Florence Wright installed Mrs. Folger and the star points, and Mrs. George Shipe and Mr. Spaugh, retiring matron and patron, installed other officers. Mrs. Shipe wore a coral lace gown and Mrs. Folger wore a beaded crepe frock with which she carried a parasol of roses and sweet peas.

Honors were accorded present matrons and patrons of Orange county and past matrons and patrons of Santa Ana chapter.

Officers elect entered from a platform in the east through garden arches. As Sally Lee Scales accompanied by Janet Martin, sang "Open the Gates of the Temple," Audrey June and Joan Peterson held the gates open. The little girls carried parasols of fern and flowers, miniature of those carried by officers.

Installation of Mrs. Folger, worthy matron, Harvey Dimmitt, worthy patron, Dolly Dimmitt, associate matron and T. E. Hunter, sociate matron and T. S. Hunter a vocal solo by Frank Pearce, accompanied by Ruth Armstrong. Other solos given by Mr. Pearce, and by Sally Lee Scales interspersed the ceremony.

Others installed were Pearl Lyoan, secretary; Evah Wyckoff, treasurer; Flora Bruns, conductress; Betty Gowdy, associate conductress; Alice Hunter, chaplain; Evelyn Hershiser, proxy for Janet Martin, organist; Lou Hardy, proxy for Nell Spaugh, marshal; Marie Roehm, Marie Peterman, Hattie Bassler, Catherine Good and Elizabeth Roehm, the five star points; Frances Dennis, warder, Ray Snyder, sentinel.

In concluding a group of solos on the marimbaphone, Dr. Ralph Murane played "Star of the East" while new officers formed a tableau on the central star. Lights were dimmed, and officers were proclaimed installed by Mrs. Spaugh.

There were talks by Mrs. Folger and Mr. Dimmitt, with the latter presenting the worthy matron with a gavel. Mrs. Folger introduced Myrtle Shields, flag bearer and Lloyd Folger, electrician. Talks were given by deputy, Mrs. May Henry, deputy of district No. 56, Myrtle Clayton, and by Mrs. Florence Wright.

Matrons and patrons of Orange county for 1934 were escorted east. Mrs. Elizabeth Jernigan, past matron of Santa Ana chapter, presented Mrs. Shipe with a past matron's jewel as a gift of the chapter and of Mr. Shipe; Mr. Shipe presented Mr. Spaugh with the past patron's jewel.

Past patrons of Santa Ana chapter acted as ushers.

Husbands of Members Entertained at Dinner

The hostess had arranged a long table for the event, using as a centerpiece a tiny brick house surrounded by snow-covered trees. Holly blooms, tapers and nut cups in red and silver furthered the Christmas motif. All had contributed dishes to the delicious dinner.

Those present were Messrs. and Mesdames Elwayne Wilcox, Frank Bigelow, Stanley Palmer, James Merigold, Russell Johnson, Wayne Nelson, Ralph Cole, John Woolomes and the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Criddle.

KIWANIS CLUB YEAR CLIMAXED WITH BRILLIANT DINNER DANCE

Recurring once more at the season of "Good Will Toward Man," the annual installation of new officers of Santa Ana Kiwanis club last night gave opportunity to the members of that prominent civic organization to express the spirit in one of its happiest forms, a dinner and dance in which Kiwanis wives shared the honors accorded the new executives.

Ebell clubhouse was the scene of this year's function at which Dr. Harry G. Huffman passed the president's gavel to Theo. A. Winbigler, his successor in the office which Dr. Huffman has filled so capably for the year of 1933.

Spirit Of Yule

Everything spoke eloquently of Christmas. There was the big fir tree, glittering with tis silver rain, which Girl's Ebell society is maintaining for its charitable purposes; there were baskets of giant poinsettias, long tables garlanded with cotoneaster in readiness for the fine turkey dinner served by an Ebell section, and to complete the merriment, there was Santa Claus himself and a generous distribution of gifts.

Commanding the vista of diners, was the special table where Dr. Huffman presided over the opening ceremonial of salute to the flag, singing of America, and the invocation pronounced by the Rev. Harry Evan Owings. Seated with him were Mrs. Huffman, Emmett Berry of La Habra, lieutenant governor of District No. 4, and Mrs. Berry, Mr. and Mrs. Theo. A. Winbigler, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crowell and Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Newcom

Inaugural Talks

Dr. Huffman gave a concise account of the club's accomplishments during the year. These included a growth in membership despite existing conditions, and a consistent attention to the needs of under privileged children, one of the main objectives of Kiwanis club.

In presenting the past president's button to Dr. Huffman, the lieutenant governor, Mr. Berry, spoke appreciatively of his service to club and community and the need of such leadership in correcting some of the faults of present day civic life. The ideals of service and fellowship so expressed, were advocated for the continuation of club affairs under the regime of Mr. Winbigler, his successor in office.

Prominent Santa Anans who have received the president's badge were named as O. A. Haley, M. Burr Wellington, O. H. Barr, R. G. Miller, George Wells, W. Verne Whitson, Orlyn Robertson, Dr. H. McVicker Smith, George S. Smith, Roy George, Charles E. Walker, Fred Newcomb and Dr. Huffman. The button was then presented to Mr. Winbigler, whose inaugural talk was spiced with genial humor as he pledged himself to uphold the traditions and standards of the office.

Installed with him were Loren G. Moore, vice president; Fred Crowell, secretary, and R. B. Newcom, treasurer. Introduced as directors to serve two years were Messrs. A. H. Allen, C. W. Rowland, Charles E. Walker and Dr. J. E. Paul while those to serve one year were Ellis Diehl, George Dunton and George S. Smith.

Program Numbers

Program features of the dinner hour were given with a vivacity and enthusiasm inspired by the leadership of James McGarrigle of Long Beach. With Louise Shirey's orchestra to accompany some of the songs, and Art Cannon at the piano for others, he led in the spirited singing of one club song after another. It was in his solo work however that he aroused special enthusiasm. 'When the Sunset Turns the Ocean's Blue to Gold," and "When Irish Eyes are Smiling," were among his songs, but his outstanding number was "Stout-Hearted Men" from Rombird's "Blue Moon," sung with a tempo and expression that made it one of the high lights of the evening.

Carter Lane was another appreciated soloist, using a new Kiwanis song and calling the diners to join in at its repetition. Mrs. Charles E. Walker, leading "Kiwanette" and wife of a past president, was acclaimed as author and composer, and was given an ovation for her accomplishment.

College Quartet

At intervals during the dancing which followed the inaugural rites, additional entertainment was provided by the Junior College Male quartet with Miss Esther Vogt at the piano. The young men sang such enjoyable numbers as "The Load Is Heavy," "Nona," "The West Wind," and by special request, an amusing adaptation of the Rigoletto quartet.

The merriest feature of the evening was the arrival of Santa Claus, wheeling his way into the room on a special bicycle, and pausing for lively quips before his distribution of gaily wrapped packages. After Kiwanettes had examined their pretty trophies of the e ing, the men jubilated over horns, drums and similar noisy toys until the ballroom was like a huge nursery with every child a happy one.

Dancing their way gaily through the evening to the enlivening music of Louise Shirey's orchestra, Kiwanians and Kiwanettes were unanimous in declaring that the party was the nicest of the year. Special appreciation was expressed for the work of the entertainment committee members and their wives, Orlyn Robertson, chairman, and Mrs. Robertson and Messrs and Mesdames Otto Haan, Fred Newcomb, Fred Crowell and Dr. Hiram D. Currey.

Showers Descend Upon Honor Guest From Sunny Skies

Although Christmas appointments reigned throughout the Harry G. Huffman home, 2340 Riverside drive, the dining room decorative theme was all in delicate tones of pink and blue for a delightful tea which Mrs. Huffman and Mrs. Newell Moore gave this week, complimenting Mrs. Hiram M. Currey, wife of one of the colleagues of Dr. Huffman and Dr. Moore.

The significance of these colors, so identified with infancy, was stressed by the pleasant occupation which the hostesses had planned for their guests. For quilt blocks of Mother Goose rhymes and nursery designs, were distributed, and time was devoted to finishing these for a cradle quilt to be presented Mrs. Currey.

The two small daughters of the home, Harriet LaRue and Betty Ann Huffman, were given part in the entertainment program, distributing pencils and score cards for an amusing guessing game. Mrs. Merrill Hollingsworth scored in this, and was suitably rewarded.

Mrs. Arthur May (Irma Huffman May) gave further emphasis to the intimate theme of the afternoon by singing in her clear and lovely soprano, Dichmont's "Such a Little Fellow" and "His Little Teddy Bear" by Levey. Mrs. J. R. P. Nicoll was her accompanist.

When little Miss Harriet LaRue presented a cunning pink and white rattle to Mrs. Currey, the latter discovered that its ribbons offered clues to where she might look for packages. When these were assembled she had the pleasure of examining and claiming an unusually lovely assortment of layette gifts.

At the tea hour Mrs. Donald Leyden of Doheny Palisades, and Mrs. Kenneth Sutherland were seated in the dining room at a table spread with handsome Italian linen and centered with pink snapdragons and lacy perennial baby breath. Slender pink candles flickered on the table and about the room, especially on the buffet where prominence was given a pink cradle basket filled with blossoms and guarded by a stork.

The tea menu included delicate little sandwiches, a snowy Christmas pudding, cakes, nuts and other dainties.

Royal Neighbors

Laying plans for their new year's work by electing officers, Royal Neighbors of America held their latest meeting in M. W. A. hall. Installation is to take place on January 22, with Mrs. Nettie Smith as installing officer.

Mrs. Pearl Laub was re-elected oracle. Others named were Mrs. Lottie Bacon, past oracle; Mrs. Lenora Farmer, vice oracle; Mrs. Laura Dunlap, recorder; Mrs. Marguerite Crawford, receiver; Mrs. Cora Breeding, chancellor; Miss Frances Miller, marshal; Mrs. Gladys Harmon, assistant marshal; Mrs. Florence Terpstra, inner sentinel; Mrs. Mary Carlson, outer sentinel; Ashley Knowlton, manager; Mrs. Grace Gross, musician.

Miss Erline Farmer and Mrs. Hazel Hess were initiated as new members, and Mrs. Ollis Jacobs, who transferred from Colorado, was welcomed. Mrs. Mary Ickhoff of South Dakota was a special guest.

Members have set their next meting date ahead to December 18, at which time a Christmas party will be held. Santa Claus is to be present, and there will be a program by the Meglin Kiddies.

Daughters of Veterans

Mesdames Emma Pankey, Viva Gossett and Marjorie Letto were initiated members of Sarah A. Rounds tent, Daughters of Union Veterans, at a meeting held Tuesday afternoon in Knights of Pythias hall. Application for membership was received from Jennie Johnson.

Mrs. Rowema Grout presided over the meeting, during which it was reported that $32.50 had been expended for relief work; 71 calls made, and 18 bouquets distributed.

The tent received invitation to hold joint installation of officers with Sons of Veterans, January 12, at 8 p. m., in the hall.

Pretty Gift Showers Express Welcome To Tiny Boy

When Mrs. John Garthe and Mrs. Percy Atwood entertained this week in the home of Mrs. Garthe, 1101 West Walnut street, as a compliment to Mrs. G. S. Helms of Los Angeles and her infant son, John Gaylord Helms, the party was given on the anniversary of Master John Gaylord's arrival just a month earlier.

Mrs. Helms was Miss Murl Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Williams, 819 North Baker street, and the party was planned as a happy surprise to her on her first visit home with her infant son. Amidst the colorful Christmas wreaths and candles dominated by a glittering tree, the co-hostesses introduced the game of cootie substituting the name "Johnny" for the word "cootie" in the application of the merry contest. Mrs. Helms herself scored high in the contest, and received an attractive prize.

As the guests were grouped in foursomes for the game, they were asked to remain in this formation for compiling a scrapbook whose pictures depicted the baby's progress through infancy, boyhood and manhood, for his future enjoyment and entertainment.

For the chief feature of the afternoon, Mrs. Helms found that the Christmas tree bore special fruit, for a roly poly Santa Claus arrived and denuded the branches of their packages. Those for the honor guest proved to be layette articles, but in addition there was a pretty gift for each one present. Master James Brown made an ideal Santa Claus.

Completing their hospitality, the hostesses arranged the tables with bright red Christmas candles in fluted green holders, and served a Christmas pudding with whipped cream and coffee. At each place was a small red candle over which the guests toasted marshmallows to enjoy with the coffee.

Welcome to Baby

The first opportunity which Mrs. Helms' relatives had to greet the little new son, was at a similar party planned earlier in the week by Mrs. Alva Williams of this city, Mrs. Rolla Ebersole of Pomona and Mrs. Ray Johnson of Garden Grove.

Calling together all the closely knitted little group of their guests, the three young matrons arranged to meet in Los Angeles and surprise Mrs. Helms in her own home. It was the happiest kind of an afternoon, and the hostess trio had planned special needlework as entertainment, giving prizes for speed and neatness in sewing, to Mrs. Ira Williams and Mrs. D. K. Blue.

For the shower feature, they had contrived a colorful wheelbarrow in pale blue and yellow, which was filled with the daintily wrapped gifts. Its colors were repeated in the flowers and the pretty nutcups which were features of the refreshment course served at the close of the afternoon.

Relatives assembled for this enjoyable affair with the honor guest, Mrs. Helms and her baby son, were her mother, Mrs. Charles Williams, Mrs. Robert J. Brown and Mrs. Gilbert E. Gale of Santa Ana; Mrs. Neal Wierda, Temple City; Mrs. Ira Williams and Mrs. Frank White, Pomona; Mrs. Paul Norman, Mrs. D. K. Blue and Mrs. Mabel Ulve, Balboa; Mrs. Mabel Nolan and Miss Mildred Nolan, Santa Monica; Mrs. Joe Luli, Los Angeles, and the three hostesses, Mrs. Ebersole, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Alva Williams.

Honor Guests Present Fine Program for Musical Arts

One of the most enjoyable programs to have its inspiration in the holiday just now holding the world's interest, was that of the Musical Arts club on Tuesday evening, when approximately 30 members dined together at Garden Inn as a preliminary to the program and social evening in the home of the president, Ollimae Enlow Matthews, 2519 North Main street.

Many members who were unable to be present at the earlier hour, could arrange their time to share the after dinner program, so it was a much larger audience that complimented by a close attention, the fine program given by Estelle Heartt Dreyfus, famous contralto, and her husband, Louis Ernest Dreyfus, who came from Pasadena as a courtesy to Mary Batten Steffenson (Mrs. J. Leslie Steffenson).

During travels abroad, Madame Dreyfus had collected a number of unusual folk songs native to different countries visited. Especially interesting were those from Spain, and in the group which she sang, just as they were sung originally, without accompaniment, were "Night Watch man's Call," "Song of the Wheat Sowers" and "Cradle Song."

At intervals during the evening, she gave other equally beautiful numbers, for which accompaniments were played by Mrs. Steffenson, her vocal pupil. A tender love song by Richard Strauss was sung in its original German, and for an English group she chose among others, Mrs. Steffenson's own arrangement of "Woman of My Dreams" by Marie Monaco, ending with a French composition, "Laisse Morte Parler."

Interspersed with the song numbers were various poems and readings by Mr. Dreyfus, an accomplished linguist. Madame Dreyfus read the English translation first in each case. The numbers included "Song of the Pirate" in French; "Journey to Kediaar" in German; several Fontane fables, including "The Oak and the Reed," "The Wolf and the Dog," and other request numbers, including some in Italian for Professor S. J. Mustol.

During the remainder of the evening, special pleasure was gained from the general singing of Christmas carols, led by Mrs. George Swift Harper of Orange, a new member of the Musical Arts club.

Newly Elected Leader Of Federation Honored

Honoring Mrs. C. F. Millen, who is to be installed president of W. R. C. Federation No. 1 at ceremonies to be conducted in Santa Ana in January, Mrs. Elizabeth Birkhead entertained Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Emma Mosbaugh, 636 North Broadway.

A social afternoon, during which games and contests were enjoyed, was brought to a close with the serving of refreshments on individual trays appointed with doilies and little favors. Mrs. Birkhead's daughter, Mrs. Jesse Elliott, assisted at this time.

Those present other than Mrs. Birkhead, Mrs. Mosbaugh and Mrs. Elliott were the honor guest, Mrs. Millen, who is a member of Sedgwick W. R. C.; Mrs. Julia Cozad, president of the latter organization; Mrs. Clara Winn of Fullerton, senior vice president of Federation No. 1; Mrs. Mabel DeLacy of Fullerton, president of Fullerton Corps; Mrs. Maude English, president of Anaheim Corps, and Mesdames Lula Hall, Bell McConnell, Media Brayton, Meta Caldwell, Sarah Brown, Geraldine Beall, Retta Campbell, Gertrude Record, Beatrice Hossler, Hattie Cozard, Estelle Grey, Daisy Rose, Lena Patterson, Bertha Thompson and Nannie Myers.

Relief Corps

Officers were elected Wednesday afternoon at a meeting of Sedgwick W. R. C., held in Knights of Pythias hall. Installation is scheduled for Wednesday, January 10.

Those named to lead the organization were Lula Hall, president; Geraldine Beall, senior vice president; Cora Adams, junior vice president; Media Brayton, treasurer; Mabel Elliott, chaplain; Elizabeth Birkhead, conductor; Theresa Ryan, guard.

In preparation for the convention to be held in May, 1933, in Long Beach, delegates were elected. They were Beatrice Hoesles, Nannie Myers, Meta Caldwell, Della Miller, Bertha Thompson. Alternates chosen were Bell McConnell, Edith Barton, Mabel Elliott, Hattie Cozad and Elizabeth Wray.

Mrs. Julia Cozad, president, was in charge of the meeting, attended by 15 officers and 25 members. It was reported that 134 calls had been made and 29 bouquets distributed. The charter was draped in memory of Mrs. Addie Birdsell.

Announcements

Ebell Second Travel section members are to stage their annual holiday party on Monday, December 18, meeting in the clubhouse for 12:30 o'clock luncheon as guests of Mrs. Elmer Barr Burns, Mrs Leo Borchard and Mrs. G. W. Canter. In the afternoon, Mrs. Theo Winbigler, leader, will conduct a short business session preliminary to a Christmas program and the exchange of white elephant gifts. Section members unable to be present are asked to telephone Mrs. Burns, 529-R, not later than Saturday night.

The Girl Scouts' cooking class, conducted by Margaret S. Lackland will meet tomorrow morning, at 9:30 o'clock, in Southern Counties Gas company hall. Miss Lackland will give instructions in biscuit making. Mothers of the girls may attend with them.

Santa Ana Ebell's annual holiday dance for its young people will be tendered them this year on Friday, December 29, at 8:30 p. m., in the clubhouse ballroom. Tickets for sons and daughters of members and their guests may be obtained from Mrs. Hugh Shields or Mrs. Harold Segerstrom.

Ebell Current Events section, scheduled to meet on the fourth Tuesday of the month, will instead hold its December meeting on Tuesday of next week. Members are asked to meet in the clubhouse promptly at 12:30 o'clock, with Mesdames Loyal K. King, R. K. Scovel, Roy Langley and Hugh Shields as luncheon hostesses. Each member is to take a gift for the Christmas exchange.

American Legion Auxiliary Mothers' club will hold an all-day meeting Monday in the home of Mrs. John Faught, 720 East Third street. A covered dish luncheon will be served at noon, and a gift exchange will be held in the afternoon. Gifts are not to exceed 15 cents. Those in need of transportation are to call Edna Eklund, at 547-J.

California State Nurses' association, District 16, will celebrate tonight with a Christmas party in the home of Mrs. Mabel Grouard, 1076 West Fourth street. The party will begin at 8 o'clock, and will eliminate all business details of the association.

The Ladies' Aid of First Christian church will entertain with a silver tea Tuesday afternoon, at 2:45 o'clock, in the educational building. Proceeds will go for the benefit of the Old People's Home at San Gabriel. The afternoon will include a program, and light refreshments will be served.

Woman's Club Section Presents Enjoyable Evening Party

With various club husbands to help swell the crowd, Social section members of Santa Ana Woman's club staged a most enjoyable party Tuesday night, for which they were privileged to entertain in the Frank Ey home, 201 East Ninth street, with Mrs. E. M. Waycott and Mrs. R. C. Harris as hostesses, with Mrs. Ey's assistance.

The holiday theme of vivid decorations was enhanced by the gayety of the evening, which opened with a short program to which little Miss Patricia Ey and Master Donald Burns contributed a special number, a dance song, "Petting in the Park." Miss Patty followed this with a pretty reading, and then members of the club gave an amusing skit directed by Mrs. Waycott. Those taking part were Mesdames William Whitehead, M. M. Davis, Watkins, Mason and G. O. Goodwin.

Six tables were required for bridge players, while another group gathered around a special table reserved for anagrams. Attractive prizes selected by the hostess went to Mrs. W. E. Almas and to E. M. Waycott, scoring first and second high in bridge, and to Mrs. Mason, winner in anagrams.

Woman's club members are anticipating their Christmas meeting, to be held next Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Mrs. Ey's home. Mrs. E. M. Waycott, chairman, has promised a special musical program and an interesting speaker.

Wrycende Maegdenu

Miss Lucille Robinson led in group singing of Christmas carols, accompanied at the piano by Miss Clara Spelman. Miss Beulah Dudgeon, president, was in charge of the business interval, during which it was announced that a Christmas party will be held at the meeting next Tuesday night. All members are to contribute food to go in the club's Christmas baskets for those in need.

Class work is being suspended until after Christmas, when study groups will be resumed.

Eastern Star Chapter Holds Impressive Installation

Heading the staff of officers installed at the latest meeting of Santa Ana chapter O. E. S. in Masonic temple, Mrs. Lloyd Folger has taken her place as the youngest worthy matron in Orange county Eastern Star chapters.

There were the usual preliminaries to the ceremony, with George Shipe as master of ceremonies, introducing Nell Spaugh, installing marshal; Lillian Dawson, installing marshal; Mrs. Nye Martin, organist. Mrs. Florence Wright installed Mrs. Folger and the star points, and Mrs. George Shipe and Mr. Spaugh, retiring matron and patron, installed other officers. Mrs. Shipe wore a coral lace gown and Mrs. Folger wore a beaded crepe frock with which she carried a parasol of roses and sweet peas.

Honors were accorded present matrons and patrons of Orange county and past matrons and patrons of Santa Ana chapter.

Officers elect entered from a platform in the east through garden arches. As Sally Lee Scales accompanied by Janet Martin, sang "Open the Gates of the Temple," Audrey June and Joan Peterson held the gates open. The little girls carried parasols of fern and flowers, miniature of those carried by officers.

Installation of Mrs. Folger, worthy matron, Harvey Dimmitt, worthy patron, Dolly Dimmitt, associate matron and T. E. Hunter, sociate matron and T. S. Hunter a vocal solo by Frank Pearce, accompanied by Ruth Armstrong. Other solos given by Mr. Pearce, and by Sally Lee Scales interspersed the ceremony.

Others installed were Pearl Lyoan, secretary; Evah Wyckoff, treasurer; Flora Bruns, conductress; Betty Gowdy, associate conductress; Alice Hunter, chaplain; Evelyn Hershiser, proxy for Janet Martin, organist; Lou Hardy, proxy for Nell Spaugh, marshal; Marie Roehm, Marie Peterman, Hattie Bassler, Catherine Good and Elizabeth Roehm, the five star points; Frances Dennis, warder, Ray Snyder, sentinel.

In concluding a group of solos on the marimbaphone, Dr. Ralph Murane played "Star of the East" while new officers formed a tableau on the central star. Lights were dimmed, and officers were proclaimed installed by Mrs. Spaugh.

There were talks by Mrs. Folger and Mr. Dimmitt, with the latter presenting the worthy matron with a gavel. Mrs. Folger introduced Myrtle Shields, flag bearer and Lloyd Folger, electrician. Talks were given by deputy, Mrs. May Henry, deputy of district No. 56, Myrtle Clayton, and by Mrs. Florence Wright.

Matrons and patrons of Orange county for 1934 were escorted east. Mrs. Elizabeth Jernigan, past matron of Santa Ana chapter, presented Mrs. Shipe with a past matron's jewel as a gift of the chapter and of Mr. Shipe; Mr. Shipe presented Mr. Spaugh with the past patron's jewel.

Past patrons of Santa Ana chapter acted as ushers.

Husbands of Members Entertained at Dinner

The hostess had arranged a long table for the event, using as a centerpiece a tiny brick house surrounded by snow-covered trees. Holly blooms, tapers and nut cups in red and silver furthered the Christmas motif. All had contributed dishes to the delicious dinner.

Those present were Messrs. and Mesdames Elwayne Wilcox, Frank Bigelow, Stanley Palmer, James Merigold, Russell Johnson, Wayne Nelson, Ralph Cole, John Woolomes and the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Criddle.

Recurring once more at the season of "Good Will Toward Man," the annual installation of new officers of Santa Ana Kiwanis club last night gave opportunity to the members of that prominent civic organization to express the spirit in one of its happiest forms, a dinner and dance in which Kiwanis wives shared the honors accorded the new executives.

Ebell clubhouse was the scene of this year's function at which Dr. Harry G. Huffman passed the president's gavel to Theo. A. Winbigler, his successor in the office capably for the year of 1933.

Spirit Of Yule

Everything spoke eloquently of Christmas. There was the big fir tree, glittering with tis silver rain, which Girl's Ebell society is maintaining for its charitable purposes; there were baskets of giant poinsettias, long tables garlanded with cotoneaster in readiness for the fine turkey dinner served by an Ebell section, and to complete the merriment, there was Santa Claus himself and a generous distribution of gifts.

Commanding the vista of diners, was the special table where Dr. Huffman presided over the opening ceremonial of salute to the flag, singing of America, and the invocation pronounced by the Rev. Harry Evan Owings. Seated with him were Mrs. Huffman, Emmett Berry of La Habra, lieutenant governor of District No. 4, and Mrs. Berry, Mr. and Mrs. Theo. A. Winbigler, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crowell and Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Newcom

Dr. Huffman gave a concise account of the club's accomplishments during the year. These included a growth in membership despite existing conditions, and a consistent attention to the needs of under privileged children, one of the main objectives of Kiwanis club.

In presenting the past president's button to Dr. Huffman, the lieutenant governor, Mr. Berry, spoke appreciatively of his service to club and community and the need of such leadership in correcting some of the faults of present day civic life. The ideals of service and fellowship so expressed, were advocated for the continuation of club affairs under the regime of Mr. Winbigler, his successor in office.

Prominent Santa Anans who have received the president's badge were named as O. A. Haley, M. Burr Wellington, O. H. Barr, R. G. Miller, George Wells, W. Verne Whitson, Orlyn Robertson, Dr. H. McVicker Smith, George S. Smith, Roy George, Charles E. Walker, Fred Newcomb and Dr. Huffman. The button was then presented to Mr. Winbigler, whose inaugural talk was spiced with genial humor as he pledged himself to uphold the traditions and standards of the office.

Installed with him were Loren G. Moore, vice president; Fred Crowell, secretary, and R. B. Newcom, treasurer. Introduced as directors to serve two years were Messrs. A. H. Allen, C. W. Rowland, Charles E. Walker and Dr. J. E. Paul while those to serve one year were Ellis Diehl, George Dunton and George S. Smith.

Program Numbers

Program features of the dinner hour were given with a vivacity and enthusiasm inspired by the leadership of James McGarrigle of Long Beach. With Louise Shirey's orchestra to accompany some of the songs, and Art Cannon at the piano for others, he led in the spirited singing of one club song after another. It was in his solo work however that he aroused special enthusiasm. 'When the Sunset Turns the Ocean's Blue to Gold," and "When Irish Eyes are Smiling," were among his songs, but his outstanding number was "Stout-Hearted Men" from Rombird's "Blue Moon," sung with a tempo and expression that made it one of the high lights of the evening.

Carter Lane was another appreciated soloist, using a new Kiwanis song and calling the diners to join in at its repetition. Mrs. Charles E. Walker, leading "Kiwanette" and wife of a past president, was acclaimed as author and composer, and was given an ovation for her accomplishment.

College Quartet

At intervals during the dancing which followed the inaugural rites, additional entertainment was provided by the Junior College Male quartet with Miss Esther Vogt at the piano. The young men sang such enjoyable numbers as "The Load Is Heavy," "Nona," "The West Wind," and by special request, an amusing adaptation of the Rigoletto quartet.

The merriest feature of the evening was the arrival of Santa Claus, wheeling his way into the room on a special bicycle, and pausing for lively quips before his distribution of gaily wrapped packages. After Kiwanettes had examined their pretty trophies of the evening, the men jubilated over horns, drums and similar noisy toys until the ballroom was like a huge nursery with every child a happy one.

Dancing their way gaily through the evening to the enlivening music of Louise Shirey's orchestra, Kiwanians and Kiwanettes were unanimous in declaring that the party was the nicest of the year. Special appreciation was expressed for the work of the entertainment committee members and their wives, Orlyn Robertson, chairman, and Mrs. Robertson and Messrs and Mesdames Otto Haan, Fred Newcomb, Fred Crowell and Dr. Hiram D. Currey.

Showers Descend Upon Honor Guest From Sunny Skies

Although Christmas appointments reigned throughout the Harry G. Huffman home, 2340 Riverside drive, the dining room decorative theme was all in delicate tones of pink and blue for a delightful tea which Mrs. Huffman and Mrs. Newell Moore gave this week, complimenting Mrs. Hiram M. Currey, wife of one of the colleagues of Dr. Huffman and Dr. Moore.

The significance of these colors, so identified with infancy, was stressed by the pleasant occupation which the hostesses had planned for their guests. For quilt blocks of Mother Goose rhymes and nursery designs, were distributed, and time was devoted to finishing these for a cradle quilt to be presented Mrs. Currey.

The two small daughters of the home, Harriet LaRue and Betty Ann Huffman, were given part in the entertainment program, distributing pencils and score cards for an amusing guessing game. Mrs. Merrill Hollingsworth scored in this, and was suitably rewarded.

Mrs. Arthur May (Irma Huffman May) gave further emphasis to the intimate theme of the afternoon by singing in her clear and lovely soprano, Dichmont's "Such a Little Fellow" and "His Little Teddy Bear" by Levey. Mrs. J. R. P. Nicoll was her accompanist.

When little Miss Harriet LaRue presented a cunning pink and white rattle to Mrs. Currey, the latter discovered that its ribbons offered clues to where she might look for packages. When these were assembled she had the pleasure of examining and claiming an unusually lovely assortment of layette gifts.

At the tea hour Mrs. Donald Leyden of Doheny Palisades, and Mrs. Kenneth Sutherland were seated in the dining room at a table spread with handsome Italian linen and centered with pink snapdragons and lacy perennial baby breath. Slender pink candles flickered on the table and about the room, especially on the buffet where prominence was given a pink cradle basket filled with blossoms and guarded by a stork.

The tea menu included delicate little sandwiches, a snowy Christmas pudding, cakes, nuts and other dainties.

Royal Neighbors

Laying plans for their new year's work by electing officers, Royal Neighbors of America held their latest meeting in M. W. A. hall. Installation is to take place on January 22, with Mrs. Nettie Smith as installing officer.

Mrs. Pearl Laub was re-elected oracle. Others named were Mrs. Lottie Bacon, past oracle; Mrs. Lenora Farmer, vice oracle; Mrs. Laura Dunlap, recorder; Mrs. Marguerite Crawford, receiver; Mrs. Cora Breeding, chancellor; Miss Frances Miller, marshal; Mrs. Gladys Harmon, assistant marshal; Mrs. Florence Terpstra, inner sentinel; Mrs. Mary Carlson, outer sentinel; Ashley Knowlton, manager; Mrs. Grace Gross, musician.

Miss Erline Farmer and Mrs. Hazel Hess were initiated as new members, and Mrs. Ollis Jacobs, who transferred from Colorado, was welcomed. Mrs. Mary Ickhoff of South Dakota was a special guest.

Members have set their next meting date ahead to December 18, at which time a Christmas party will be held. Santa Claus is to be present, and there will be a program by the Meglin Kiddies.

Daughters of Veterans

Mesdames Emma Pankey, Viva Gossett and Marjorie Letto were initiated members of Sarah A. Rounds tent, Daughters of Union Veterans, at a meeting held Tuesday afternoon in Knights of Pythias hall. Application for membership was received from Jennie Johnson.

Mrs. Rowema Grout presided over the meeting, during which it was reported that $32.50 had been expended for relief work; 71 calls made, and 18 bouquets distributed.

The tent received invitation to hold joint installation of officers with Sons of Veterans, January 12, at 8 p. m., in the hall.

When Mrs. John Garthe and Mrs. Percy Atwood entertained this week in the home of Mrs. Garthe, 1101 West Walnut street, as a compliment to Mrs. G. S. Helms of Los Angeles and her infant son, John Gaylord Helms, the party was given on the anniversary of Master John Gaylord's arrival just a month earlier.

Mrs. Helms was Miss Murl Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Williams, 819 North Baker street, and the party was planned as a happy surprise to her on her first visit home with her infant son. Amidst the colorful Christmas wreaths and candles dominated by a glittering tree, the co-hostesses introduced the game of cootie substituting the name "Johnny" for the word "cootie" in the application of the merry contest. Mrs. Helms herself scored high in the contest, and received an attractive prize.

As the guests were grouped in foursomes for the game, they were asked to remain in this formation for compiling a scrapbook whose pictures depicted the baby's progress through infancy, boyhood and manhood, for his future enjoyment and entertainment.

For the chief feature of the afternoon, Mrs. Helms found that the Christmas tree bore special fruit, for a roly poly Santa Claus arrived and denuded the branches of their packages. Those for the honor guest proved to be layette articles, but in addition there was a pretty gift for each one present. Master James Brown made an ideal Santa Claus.

Completing their hospitality, the hostesses arranged the tables with bright red Christmas candles in fluted green holders, and served a Christmas pudding with whipped cream and coffee. At each place was a small red candle over which the guests toasted marshmallows to enjoy with the coffee.

Welcome to Baby

The first opportunity which Mrs. Helms' relatives had to greet the little new son, was at a similar party planned earlier in the week by Mrs. Alva Williams of this city, Mrs. Rolla Ebersole of Pomona and Mrs. Ray Johnson of Garden Grove.

Calling together all the closely knitted little group of their guests, the three young matrons arranged to meet in Los Angeles and surprise Mrs. Helms in her own home. It was the happiest kind of an afternoon, and the hostess trio had planned special needlework as entertainment, giving prizes for speed and neatness in sewing, to Mrs. Ira Williams and Mrs. D. K. Blue.

For the shower feature, they had contrived a colorful wheelbarrow in pale blue and yellow, which was filled with the daintily wrapped gifts. Its colors were repeated in the flowers and the pretty nutcups which were features of the refreshment course served at the close of the afternoon.

Relatives assembled for this enjoyable affair with the honor guest, Mrs. Helms and her baby son, were her mother, Mrs. Charles Williams, Mrs. Robert J. Brown and Mrs. Gilbert E. Gale of Santa Ana; Mrs. Neal Wierda, Temple City; Mrs. Ira Williams and Mrs. Frank White, Pomona; Mrs. Paul Norman, Mrs. D. K. Blue and Mrs. Mabel Ulve, Balboa; Mrs. Mabel Nolan and Miss Mildred Nolan, Santa Monica; Mrs. Joe Luli, Los Angeles, and the three hostesses, Mrs. Ebersole, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Alva Williams.

Honor Guests Present Fine Program for Musical Arts

One of the most enjoyable programs to have its inspiration in the holiday just now holding the world's interest, was that of the Musical Arts club on Tuesday evening, when approximately 30 members dined together at Garden Inn as a preliminary to the program and social evening in the home of the president, Ollimae Enlow Matthews, 2519 North Main street.

Many members who were unable to be present at the earlier hour, could arrange their time to share the after dinner program, so it was a much larger audience that complimented by a close attention, the fine program given by Estelle Heartt Dreyfus, famous contralto, and her husband, Louis Ernest Dreyfus, who came from Pasadena as a courtesy to Mary Batten Steffenson (Mrs. J. Leslie Steffenson).

During travels abroad, Madame Dreyfus had collected a number of unusual folk songs native to different countries visited. Especially interesting were those from Spain, and in the group which she sang, just as they were sung originally, without accompaniment, were "Night Watch man's Call," "Song of the Wheat Sowers" and "Cradle Song."

At intervals during the evening, she gave other equally beautiful numbers, for which accompaniments were played by Mrs. Steffenson, her vocal pupil. A tender love song by Richard Strauss was sung in its original German, and for an English group she chose among others, Mrs. Steffenson's own arrangement of "Woman of My Dreams" by Marie Monaco, ending with a French composition, "Laisse Morte Parler."

Interspersed with the song numbers were various poems and readings by Mr. Dreyfus, an accomplished linguist. Madame Dreyfus read the English translation first in each case. The numbers included "Song of the Pirate" in French; "Journey to Kediaar" in German; several Fontane fables, including "The Oak and the Reed," "The Wolf and the Dog," and other request numbers, including some in Italian for Professor S. J. Mustol.

During the remainder of the evening, special pleasure was gained from the general singing of Christmas carols, led by Mrs. George Swift Harper of Orange, a new member of the Musical Arts club.

Newly Elected Leader Of Federation Honored

Honoring Mrs. C. F. Millen, who is to be installed president of W. R. C. Federation No. 1 at ceremonies to be conducted in Santa Ana in January, Mrs. Elizabeth Birkhead entertained Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Emma Mosbaugh, 636 North Broadway.

A social afternoon, during which games and contests were enjoyed, was brought to a close with the serving of refreshments on individual trays appointed with doilies and little favors. Mrs. Birkhead's daughter, Mrs. Jesse Elliott, assisted at this time.

Those present other than Mrs. Birkhead, Mrs. Mosbaugh and Mrs. Elliott were the honor guest, Mrs. Millen, who is a member of Sedgwick W. R. C.; Mrs. Julia Cozad, president of the latter organization; Mrs. Clara Winn of Fullerton, senior vice president of Federation No. 1; Mrs. Mabel DeLacy of Fullerton, president of Fullerton Corps; Mrs. Maude English, president of Anaheim Corps, and Mesdames Lula Hall, Bell McConnell, Media Brayton, Meta Caldwell, Sarah Brown, Geraldine Beall, Retta Campbell, Gertrude Record, Beatrice Hossler, Hattie Cozard, Estelle Grey, Daisy Rose, Lena Patterson, Bertha Thompson and Nannie Myers.

Relief Corps

Officers were elected Wednesday afternoon at a meeting of Sedgwick W. R. C., held in Knights of Pythias hall. Installation is scheduled for Wednesday, January 10.

Those named to lead the organization were Lula Hall, president; Geraldine Beall, senior vice president; Cora Adams, junior vice president; Media Brayton, treasurer; Mabel Elliott, chaplain; Elizabeth Birkhead, conductor; Theresa Ryan, guard.

In preparation for the convention to be held in May, 1933, in Long Beach, delegates were elected. They were Beatrice Hoesles, Nannie Myers, Meta Caldwell, Della Miller, Bertha Thompson. Alternates chosen were Bell McConnell, Edith Barton, Mabel Elliott, Hattie Cozad and Elizabeth Wray.

Mrs. Julia Cozad, president, was in charge of the meeting, attended by 15 officers and 25 members. It was reported that 134 calls had been made and 29 bouquets distributed. The charter was draped in memory of Mrs. Addie Birdsell.

Announcements

Ebell Second Travel section members are to stage their annual holiday party on Monday, December 18, meeting in the clubhouse for 12:30 o'clock luncheon as guests of Mrs. Elmer Barr Burns, Mrs Leo Borchard and Mrs. G. W. Canter. In the afternoon, Mrs. Theo Winbigler, leader, will conduct a short business session preliminary to a Christmas program and the exchange of white elephant gifts. Section members unable to be present are asked to telephone Mrs. Burns, 529-R, not later than Saturday night.

The Girl Scouts' cooking class, conducted by Margaret S. Lackland will meet tomorrow morning, at 9:30 o'clock, in Southern Counties Gas company hall. Miss Lackland will give instructions in biscuit making. Mothers of the girls may attend with them.

Santa Ana Ebell's annual holiday dance for its young people will be tendered them this year on Friday, December 29, at 8:30 p. m., in the clubhouse ballroom. Tickets for sons and daughters of members and their guests may be obtained from Mrs. Hugh Shields or Mrs. Harold Segerstrom.

Ebell Current Events section, scheduled to meet on the fourth Tuesday of the month, will instead hold its December meeting on Tuesday of next week. Members are asked to meet in the clubhouse promptly at 12:30 o'clock, with Mesdames Loyal K. King, E. K. Scovel, Roy Langley and Hugh Shields as luncheon hostesses. Each member is to take a gift for the Christmas exchange.

American Legion Auxiliary Mothers' club will hold an all-day meeting Monday in the home of Mrs. John Faught, 720 East Third street. A covered dish luncheon will be served at noon, and a gift exchange will be held in the afternoon. Gifts are not to exceed 15 cents. Those in need of transportation are to call Edna Eklund, at 547-J.

California State Nurses' association, District 16, will celebrate tonight with a Christmas party in the home of Mrs. Mabel Grouard, 1076 West Fourth street. The party will begin at 8 o'clock, and will eliminate all business details of the association.

The Ladies' Aid of First Christian church will entertain with a silver tea Tuesday afternoon, at 2:45 o'clock, in the educational building. Proceeds will go for the benefit of the Old People's Home at San Gabriel. The afternoon will include a program, and light refreshments will be served.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Ham Souffle

1 cup ground ham(baked)
3 eggs, whites beaten separately
1 teaspoon finely chopped parsley
1-2 teaspoon pepper
1 cup soft bread soaked in
1-2 cup hot milk

Soak bread in hot milk, take off the fire and stir in the ground ham, then egg yolks, dropped in one by one, with beating after each addition. Season with parsley and pepper, fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites.

Have a shallow casserole, rubbed with butter, for the souffle. Bake 20 minutes, the casserole sitting in a pan of hot water.

Serve with creamy egg sauce. This is just a nice cream sauce with chopped hard boiled egg added to it, and a dash of lemon juice.

The calories total 1250 for the souffle, and for the sauce 770. The souffle serves six, not too generously, however. If the souffle is to be the main event at dinner, my suggestion would be French fried potatoes, hot pickled apples, done in the oven along with the souffle, a crisp salad and a simple dessert.

I often serve hot pickled apples with dinner; sweet pickling syrup is always put away for this purpose; the apples are quartered, put in a baking dish with this syrup, and a few red cinnamon candies or red fruit coloring. The oven does the rest.

PATTERN 1721

BY ANNE ADAMS

There's time yet for Sister to make this new frock before the holiday season is over. It's adorable and easy to make, as the illustrated lesson included with the pattern will explain so clearly how to apply the cape sleeves, finish the youthful neckline and fold in the smart skirt pleats—there's just nothing to it that the youngest girl wouldn't understand. Any number of fabrics would be ideal—crepe, ribbed silk or jersey, using either ribbon, taffeta or satin for the tie.

Pattern 1721 is available in sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 12 takes 2½ yards 36-inch fabric and ¾ yard 3½-inch ribbon.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Women's Forum

Mrs. Sam Hurwitz presided as toastmistress, introducing Mrs. Fred Harrison, who discussed "The First Christmas," and Mrs. A. A. Courtney, who talked on "Christmas in Other Lands." Mrs. John Clarkson, forum critic, offered constructive criticism.

Mrs. T. P. McKee, president, was in charge of the business interval. It was decided to cancel the second meeting this month, scheduled for December 26. The next meeting will be held Tuesday, January 9, at James' cafe.

Other prominent men having homes in different parts of the beach colony are George Roger, Los Angeles capitalist; Charles M. Cotton, financier of that city; Leland and Paul Whitter, oil operators maintaining permanent homes at Beverly Hills; Judge William R. Hervey, Los Angeles banker; Alphonso Bell of Bel-Air; and Chester Brown, also of Los Angeles.

Other names listed as property owenrs are Captain Frank Haugen, Pasadena business man; W. P. Duerkea, oil operator and W. A. Barholomea, insurance man, both of Los Angeles; Gordon Crary, Pasadena and Los Angeles financier, and Dr. Albert Soiland, Los Angeles physician and yachtsman.

H. O. Thompson is the name of a globe-trotter who, when not traveling, spends his time at his home in Balboa. He has one of the finest cacti collections in Southern California. Another show place is the home of Robert E. Rose, another globe-trotter, who when at home goes in for the cultivation of rare plants and flowers.

Back From Cruise

Another well known residence, the scene of social activities when the owner is at home ,is that of Mrs. Susan Rutherford, Santa Ana property owner now traveling abroad.

Others who have been attarcted to Balboa are Jack Deuel, former army aviator, now engaged in writing; and George Colman, famous painter. Deuel is now in Mexico City collecting material for a book. Professor T. L. Ransome, of Pasadena, is another resident of the beach community, and also C. D. Cheeseman, retired capitalist. Barse Miller, a painter of note, is a strong booster for the ner.

The first all metal beach cottage to be constructed in Southern California was that of Mrs. Louise Youmans, prominent Los Angeles socialite, located on Poppy street in the Corona Del Mar district.

Listed among home-owners on Lido Isle is Gerald A. (Tex) Oliver, former Santa Ana football coach, now attached to the faculty of the University of Arizona.

Church Societies

First Methodist

Eighty members of First Methodist Two-in-One class took part in the annual Christmas dinner held recently in the church breakfast room. Receiving the large group attending were Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. DeWitt, Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Kistinger and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Freeman, hosts for the evening.

Tables for the dinner hour were eloquent of the holidays with their sprays of bright holly and small fir trees. The program which followed in the social hall was in charge of Mrs. Matthews.

Robert DeuPree and Willis DeuPree Billups gave a clever skit, their own interpretation of Romeo and Juliet. With Mrs. Harry Wetherell at the piano, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Rutter sang "In the Garden of My Heart" and a ditty to "Reuben and Rachel," mentioning class names and events of the past year. Group singing of Christmas carols brought the program to a happy close.

Dr. John Bower, president, expressed appreciation for the leadership of the class teacher, Sam Vogt, presenting him with a handsome lamp on behalf of the members.

A pleasant feature of the social time was a stunt in which everyone met and greeted others.

Episcopal

Mrs. Warren McCarty was elected president of St. Elizabeth's branch of the Episcopal Church of the Messiah at a meeting of the group held Wednesday night in the home of Mrs. Theo Bolte, 930 South Garnsey street, with Mrs. William Wollaston as co-hostess.

Those elected to serve with Mrs. McCarty were Mrs. Frank Lansdown, vice president; Mrs. Theo Bolte, secretary. Mrs. Ethel Peterson was re-elected treasurer. Outgoing officers include Mrs. W. J. Crawford, president; Mrs. E. F. Mathews, secretary; Mrs. McCarty, vice president.

Mrs. McCarty, who was in charge of the work done by St. Elizabeth's branch in connection with the annual Christmas bazaar, reported on the success of the recent affair.

Plans were made for a Christmas party to be held on the evening of December 27 in the church. There will be a covered-dish din-

H. O. Thompson is the name of a globe-trotter who, when not traveling, spends his time at his home in Balboa. He has one of the finest cacti collections in Southern California. Another show place is the home of Robert E. Ross, another globe-trotter, who when at home goes in for the cultivation of rare plants and flowers.

Back From Cruise

Another well known residence, the scene of social activities when the owner is at home ,is that of Mrs. Susan Rutherford, Santa Ana property owner now traveling abroad.

Others who have been attarcted to Balboa are Jack Deuel, former army aviator, now engaged in writing; and George Colman, famous painter. Deuel is now in Mexico City collecting material for a book. Professor T. L. Ransome, of Pasadena, is another resident of the beach community, and also C. D. Cheeseman, retired capitalist. Barse Miller, a painter of note, is a strong booster for the ner.

The first all metal beach cottage to be constructed in Southern California was that of Mrs. Louise Youmans, prominent Los Angeles socialite, located on Poppy street in the Corona Del Mar district.

Listed among home-owners on Lido Isle is Gerald A. (Tex) Oliver, former Santa Ana football coach, now attached to the faculty of the University of Arizona.

Church Societies

First Methodist

Eighty members of First Methodist Two-in-One class took part in the annual Christmas dinner held recently in the church breakfast room. Receiving the large group attending were Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Matthews, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. DeWitt, Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Kistinger and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Freeman, hosts for the evening.

Tables for the dinner hour were eloquent of the holidays with their sprays of bright holly and small fir trees. The program which followed in the social hall was in charge of Mrs. Matthews.

Robert DeuPree and Willis DeuPree Billups gave a clever skit, their own interpretation of Romeo and Juliet. With Mrs. Harry Wetherell at the piano, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Rutter sang "In the Garden of My Heart" and a ditty to "Reuben and Rachel," mentioning class names and events of the past year. Group singing of Christmas carols brought the program to a happy close.

Dr. John Bower, president, expressed appreciation for the leadership of the class teacher, Sam Vogt, presenting him with a handsome lamp on behalf of the members.

A pleasant feature of the social time was a stunt in which everyone met and greeted others.

Episcopal

Mrs. Warren McCarty was elected president of St. Elizabeth's branch of the Episcopal Church of the Messiah at a meeting of the group held Wednesday night in the home of Mrs. Theo Bolte, 930 South Garnsey street, with Mrs. William Wollaston as co-hostess.

Those elected to serve with Mrs. McCarty were Mrs. Frank Lansdown, vice president; Mrs. Theo Bolte, secretary. Mrs. Ethel Peterson was re-elected treasurer. Outgoing officers include Mrs. W. J. Crawford, president; Mrs. E. F. Mathews, secretary; Mrs. McCarty, vice president.

Mrs. McCarty, who was in charge of the work done by St. Elizabeth's branch in connection with the annual Christmas bazaar, reported on the success of the recent affair.

Plans were made for a Christmas party to be held on the evening of December 27 in the church. There will be a covered-dish dinner.

News Notes From Santa Ana Schools

Julia Lathrop

Christmas Spirit

Lathrop students have donated a great deal to make a happy Christmas for many families this year. Boys as well as girls have taken an interest in bringing toys, outgrown clothing, food and many necessities for others. Classes have made interesting Christmas projects and have been studying Christmas stories.

Mrs. Iva Webber, vice principal and dean of girls, planned entertainment for children at Delhi school. Officers and committees of Every Girl's club gave a little play for the Delhi children, and took dolls and other toys to them last Thursday afternoon. This has been a custom among the Lathrop girls for many years. Home room restcois have spent considerable time in preparing toys and dressing dolls for this occasion.

Class Presents Comedy

Miss Lota Blythe's high nine English class entertainew two other English classes recently with an amusing comedy, "Not Quite Such a Goose." The following class members took parts in the little play: Eleanor Edgar, Milton Crawford, Persis Davis, Norman Wyckoff, Irene Krisher. Announcer for the program was Clarabelle Lumley.

The class giving the play invited Mrs. Wolff's high nine English class and Miss Biggin's low 8 class to the program.

Holiday Preparations

During the past two weeks girls in the foods classes have been preparing Christmas dainties under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. Ethel Sinke. They have made fruit cakes, steamed puddings and Christmas candies and cookies. The cakes have been wrapped in cellophane coverings, which have added to the attractiveness of the Christmas gifts.

Recently the girls had the pleasure of hearing two speakers. Miss Evalyn Healy, director of the National Educational Institute of Home Planning, talked to the home economics classes on the arrangement of small homes. G. S. Ansley, representing the National Association of Ice Industries, spoke to the eighth grade foods classes on refrigeration.

Class Program

Miss Mildred Tummond's low seventh grade section gave an interesting Christmas program Friday during home room period. Mary Aldana recited a poem, "Glad Tidings to Thee"; "Joy to the World" was sung by Adela Serafin, Jennie Gomez and Fafaela Villa; Margaret Garcia recited "Constant Christmas," and a Christmas song was sung by Mary Maturino, Adela Serafin, Margaret Garcia and Jennie Rosales.

A short Christmas play was given, after which Pasquala Hernandez sang "It Came Upon the Midnight Air."

Fashion Show Plans

Ninth grade girls in Miss Henrietta Foster's class are working diligently to finish their dresses for a fashion show they are planning to give very soon after the holidays. The dresses made, in school, have been carefully studied as to suitable designs and color combinations.

Frances Willard

Craft Class Tea

The High 8 Craft class of 15 enthusiastic girls has pursued a Mexican project which culminated in an afternoon tea, with the Mexican teheme in prominence. Guests were faculty members of Willard, as well as other friends whom the girls wished to invite. The results of their work were on display in the form of two bridge luncheon tables completely set for light refreshments. All articles on this table, except the silverware, had been made in class by the pupils.

Details included luncheon cloths, plates, cups and saucers, place cards and tallies presumably to have been used later for bridge. Mexican motifs decorated the walls of the craft room in the form of large Mexican heads on the side walls. A modern arrangement of fall fruits filled the spot of interest at the front of the room. On the wall panel was a silk hanging depicting Mexican hacienda life. The side cases exhibited results of the girls' work in the form of large trays painted in modern geometric designs, with sides of woven reed. In the cases were displayed pottery and leatherwork made during the first semester by the ninth grade craft class.

Guests at the tea were served dainty sandwiches, Mexican cakes, tea and punch. Lorraine Turk, a former Willard student, played appropriate violin selections, accompanied by Miss Helen Glancy. The eighth grade girls who served tea all wore Mexican costumes.

Social Law Clubs

The December meeting of the Junior Social Law club was held Tuesday in the home of Patty Jordan, 2006 Victoria drive. The dinner to be held in January was discussed, and members decided to ask the Senior Social Law club to meet with them after the dinner. Refreshments were served and games were played.

Those attending were: Billy Hill, Lester Carden, Thompson McNeal, David Hunter, Harold Tucker, Russell Daffel, Allan Cook, Mary Stever, Frances Bernstine, Nancydel Russell, Gerry Peck, Phyllis Krock, Betty Frye, Wanda Todd, Mr. Read and Mrs. Budd.

Interior Decorator

Miss Evelyn Healy, representing the Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Paint company, gave interesting talks Thursday and Friday mornings in the Willard auditorium. She chose a helpful subject, "Interior Decorating," and explained how different colors were produced, also talking on modern ideas of wall decoration and use of drapes. Miss Healy presented an exhibition of drapery fabrics and painted woodwork panels from the Chicago Fair. The home economics and art classes and a few study-hall classes were benefited by these instructive talks.

Speedball Managers Elected

Mary Jean Stever, popular low nine student, was recently elected to the office of speedball manager. Mary Perkins, also of the low nine, is her assistant. Miss Broadway expects this season to be unusually successful under the direction of these managers.

Dramatic Class Play

"The Lost Letter" was presented at an assembly Monday, December 11, by the dramatics class, directed by Miss Ruth Langley. Characters were Dorothy Motz as "Miss Gale"; Abe Fainbarg, "Tom"; George Miller, "Larry"; Genevieve Campbell, "Marcia"; Nancydell Russell, "Sara"; Wanda Todd, "Sylvia"; Tham Meyer, "Guide," and Bruce Buell, "Henry," a colored porter.

Christmas Cookies Given

Stamp Song Winners

Dorothy Grace and Ruth Baker were winners of the contest held at Willard recently advertising Tuberculosis Health Stamps. Dorothy's song was to the tune of "Jingle Bells," and Ruth's to that of "Ring Bells of Heaven." These songs were sung over KREG Thursday noon.

Social Science Debate

The H9 social science class of R. S. Farrar, room 1, held a debate Thursday on the subject, "Resolved, that we should improve Orange County Harbor." Affirmatives were Nora Mae Bingle, Ralph Blower and Alex Zlaket, and negatives were Jessie Fairies, Dorothy Grace and Leonard Stafford. Edward Fitzgerald was chairman, with Karl Davidson, Grace Berge, Nadine Covington, Harley Nunan and Muriel Jones as judges.

THE WEEKLY PANTRY SHELF

by Lucy Walling

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Eve Bayless, pretty assistant to Earle Barnes, advertising manager of Bixby's department store, marries Dick Rader, a construction superintendent. Dick is sent to take charge of a construction job in the Adirondacks. It will require at least a year to complete but Eve refuses to go with him.

Mona Allen, copy writer, dislikes Eve and is constantly causing trouble. She is responsible for several mistakes for which Eve is blamed. Mona is friendly with Theron Reece who forces unwelcome attentions on Eve.

Following a misunderstanding at Christmas, several weeks pass in which Eve does not hear from Dick. Too stubborn to admit herself in the wrong, she refuses to apologize and begins to see herself as a martyr.

CHAPTER XLIV

Eve awakened next morning to an unaccustomed sound. Her mother was beating something in a bowl. Sleepily Eve roused herself. Sleepily she began to play the guessing game that she and Esther had played when they heard that familiar sound on mornings long ago. The game was to guess what particular treat was in store for them and the winner always received the first serving of waffles or muffins or whatever it was their mother had prepared.

"Waffles," Eve guessed, because her mother knew how much she liked them. Then, as a faint fragrance of bacon and coffee came to her, she jumped out of bed, awakened herself thoroughly with a hasty shower and dressed quickly for the office. Her mother, she remembered, thought it slovenly to appear at the breakfast table in pajamas or negligee.

Eve left a little later with the understanding that her mother was to meet her at noon at a fashionable tea room. After a leisurely luncheon they went to the art museum When Kate Bayless protested at Eve's devoting so much time to her entertainment her daughter explained, "I had to go to the museum some time this week to take notes for my column so I asked Mr. Barnes if I could do it today. Usually I go in the evening, though there's no real reason why I should. It's office work and I'm within my rights to do it in office hours."

"Why of course, if that's it," her mother agreed. "Now you just attend to your notes and I'll take care of myself. I've always wanted to take my time at a place like this instead of hurrying through and not getting more than a glimpse of anything. When I've seen enough for one time I'll do a little shopping. There are some things Esther wanted me to get for the baby."

Eve took her mother to dinner that evening at a hotel where an orchestra that Kate had heard over the radio was playing. Here the patrons were permitted to select a part of the musical program, and Eve, unknown to her mother, sent a note to the leader of the orchestra, asking for two of her mother's favorite songs. After dinner they went to the early showing of a movie and returned home, weary and ready for bed.

Tuesday evening Eve took her mother to see Marya and Ray in their charming home and Wednesday Mrs. Penney entertained them at dinner. Arlene and Sam also were invited.

"You have nice friends, Eve," Kate Bayless said after the visit to Mrs. Penney's apartment. She had picked up her crochet work—a little cap she was making for Esther's baby—and settled herself in a chair by the fire. "And they have nice homes—real homes. Daughter, when are you going to quit working for other people and settle down to marriage in earnest?"

"I—Dick and I have a nice home, too, Mama."

"Just now Dick has exactly no home at all. Nor you, either. I can't look on and see you making a mes sof your life, dear child, without warning you how it is likely to end.

"I didn't say much at first about your working after you were married. I thought that by this time you'd probably have a baby and would be glad to stay at home and keep house and let your husband earn the money. Then, when Dick got this new job I was so glad. I thought, of course, that you'd go with him. How long will his work keep him away, Eve?"

"A year, he thinks. Possibly longer." Eve's voice was very low.

"And after that? What if his next job takes him somewhere else instead of bringing him here again?"

"I—I don't know, Mother!"

"Child, you're not happy living this way. You don't look happy. And you never even speak of your husband unless I bring up the subject. Why don't you give up your work at Bixby's and go to him, Eve? Don't you want to go?"

For answer Eve rose, flung herself into her mother's arms and sobbed against her comforting shoulder. Kate patted her, murmuring endearments, and encouraged her to relieve her unhappiness sin tears. Presently when Eve had gained some control over her voice she confessed, "Oh, I want him so dreadfully, Mother, but I'm not sure he wants me!"

And she told her mother of the estrangement that had arisen.

"I guess I'm partly to blame for all this," Kate Bayless went on when Eve had dried her eyes and was sitting on a low stool at her mother's feet.

"You? Why how could you be to blame? You were hundreds of miles away!"

"Well, I always tried to save you from even the little hardships when you were a child. I thought there would be time enough for you to face such things when you were older. What I overlooked was to make you see that when you left home and went out into the business in tears. Presently when Eve own you'd have to begin to do some of the hard things yourself and sacrifice your own wishes and comfort sometimes for others. I thought you'd se it yourself, Eve. I didn't realize that you needed to be told."

Delicious Cereal Overcomes This Condition Safely and Pleasantly

The first signs of constipation may be headaches, tired feelings, sallow complexions, sleeplessness, loss of appetite. If neglected, constipation may seriously impair health.

Today, you can banish constipation by simply eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. ALL-BRAN is also a good source of iron for the blood.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle in action similar to leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, and gently clears out the intestinal wastes.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of common constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

THE WEEKLY PANTRY SHELF

For the LOVE of EVE

by Lucy Walling

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Eve Bayless, pretty assistant to Earle Barnes, advertising manager of Bixby's department store, marries Dick Rader, a construction superintendent. Dick is sent to take charge of a construction job in the Adirondacks. It will require at least a year to complete but Eve refuses to go with him.

Mona Allen, copy writer, dislikes Eve and is constantly causing trouble. She is responsible for several mistakes for which Eve is blamed. Mona is friendly with Theron Reece who forces unwelcome attentions on Eve.

Following a misunderstanding at Christmas, several weeks pass in which Eve does not hear from Dick. Too stubborn to admit herself in the wrong, she refuses to apologize and begins to see herself as a martyr.

CHAPTER XLIV

Eve awakened next morning to an unaccustomed sound. Her mother was beating something in a bowl. Sleepily Eve roused herself. Sleepily she began to play the guessing game that she and Esther had played when they heard that familiar sound on mornings long ago. The game was to guess what particular treat was in store for them and the winner always received the first serving of waffles or muffins or whatever it was their mother had prepared.

"Waffles," Eve guessed, because her mother knew how much she liked them. Then, as a faint fragrance of bacon and coffee came to her, she jumped out of bed, awakened herself thoroughly with a hasty shower and dressed quickly for the office. Her mother, she remembered, thought it slovenly to appear at the breakfast table in pajamas or negligee.

Eve left a little later with the understanding that her mother was to meet her at noon at a fashionable tea room. After a leisurely luncheon they went to the art museum. When Kate Bayless protested at Eve's devoting so much time to her entertainment her daughter explained, "I had to go to the museum some time this week to take notes for my column so I asked Mr. Barnes if I could do it today. Usually I go in the evening, though there's no real reason why I should. It's office work and I'm within my rights to do it in office hours."

"Why of course, if that's it," her mother agreed. "Now you just attend to your notes and I'll take care of myself. I've always wanted to take my time at a place like this instead of hurrying through and not getting more than a glimpse of anything. When I've seen enough for one time I'll do a little shopping. There are some things Esther wanted me to get for the baby."

Eve took her mother to dinner that evening at a hotel where an orchestra that Kate had heard over the radio was playing. Here the patrons were permitted to select a part of the musical program, and Eve, unknown to her mother, sent a note to the leader of the orchestra, asking for two of her mother's favorite songs. After dinner they went to the early showing of a movie and returned home, weary and ready for bed.

Tuesday evening Eve took her mother to see Marya and Ray in their charming home and Wednesday Mrs. Penney entertained them at dinner. Arlene and Sam also were invited.

"You have nice friends, Eve," Kate Bayless said after the visit to Mrs. Penney's apartment. She had picked up her crochet work—a little cap she was making for Esther's baby—and settled herself in a chair by the fire. "And they have nice homes—real homes. Daughter, when are you going to quit working for other people and settle down to marriage in earnest?"

"Just now Dick has exactly no home at all. Nor you, either. I can't look on and see you making a mes sof your life, dear child, without warning you how it is likely to end.

"I didn't say much at first about your working after you were married. I thought that by this time you'd probably have a baby and would be glad to stay at home and keep house and let your husband earn the money. Then, when Dick got this new job I was so glad. I thought, of course, that you'd go with him. How long will his work keep him away, Eve?"

"A year, he thinks. Possibly longer." Eve's voice was very low.

"And after that? What if his next job takes him somewhere else instead of bringing him here again?"

"I—I don't know, Mother!"

"Child, you're not happy living this way. You don't look happy. And you never even speak of your husband unless I bring up the subject. Why don't you give up your work at Bixby's and go to him, Eve? Don't you want to go?"

For answer Eve rose, flung herself into her mother's arms and sobbed against her comforting shoulder. Kate patted her, murmuring endearments, and encouraged her to relieve her unhappines sin tears. Presently when Eve had gained some control over her voice she confessed, "Oh, I want him so dreadfully, Mother, but I'm not sure he wants me!"

And she told her mother of the estrangement that had arisen.

"I guess I'm partly to blame for all this," Kate Bayless went on when Eve had dried her eyes and was sitting on a low stool at her mother's feet.

"You? Why how could you be to blame? You were hundreds of miles away!"

"Well, I always tried to save you from even the little hardships when you were a child. I thought there would be time enough for you to face such things when you were older. What I overlooked was to make you see that when you left home and went out into the business in tears. Presently when Eve own you'd have to begin to do some of the hard things yourself and sacrifice your own wishes and comfort sometimes for others. I thought you'd se it yourself, Eve. I didn't realize that you needed to be told."

RECIPES FOR YOUR KITCHEN FILES

All-Bran Corn Bread With Bacon

2 eggs (well beaten)
1 tablespoon melted shortening
2 cups sour milk
1-2 cup Kellogg's All-Bran
2 cups cornmeal
1-3 cup fucur
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 tablespoon sugar
1-4 pound bacon (diced)

Combine beaten eggs, melted shortening and milk. Add All-Bran and cornmeal. Sift remaining dry ingredients and add to first mixture. Pour into greased pan (9x13 inches is a suitable size) and sprinkle bacon over top. Bake in a hot oven (425 deg. F.) for about 25 minutes, then slip under broiler for about two minutes to brown the crust and crisp the bacon. Yield: 16 servings.

Honey All-Bran Pudding

1-4 cup butter
2-3 cup honey
1 egg (well beaten)
1-2 cup milk
1-2 cup Kellogg's All-Bran
1 cup flour
1-2 teaspoon soda
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 cup raisins

Cream butter and honey together. Add egg, milk and All-Bran. Sift dry ingredients and mix with the raisins. Add to first mixture. Combine thoroughly and put into greased mold; cover tightly, and steam for two hours. Serve with hard sauce.

Note:—Pudding may be steamed in a one-pound Kaffee Hag Coffee can. Cover with waxel paper before putting on the lid. Yield: 6 large servings.

All-Bran Muffins

2tablespoons shortening
1-4 cup sugar
1 egg (well beaten)
1 cup sour milk
1 cup Kellogg's All-Bran
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1-2 teaspoon soda
1-2 teaspoon salt

Cream the shortening and sugar, add egg and sour milk. Add All-Bran and let soak until most of the moisture is taken up. Sift flour with baking powder, soda and salt and add to first mixture, stirring only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin tins two-thirds full and bake in a moderate over (400 deg. F.) for 20 to 25 minutes. Yield: 8 large or 12 small muffins.

Now try Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

WE HAVE just distributed the new 1934 ALL-BRAN booklet in your neighborhood. Entitled "Keep on the Sunny Side of Life," it brings all the facts about common constipation, and tells how this ailment can be corrected.

As you read this valuable booklet, you will find many suggestions for improving the health of your family. Protect them against common constipation—with its frequent headaches, loss of appetite and energy—by serving a delicious cereal frequently.

Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid elimination. Also iron for the blood.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or cook into fluffy muffins, breads, omelets, etc. How much better than risking patent medicines!

Your grocer has your passport to health. Be sure to ask for Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. If you did not get the booklet, have us send you one free upon request. Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

All-Bran Corn Bread With Bacon

2 eggs (well beaten)
1 tablespoon melted shortening
2 cups sour milk
1-2 cup Kellogg's All-Bran
2 cups cornmeal
1-3 cup fuour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 tablespoon sugar
1-4 pound bacon (diced)

Combine beaten eggs, melted shortening and milk. Add All-Bran and cornmeal Sift remaining dry ingredients and add to first mixture. Pour into greased pan (9x13 inches is a suitable size) and sprinkle bacon over top. Bake in a hot oven (425 deg. F.) for about 25 minutes, then slip under broiler for about two minutes to brown the crust and crisp the bacon. Yield: 16 servings.

Now try Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

We have just distributed the new 1934 All-Bran booklet in your neighborhood. Entitled "Keep on the Sunny Side of Life," it brings all the facts about common constipation, and tells how this ailment can be corrected.

As you read this valuable booklet, you will find many suggestions for improving the health of your family. Protect them against common constipation—with its frequent headaches, loss of appetite and energy—by serving a delicious cereal frequently.

Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's All-Bran provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid elimination. Also iron for the blood.

Serve All-Bran as a cereal, or cook into fluffy muffins, breads, omelets, etc. How much better than risking patent medicines!

Your grocer has your passport to health. Be sure to ask for Kellogg's All-Bran. If you did not get the booklet, have us send you one free upon request. Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KING

Soon Scouty jumped up from the floor and said, "Well, I can't do much more with those Scout dolls. They all drill fine. Come on, let's pack them up.

"Ol' Santa wants them, I expect, in boxes, so they won't get wrecked." Just then wee Duncy shouted, "Look! I've found a fine toy pup.

"Be quiet, Tinymites. All hark. I'm going to see if it can bark." And then he pinched the little dog, and got a sudden thrill.

Instead of barking, it jumped out of Duncy's hands and bobbed about. Said Duncy, "We'll just let it jump until it's had its fill."

"Why, that's one of those wind-up toys that's made to tickle girls and boys," said Coppy. "It will soon run down, and then our fun is o'er."

And, sure enough, the wee dog stopped, and on its little side it flopped. "It works," said Windy. "Put it back. Don't wind it any more."

Then Santa came and said, "Well, boys, I guess we'll have a lot of noise. I have some horns and drums and things that I want you to test.

"I guess you'll think it's pretty grand to form a dandy little band. Come on, now, grab the instruments and do your very best."

Wee Coppy cried, "I'll blow the horn. Why, since the day when I was born I've much preferred that instrument. You'll hear sweet music now."

Then Duncy cried, "I'm not so dumb. I'm going to beat upon the drum. All I need do is bang away. Just watch! I'll show you how."

"A big harmonica for mine," said Scouty. "I can play one fine. I hope we get together, so the music turns out sweet."

That Glamorous Figure, The Woman Spy, Is Back on the Job

THE World War has been over for many years, and Mata Hari, high priestess of military espionage, is only dust and a memory—like the men she helped to kill. But the thunder rumble of new war jars the horizon, and once again France has to deal with a woman spy.

They have already started calling her "a second Mata Hari." Probably that is because every woman spy for the next half century will remind people of the sinister, exotic half-caste dancer who died before a firing squad during the climax of the last war.

But outwardly there is little resemblance.

This "second Mata Hari" is one Sophie Drost. She's a trifle plump; in fact, they call her "fat Sophie" in her own neighborhood. She has very little in common with the famous Mata Hari—

Sophie fell into the hands of the French authorities while on her way to Germany in a taxicab. In the cab with her she had one of the latest model French machine guns. She was immediately taken into custody and questioned, and a sweeping investigation into her activities was launched.

THE importance of the case can be seen from the fact that France is just about to complete the most elaborate network of fortifications along her northeastern frontier that the world has ever seen—a shield of iron, concrete and earth to protect the nation forever from another invasion like that of 1914.

Thousands of men, millions of francs and years of time have been involved in the work. All along the borders of Alsace and Lorraine runs this chain of forts. Little is known about them; French military authorities insist on keeping their important features a dark secret.

It was in 1928 that Sophie first made her appearance in the little village of St. Avold. She was accompanied by her husband, a gentleman known as Jupp, and the two of them soon acquired a bar in the town's public square. They named it the Cafe des Sports.

Now there is a large infantry barracks in St. Avold, and its soldiers soon became listed among the Jupps' steadiest customers. The Cafe des Sports prospered—particularly so since the Jupps installed a number of extremely pretty barmaids and made little attempt to regulate their morals.

In the course of time affairs got rather scandalous, and Jupp was invited to leave France at once. He obeyed, but Sophie stayed on, running the Cafe des Sports, piling up the francs, and keeping her eyes open, watching her customers.

EVENTUALLY, it is charged, she started an acquaintance with one of them named Alphonse Choppe, who was a sort of foreman on Bloc No. 1, the fortifications being built at nearby Coume.

To him, when the time was ripe, Sophie revealed her desire to get hold of detailed plans of the fortifications on which he was working—her desire, and her willingness to pay good money for them. So Choppe, it is charged, delivered two sets of blueprints to her, each one an elaborate affair.

For these blueprints Sophie is said to have paid him 10,000 francs apiece—about $400 per blueprint, at par.

Having done this, she dispatched the plans to her employers, somewhere beyond the frontier.

That being finished, she now set out to get hold of one of the latest types of machine guns. A civilian like Choppe couldn't do her any good on a job like this. So Sophie returned to the Cafe des Sports and began to cultivate the military.

Finally she struck up a friendship with a young cavalryman, one Rene Plestan. And before long he was just as willing as Choppe had been to do what she wanted done.

So, one night not long ago, Plestan slipped out of his barracks, after telling his mates that he was going to go A. W. O. L. on account of a bit of fluff that was waiting for him outside the walls. His mates grinned, wagged their heads and wished him lots of luck. What they didn't notice was the fact that he managed to slip into the barracks gun room on his way out and hide one of the new No. 24 machine guns under his coat.

GOING outside the barracks he then slid the machine gun through the bars of the fence which surrounds the barracks. This done, he clambered over the wall himself.

Sophie was there, waiting for him. Taking the gun, they climbed into a taxicab and set out for Sarrebruck, to the east.

However, all of this had not been done in the complete secrecy that they imagined.

The French counter-espionage service is an alert and watchful outfit, and its agents had had their eyes on Sophie—and on Cavalryman Rene Plestan—for some time. And on this night they quietly trailed the two to Sarrebruck, and watched them take refuge in a house where Jupp, Sophie's husband, was living.

So, the next day, they arrested Sophie and Plestan. A little later they laid their hands on Choppe. They also got the machine gun back.

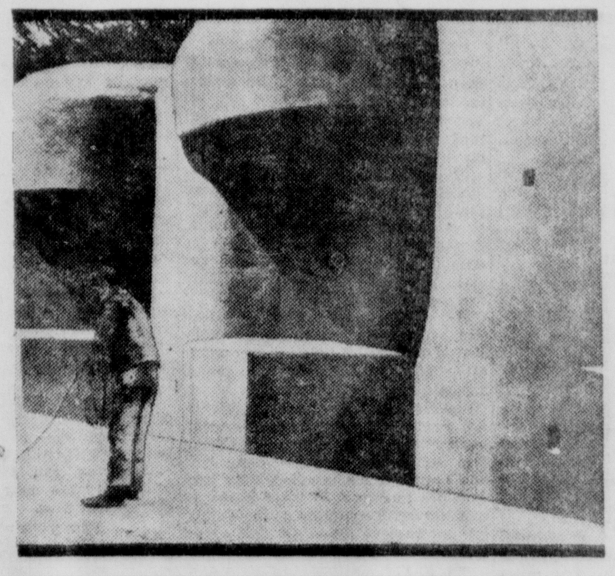
Choppe and Plestan promptly confessed, Sophie was revealed as a spy, and people immediately began to talk about Mata Hari once more.

There is one thing, however, that Sophie does not need to worry about. There is no danger that she will have to stand up against a wall and face a firing squad, as Mata Hari did. For this is peace time, and spies are not shot at sunrise except when a war is going on.

HOWEVER, a prison cell undoubtedly awaits her. And her arrest, together with the disclosures which followed, reveals the extent of the espionage which is going on along the French frontiers.

That this espionage work centers about the new fortifications is only natural. France is trying to make her frontiers attack-proof, and to do it she is putting up forts of the very latest type—forts which embody all the changes of design made necessary as a result of the lessons taught by the World War.

Before the war France had spent millions on her frontier forts. Similar forts in Belgium, especially at Liege and Namur, were considered almost impregnable. But the fighting in the World War was so unlike the fighting in any previous war that some of these forts turned out to be much weaker than was supposed.



One of the few pictures to be published showing how one of the new French frontier forts looks. . . . It was for getting secret information about these forts that Sophie Drost was arrested.

THE Belgian forts, in particular, proved unable to halt the tide. It is probably true that they could not have been taken by storm—but the Germans didn't try to take them that way. Instead they wheeled up heavy howitzers and coolly battered them to fragments from a distance, and then sent the infantry to walk in and pick up the pieces. The job took only a few days.

The French forts proved a bit stronger. The world will never forget how Verdun held out, for instance. Nevertheless, the forts did not prevent the Germans from penetrating deeply into French territory. France does not propose to have that happen again. It will be a long time before France forgets 1914.

So now all the French borders have been divided into six big general sections for fortification. There is the Alpine section, beginning near Nice; the Jura section, up against Switzerland; the Vosges; the Alsace section and the Lorraine section; and the Northern front, extending clear to the North Sea.

AS a rule, the new forts combine two theories of defensive warfare.

One theory holds that a string of fortifications should be a kind of "Chinese wall," with an almost unbroken set of heavy concrete ramparts. The other calls for lighter "pill box" and machine gun nest work, all more or less connected in a vast network.

French army authorities have welded these two plans together.

In the vicinity of Metz, for instance, six heavy forts have been built. These bear armor plate as heavy as that on dreadnaughts, and are largely buried in the ground. Extensive tunnels, devised so as to be proof against poison gas, connect them. There are underground railways on which troops, food, ammunition and even guns can be sent into the forts or transferred from one fort to another.

Scattered about the country between and around these forts are a myriad of machine gun posts, singly and in groups, built of concrete and steel. These are really miniature forts in themselves. They have underground chambers, far below the reach of shell fire, fitted up with sleeping quarters, washrooms, kitchens, running water and electric lights. Connecting them all is an intricate rabbit-warren of underground passageways.

In between these pill boxes are emplacements in which artillery could be put to augment the fire of the heavy guns in the forts.

Caught recently in the act of smuggling French military secrets into Germany, Sophie Drost revives memories of the ill-fated Mata Hari and her romantic sisters of war

THE World War has been over for many years, and Mata Hari, high priestess of military espionage, is only dust and a memory—like the men she helped to kill. But the thunder rumble of new war jars the horizon, and once again France has to deal with a woman spy.

They have already started calling her "a second Mata Hari." Probably that is because every woman spy for the next half century will remind people of the sinister, exotic half-caste dancer who died before a firing squad during the climax of the last war.

But outwardly there is little resemblance.

This "second Mata Hari" is one Sophie Drost. She's a trifle plump; in fact, they call her "fat Sophie" in her own neighborhood. She has very little in common with the famous Mata Hari—

Except for the fact that she, too, apparently has tried to get hold of French military secrets for a foreign power.

And her arrest has brought to light the fact that espionage is in progress along the Franco-German border at a rate not seen since the war ended.

Sophie fell into the hands of the French authorities while on her way to Germany in a taxicab. In the cab with her she had one of the latest model French machine guns. She was immediately taken into custody and questioned, and a sweeping investigation into her activities was launched.

THE importance of the case can be seen from the fact that France is just about to complete the most elaborate network of fortifications along her northeastern frontier that the world has ever seen—a shield of iron, concrete and earth to protect the nation forever from another invasion like that of 1914.

Thousands of men, millions of francs and years of time have been involved in the work. All along the borders of Alsace and Lorraine runs this chain of forts. Little is known about them; French military authorities insist on keeping their important features a dark secret.

And Sophie, it seems, was busily engaged in trying to ferret out those secrets for the benefit of people beyond the Rhine.

It was in 1928 that Sophie first made her appearance in the little village of St. Avold. She was accompanied by her husband, a gentleman known as Jupp, and the two of them soon acquired a bar in the town's public square. They named it the Cafe des Sports.

Now there is a large infantry barracks in St. Avold, and its soldiers soon became listed among the Jupps' steadiest customers. The Cafe des Sports prospered—particularly so since the Jupps installed a number of extremely pretty barmaids and made little attempt to regulate their morals.

In the course of time affairs got rather scandalous, and Jupp was invited to leave France at once. He obeyed, but Sophie stayed on, running the Cafe des Sports, piling up the francs, and keeping her eyes open, watching her customers.

EVENTUALLY, it is charged, she started an acquaintance with one of them named Alphonse Choppe, who was a sort of foreman on Bloc No. 1, the fortifications being built at nearby Coume.

To him, when the time was ripe, Sophie revealed her desire to get hold of detailed plans of the fortifications on which he was working—her desire, and her willingness to pay good money for them. So Choppe, it is charged, delivered two sets of blueprints to her, each one an elaborate affair.

For these blueprints Sophie is said to have paid him 10,000 francs apiece—about $400 per blueprint, at par.

Having done this, she dispatched the plans to her employers, somewhere beyond the frontier.

That being finished, she now set out to get hold of one of the latest types of machine guns. A civilian like Choppe couldn't do her any good on a job like this. So Sophie returned to the Cafe des Sports and began to cultivate the military.

Finally she struck up a friendship with a young cavalryman, one Rene Plestan. And before long he was just as willing as Choppe had been to do what she wanted done.

So, one night not long ago, Plestan slipped out of his barracks, after telling his mates that he was going to go A. W. O. L. on account of a bit of fluff that was waiting for him outside the walls. His mates grinned, wagged their heads and wished him lots of luck. What they didn't notice was the fact that he managed to slip into the barracks gun room on his way out and hide one of the new No. 24 machine guns under his coat.

GOING outside the barracks he then slid the machine gun through the bars of the fence which surrounds the barracks. This done, he clambered over the wall himself.

OUR ROMANTIC PRESIDENTS ON KREG TONIGHT

This week's episode of "Our Romantic Presidents," a CBS feature to be broadcast tonight at 8 o'clock from KREG, will be a "best bet" for tuners-in. It will tell of the military trials and tribulations suffered by George Washington in the Valley of the Ohio campaign, and how his courtship of the lovely Mary Philipse of New York was repulsed, in favor of the dashing Captain Morris. Ten historical authorities have been used so far by Edward Lynn, author of "Our Romantic Presidents," broadcast each Friday at 8 p. m. Interesting facts concerning George Washington that have been uncovered by Lynn tell us that he was considered as one of the best horsemen of his time and the most graceful dancer in Virginia; favorite wine: Madeira; salary as colonel in the Valley of the Ohio Expedition; 50 pounds a year; possessor of small blue eyes that were extremely weak even as a child. (Feature.)

GAJESKI'S PROGRAM TO FEATURE MUSIC

This week's presentation of "Gajeski's Music Album," presented by the Gajeski Furniture company of Santa Ana, will bring the voice of Charles Hackett to listeners at 7:30 tonight, KREG, and his voice exclusively. The program will comprise the old favories: "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," "Duna," "The Sunshine of Your Smile" and "A Brown Bird Singing." Hackett is rapidly coming to the front as one of the most popular tenors of the present day.

"THE KNIFE" TO BE DRAMA OVER KREG

This week's dramatization to be broadcast from KREG tonight at 7:45, under the title of "The Knife," is a 15-minute, exciting, dramatic sketch of a murder in a small town which had all the authorities baffled until an unexpected solution of the mysterious crime, through a clue that led to a Sunday school, in which the revelations of a 17-year-old daughter of a farmer cleared the mystery. It will hold many listeners spellbound, program officials guaranteed.

KREG NOTES

The Orange County Tuberculosis and Health association will present a play entitled "A Trip to Yesterday" during the broadcast from KREG at 12 noon tomorrow. The play will be directed by Mrs. L. L. Beeman of Santa Ana.

Mrs. Helen Walden, teacher of typewriting in the Adult Education Department, Santa Ana city schools, will speak on "Artistry in Typing" this evening at 5:30, KREG. She will explain the set-up of business letters and manuscripts and discuss non-commercial typing.

RADIO FEATURES

From six to eight of the outstanding news happenings of the current week will be re-enacted over a nation-wide Columbia network, including KHJ, during the presentation of the "March of Time," at 5:30 this evening.

The Philadelphia Orchestra, under the direction of Leopold Stokowski, will be heard over the Columbia network, including KHJ, for the second time in a single day at 6 tonight, when the organization's regular nightly concert is broadcast. In this concert Stokowski will repeat one of the selections played during the afternoon at the Academy of Music in Philadelphia. This is the scherzo, "The Flight of the Bumble Bee," from Rimsky-Korsakoff's opera, "The Tale of Tsar Saltan." The remaining piece to be played will be Weber's "Invitation a La Valse."

Milton Rettenberg and Frank Banta, talented piano duo, will be featured during the Threads of Happiness broadcast over a nation-wide Columbia network, including KHJ, at 6:15 tonight. Their offerings will be "Butterfly Prelude."

Harry Kipke, Michigan coach, will make a guest appearance on the concluding broadcast of the 1933 series of All-America Football Shows over a nation-wide Columbia network, including KHJ, at 6:30 tonight. Under Kipke's direction the Ann Arbor aggregation went through the season undefeated to again annex the Big Ten Conference title.

The extent and importance of the Nazi movement in the United States will be outlined by Representative Samuel Dickstein when he gives the final findings of the House investigating committee in an address over an NBC network, including KECA and KFSD, at 7:45 tonight.

Hazel Warner, song-bird of the South, dips into the files of the old favorites tonight in the "Mellowed Melodies" program over KHJ, from 8:15 to 8:30 tonight, and sings a popular song of yesteryear, "Whispering." With Norman Nielson, Miss Warner offers in duet "Many Moons Ago." Raymond Paige and the orchestra again accompany the songsters.

SATURDAY

Ernest Schelling, distinguished ductor, will open the fourth consecutive season of Columbia broadcasts of the Concerts for Children and Young People by the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra, at 8 a. m. Saturday over KHJ. Six concerts of the 1933-34 season will be heard at the same time on Saturday mornings. Dates for the broadcasts follow: December 16, January 13, January 20, February 10, February 17 and March 10. The concerts this year will be devoted to expositions of national music, with each program dedicated to a different country. An all-Mozart program is scheduled tomorrow.

ly, routine things that Barnes hates to do he gives to me. If you'd ever see how hard I work at Bixby's, Mama, you wouldn't say such a thing!"

"Well, maybe you do—at Bixby's where it doesn't really matter. But at home, Eve? Did you do any of the hard things at home or did you put them all on Dick? You admit that he did nearly all the cooking. Was that fair? Was that going fifty-fifty as you're so fond of putting it?"

"Why shouldn't he do it, when he always got home first in the evening?"

"Well, what about breakfast?"

"Dick had to get to work earlier than I did. Why should he expect me to get up a half hour earlier just to make him some coffee and toast and boil eggs when he could do it as easily himself?"

"Perhaps he could do it as easily. But do you suppose that was the kind of home he looked forward to when he married you? No, Eve, if you were determined to keep an outside job after you married, the least you could do was to take half the responsibility at home, too.

"Of course your husband loves you and wants you to go to Pine Forest or any other place his work takes him. He wants you to make a home for the two of you. If he doesn't tell you so any more maybe it's pride. Or maybe you've hurt his feelings. A woman gets crabby, Eve, when she works outside her home after she's married. The two jobs are to omuch for her strength and nerves. You ought to be building up reserve strength that you might need in case of sickness. Instead you're getting thinner and more nervous every day.

"Now, tomorrow night we won't go to a show or anywhere. I'll have a good hot supper ready the minute you get home. You'll like that and you'll realize how Dick would like that, too, and after supper you'll sit down and write him a nice long letter and tell him that you're giving up your work at Bixby's."

Eve did not promise, nor did she write the letter. The next evening she came home as swiftly as a taxi could bring her with the news that Earle Barnes was to leave Bixby's June first to become general manager of a much larger department store in Chicago and that Mr. Bixby had asked her to take his place when he was gone.

LIONS TO HOLD ANNUAL PARTY FOR CHILDREN

ANAHEIM, Dec. 15.—While the yuletide brings with it many joys there is one special joy that is reserved each year for the crippled children in Orange County and that is the party held at the Anaheim Elks' clubhouse at which time the local den of Lions is host. This year the party will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and is under the general supervision of Cliff Lamb.

Members of the Lions' club and other volunteers will call for the children in their automobiles and transport them back to the clubhouse where there will be nuts, candies and presents for each child. Refreshments will be served by the Orange County Crippled Children's association.

While in the past there have been approximately 75 children each year the list this year shows that there will probably not be more than 35.

The program is under the arrangement of Mrs. Hazel Filer Kuenzli and will open with with Christmas carols led by Bill Payne. Mrs. Kuenzli will accompany at the piano. "Silent Night, Holy Night" will be played on the piano by Marion Stillwell, seven years, and her brother Robert, nine years. The children will then sing the song.

Marilyn Hammil of Santa Ana, six-year-old violinist, will play several numbers and Geraldine Yoder of Anaheim will give a piano solo. Mildred Gage will conclude the program with a Christmas reading.

Plans for the affair were to be completed today when the Lion's club met at the Elk's clubhouse for the regular luncheon program.

GLEE CLUBS OF ANAHEIM HIGH GIVE CANTATA

ANAHEIM, Dec. 15.—In a Christmas setting of candles that lighted the platform, the combined glee clubs of the Anaheim Union High school presented its annual Christmas program last night in the White Temple Methodist Episcopal church. The 55-piece orchestra played for the rendition of the cantata, "His Natal Day," by Edward W. Norman, and opened the program with four numbers.

The orchestra was directed by Joshua Williams as it played "Around the Christmas Tree," by Tobarie; "Five Favorite Yuletide Songs," by Mendelssohn, arranged by Tolani; "Ring Out, Sweet Bell," by Gernwald, and "Hallelujah Chorus," by Handel, arranged by Moses.

The chorus first sang "Ring Bells of Christmas," after which Warren Baker sang a baritone solo, with the chorus, "Prepare Ye the Way." The ladies' double quartet then sang "Hark! What Mean Those Holy Voices," followed by the chorus singing "He Shall Be Great."

Betty Berger, soprano, sang with the chorus, "Softly the Night Is Fallen." After which Robert Eley sang a tenor solo with the Men's chorus, "We Come to Worship Him."

For "Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem," the soprano solo role was sung by Marion Gragg, with Robert Miller and Roy Brown in tenor and baritone duet. The chorus accompanied the singers.

Ellen Collins and Katherine Collins, known throughout the Southland as the Collins Twins, sang "Sleep, Holy Child," their voices blending in beautiful harmony. This was followed by a chorus number, "Hail to the Lord's Anointed."

Mildred Rogers sang a mezzo soprano solo, "Thou Didst Leave Thy Throne," after which the Ladies' Double Quartet sang, with the chorus, "Hear the Joy Bells Ring."

The chorus brought the hour's program to a delightful climax and conclusion when it sang "My Soul Doth Magnify the Lord."

SCHOOL TRUSTEES IN SHORT MEETING

ANAHEIM, Dec. 15.—A short, regular business meeting of the board of trustees of the Anaheim Union High school was held last night, the meeting adjourning early that the members could attend the Christmas program at the White Temple Methodist Episcopal church.

Routine business and the payment of bills characterized the session. There were no new developments in regard to the $215,000 bond issue election that will be held Monday.

Anaheim Police Notes

ANAHEIM, Dec. 15.—Because he failed to render aid after an automobile accident Luz Perez of 437 Amanda street, Glendale, was given a $50 fine or 25 days in the county jail yesterday morning when he appeared in court before Judge Frank Tausch. The judge then suspended $25 of the fine and the prisoner paid and was released.

Live Poultry Comment

LOS ANGELES—Leghorn and colored hens held steady with demand fair in most quarters for them. Local receipts were light and unequal to demand on white hens. The broiler market was unchanged today with heavy broilers in best position. Colored fryers of prime quality were firm with supplies clearing readily. TURKEYS—The unsettled condition continued to prevail today on the live and dressed turkey market. Local receipts were light with dealers purchasing for immediate consumption, only. Teavy toms were in best position witha firm undertone prevailing on them.

OUR ROMANTIC PRESIDENTS ON KREG TONIGHT

This week's episode of "Our Romantic Presidents," a CBS feature to be broadcast tonight at 8 o'clock from KREG, will be a "best bet" for tuners-in. It will tell of the military trials and tribulations suffered by George Washington in the Valley of the Ohio campaign, and how his courtship of the lovely Mary Philipse of New York was repulsed in favor of the dashing Captain Morris. Ten historical authorities have been used so far by Edward Lynn, author of "Our Romantic Presidents," broadcast each Friday at 8 p. m. Interesting facts concerning George Washington that have been uncovered by Lynn tell us that he was considered as one of the best horsemen of his time and the most graceful dancer in Virginia; favorite wine: Madeira; salary as colonel in the Valley of the Ohio Expedition; 50 pounds a year; possessor of small blue eyes that were extremely weak even as a child. (Feature.)

GAJESKI'S PROGRAM TO FEATURE MUSIC

This week's presentation of "Gajeski's Music Album," presented by the Gajeski Furniture company of Santa Ana, will bring the voice of Charles Hackett to listeners at 7:30 tonight, KREG, and his voice exclusively. The program will comprise the old favories: "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," "Duna," "The Sunshine of Your Smile" and "A Brown Bird Singing." Hackett is rapidly coming to the front as one of the most popular tenors of the present day.

"THE KNIFE" TO BE DRAMA OVER KREG

This week's dramatization to be broadcast from KREG tonight at 7:45, under the title of "The Knife," is a 15-minute, exciting, dramatic sketch of a murder in a small town which had all the authorities baffled until an unexpected solution of the mysterious crime, through a clue that led to a Sunday school, in which the revelations of a 17-year-old daughter of a farmer cleared the mystery. It will hold many listeners spellbound, program officials guaranteed.

KREG NOTES

The Orange County Tuberculosis and Health association will present a play entitled "A Trip to Yesterday" during the broadcast from KREG at 12 noon tomorrow. The play will be directed by Mrs. L. L. Beeman of Santa Ana.

Mrs. Helen Walden, teacher of typewriting in the Adult Education Department, Santa Ana city schools, will speak on "Artistry in Typing" this evening at 5:30, KREG. She will explain the set-up of business letters and manuscripts and discuss non-commercial typing.

RADIO FEATURES

Time References Are Pacific Standard Time

From six to eight of the outstanding news happenings of the current week will be re-enacted over a nation-wide Columbia network, including KHJ, during the presentation of the "March of Time," at 5:30 this evening.

The Philadelphia Orchestra, under the direction of Leopold Stokowski, will be heard over the Columbia network, including KHJ, for the second time in a single day at 6 tonight, when the organization's regular nightly concert is broadcast. In this concert Stokowski will repeat one of the selections played during the afternoon at the Academy of Music in Philadelphia. This is the scherzo, "The Flight of the Bumble Bee," from Rimsky-Korsakoff's opera, "The Tale of Tsar Saltan." The remaining piece to be played will be Weber's "Invitation a La Valse."

Milton Rettenberg and Frank Banta, talented piano duo, will be featured during the Threads of Happiness broadcast over a nation-wide Columbia network, including KHJ, at 6:15 tonight. Their offerings will be "Butterfly Prelude."

Harry Kipke, Michigan coach, will make a guest appearance on the concluding broadcast of the 1933 series of All-America Football Shows over a nation-wide Columbia network, including KHJ, at 6:30 tonight. Under Kipke's direction the Ann Arbor aggregation went through the season undefeated to again annex the Big Ten Conference title.

The extent and importance of the Nazi movement in the United States will be outlined by Representative Samuel Dickstein when he gives the final findings of the House investigating committee in an address over an NBC network, including KECA and KFSD, at 7:45 tonight.

Hazel Warner, song-bird of the South, dips into the files of the old favorites tonight in the "Mellowed Melodies" program over KHJ, from 8:15 to 8:30 tonight, and sings a popular song of yesteryear, "Whispering." With Norman Nielson, Miss Warner offers in duet "Many Moons Ago." Raymond Paige and the orchestra again accompany the songsters.

SATURDAY

Ernest Schelling, distinguished ductor, will open the fourth consecutive season of Columbia broadcasts of the Concerts for Children and Young People by the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra, at 8 a. m. Saturday over KHJ. Six concerts of the 1933-34 season will be heard at the same time on Saturday mornings. Dates for the broadcasts follow: December 16, January 13, January 20, February 10, February 17 and March 10. The concerts this year will be devoted to expositions of national music, with each program dedicated to a different country. An all-Mozart program is scheduled tomorrow.

MRS. SIEGEL WILL HONOR STUDENTS

ANAHEIM, Dec. 15.—Mrs. Anna Siegel of the Anaheim Conservatory of Music will be hostess tomorrow afternoon to her young students when she will entertain them at the annual Christmas party.

Besides the many games that will be played and concluded with Christmas refreshments there will also be music and dancing in which the guests will be the young performers. The climax of the party will be the arrival of Santa Claus with his bag filled with gifts for each child.

ly, routine things that Barnes hates to do he gives to me. If you'd ever see how hard I work at Bixby's, Mama, you wouldn't say such a thing!"

"Well, maybe you do—at Bixby's where it doesn't really matter. But at home, Eve? Did you do any of the hard things at home or did you put them all on Dick? You admit that he did nearly all the cooking. Was that fair? Was that going fifty-fifty as you're so fond of putting it?"

"Why shouldn't he do it, when he always got home first in the evening?"

"Well, what about breakfast?"

"Dick had to get to work earlier than I did. Why should he expect me to get up a half hour earlier just to make him some coffee and toast and boil eggs when he could do it as easily himself?"

"Perhaps he could do it as easily. But do you suppose that was the kind of home he looked forward to when he married you? No, Eve, if you were determined to keep an outside job after you married, the least you could do was to take half the responsibility at home, too.

"Of course your husband loves you and wants you to go to Pine Forest or any other place his work takes him. He wants you to make a home for the two of you. If he doesn't tell you so any more maybe it's pride. Or maybe you've hurt his feelings. A woman gets crabby, Eve, when she works outside her home after she's married. The two jobs are to omuch for her strength and nerves. You ought to be building up reserve strength that you might need in case of sickness. Instead you're getting thinner and more nervous every day.

"Now, tomorrow night we won't go to a show or anywhere. I'll have a good hot supper ready the minute you get home. You'll like that and you'll realize how Dick would like that, too, and after supper you'll sit down and write him a nice long letter and tell him that you're giving up your work at Bixby's."

Eve did not promise, nor did she write the letter. The next evening she came home as swiftly as a taxi could bring her with the news that Earle Barnes was to leave Bixby's June first to become general manager of a much larger department store in Chicago and that Mr. Bixby had asked her to take his place when he was gone.

LIONS TO HOLD ANNUAL PARTY FOR CHILDREN

ANAHEIM, Dec. 15.—While the yuletide brings with it many joys there is one special joy that is reserved each year for the crippled children in Orange County and that is the party held at the Anaheim Elks' clubhouse at which time the local den of Lions is host. This year the party will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and is under the general supervision of Cliff Lamb.

Members of the Lions' club and other volunteers will call for the children in their automobiles and transport them back to the clubhouse where there will be nuts, candies and presents for each child. Refreshments will be served by the Orange County Crippled Children's association.

While in the past there have been approximately 75 children each year the list this year shows that there will probably not be more than 35.

The program is under the arrangement of Mrs. Hazel Filer Kuenzli and will open with with Christmas carols led by Bill Payne. Mrs. Kuenzli will accompany at the piano. "Silent Night, Holy Night" will be played on the piano by Marion Stillwell, seven years, and her brother Robert, nine years. The children will then sing the song.

Marilyn Hammil of Santa Ana, six-year-old violinist, will play several numbers and Geraldine Yoder of Anaheim will give a piano solo. Mildred Gage will conclude the program with a Christmas reading.

Plans for the affair were to be completed today when the Lion's club met at the Elk's clubhouse for the regular luncheon program.

GLEE CLUBS OF ANAHEIM HIGH GIVE CANTATA

ANAHEIM, Dec. 15.—In a Christmas setting of candles that lighted the platform, the combined glee clubs of the Anaheim Union High school presented its annual Christmas program last night in the White Temple Methodist Episcopal church. The 55-piece orchestra played for the rendition of the cantata, "His Natal Day," by Edward W. Norman, and opened the program with four numbers.

The orchestra was directed by Joshua Williams as it played "Around the Christmas Tree," by Tobarie; "Five Favorite Yuletide Songs," by Mendelssohn, arranged by Tolani; "Ring Out, Sweet Bell," by Gernwald, and "Hallelujah Chorus," by Handel, arranged by Moses.

The chorus first sang "Ring Bells of Christmas," after which Warren Baker sang a baritone solo, with the chorus, "Prepare Ye the Way." The ladies' double quartet then sang "Hark! What Mean Those Holy Voices," followed by the chorus singing "He Shall Be Great."

Betty Berger, soprano, sang with the chorus, "Softly the Night Is Fallen." After which Robert Eley sang a tenor solo with the Men's chorus, "We Come to Worship Him."

For "Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem," the soprano solo role was sung by Marion Gragg, with Robert Miller and Roy Brown in tenor and baritone duet. The chorus accompanied the singers.

Ellen Collins and Katherine Collins, known throughout the Southland as the Collins Twins, sang "Sleep, Holy Child," their voices blending in beautiful harmony. This was followed by a chorus number, "Hail to the Lord's Anointed."

Mildred Rogers sang a mezzo soprano solo, "Thou Didst Leave Thy Throne," after which the Ladies' Double Quartet sang, with the chorus, "Hear the Joy Bells Ring."

The chorus brought the hour's program to a delightful climax and conclusion when it sang "My Soul Doth Magnify the Lord."

SCHOOL TRUSTEES IN SHORT MEETING

ANAHEIM, Dec. 15.—A short, regular business meeting of the board of trustees of the Anaheim Union High school was held last night, the meeting adjourning early that the members could attend the Christmas program at the White Temple Methodist Episcopal church.

Routine business and the payment of bills characterized the session. There were no new developments in regard to the $275,000 bond issue election that will be held Monday.

Anaheim Police Notes

ANAHEIM, Dec. 15.—Because he failed to render aid after an automobile accident Luz Perez of 437 Amanda street, Glendale, was given a $50 fine or 25 days in the county jail yesterday morning when he appeared in court before Judge Frank Tausch. The judge then suspended $25 of the fine and the prisoner paid and was released.

Live Poultry Comment

LOS ANGELES—Leghorn and colored hens held steady with demand fair in most quarters for them. Local receipts were light and unequal to demand on white hens. The broiler market was unchanged today with heavy broilers in best position. Colored fryers of prime quality were firm with supplies clearing readily. TURKEYS—The unsettled condition continued to prevail today on the live and dressed turkey market. Local receipts were light with dealers purchasing for immediate consumption, only. Teavy toms were in best position witha firm undertone prevailing on them.

CITRUS MARKETING PLAN HAS HANDICAPS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is putting into force a rule for the citrus fruit producers and distributors. The citrus fruit shippers will be subject to a license, effective next Monday. This will apply to all the citrus fruit raisers in the country. It will make nation-wide the general purposes of the pro-rate act that was adopted in our own state last winter.

It undoubtedly will receive the approval of practically all of those who are in the citrus fruit industry. During a part of the year and on a part of the oranges, California has serious competition from Florida, and this competition is unquestionably eliminated for our other oranges.

While we do not believe the final remedy for the situation will be found in a regulation that proposes to prevent the shipment of fruit to the market, for the purpose of sustaining the price, but rather we believe that the final solution will be in developing the market amongst the people for all the fruit, yet we know this has not been attained, and we cannot wait until that result has been achieved. The conditions confronting us are now and here, and it seems the only way to sustain or increase the price is to control the supply.

Of course we must recognize that this is government supervision with a vengeance. It is individual ownership, to be sure, but collective control of the shipments and the market. If the NRA were in control of the expense end of it, it would be a complete control of the industry from one end to the other.

It seems to have reached the point, however, when this very condition must prevail. The government is the only agency through which all the people can function, and it is the only agency through which all the people engaged in an industry can be forced to function. It seems in the citrus industry, just like in other industries, all of those engaged in it must be forced to obey certain rules and regulations, or the object of laying down the rules and regulations will not have been achieved.

We are not the most enthusiastic advocates of this program of control, leaving the individual handicapped in other matters, but forcing him to agree to conditions, the agreement with which may defeat his own personal objective. It does not leave room at all for individual initiative and added ability to overcome the handicaps that method has put upon the industry.

If the government is going to control the income and the expenses in any industry, we should rather have them go further, and take over the management too. Because if we are to be told how much we can receive and how much we have to pay, the balance may not be sufficient to meet necessary obligations and we would rather, in such a case, be protected as well as the rest. In other words, regulatory measures, superimposed without the assumption of the obligations which the individual units have to meet, by those who regulate, certainly is a strong handicap in any case.

We are rather of the opinion that at present not very many of the citrus growers would agree with this line of reasoning, but more of them will, we doubt not, if this supervision must continue. In the meantime, it is probably the only thing upon which the industry and those in charge can agree.

INTERNATIONAL PEACE THROUGH PERCENTAGES

In an article in the current number of the "New Outlook," T. R. Ybarra, the international news correspondent, tries to answer the question, through percentages, whether there is a prospect of an immediate war in Europe. He divides Europe into ten groups: Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia, Italy, Poland, Austria, Hungary, the Little Entente (Czecho-Slovakia, Roumania, Yugo-Slavia), and the neutrals of the World War, (Holland, the Scandinavian countries, Switzerland, Spain).

If one of these units is wholly for peace he gives it 100 per cent, making a possible total for European peace of 1000. Great Britain he gives 85 per cent. Were it not for the Hitler movement in Germany, the record would be 100. France, because of her affiliation with Poland and the Little Entente, which is affected by the New Germany, is given 75 per cent. Germany, under the belligerent Hitler, gets a meager 35 per cent. Italy is out with the Little Entente, and therefore in danger of involvement with France, so she gets 45 per cent. Russia, though desiring peace, is threatened by Japan on the East, and is eager to see her form of government established on the earth. Yet she wants to build up her domestic economic structure. So she is given 50 per cent. That makes a total of 290 for the five leading powers.

Austria has been reconciled somewhat to the disruption of her empire by the treaty of Versailles, but she might be induced to enter a war some other power started to regain somewhat of what she lost. Therefore, she gets 75 per cent. Hungary will never be reconciled to the boundaries set by the Treaty of Versailles, and therefore is given 45 per cent. As to Poland, any revision of the Treaty of Versailles, which established Poland, will stir up a hornet's nest there. This gives her a percentage of 45 for peace. The Little Entente, affected similarly by the Treaty of Versailles as Poland, is given 50 per cent. The neutral countries are given a full 100 per cent.

This makes a total for the whole of Europe of 600 as against a possible 1000, a ratio in favor of European peace of three to two. These figures are nothing to be hopeful about in the European situation; but, as Mr. Ybarra says, it might be worse. And that is saying very little. It all shows what a bear pit Europe still is in spite of the war to end war. The peace was more divisive than the war. Then why another war with another disastrous peace?

REAL CAUSE FOR FRENCH CABINET CHANGES

The restless change which characterizes official France would appear to be caused wholly by the economic stress of the years since the war, were it not for history. Sixty-three years ago, the Third Republic was founded. Since that time France has had eighty-five different Cabinets. The average span of life of a French Cabinet has been nine months. Waldeck- Rousseau held office the longest, and he remained in office two years, eleven months and eleven days. Seven Prime Ministers, altogether, have held their jobs as long as two years. Two premiers have held office for as short a period as twenty-four hours. To be sure, these very short periods of office were since the war, while the longest span was in 1902, so that it might appear that certainly the tenure of office of the French premier is getting shorter.

The real cause for these rapid changes is innate in the French system of changes and however we in this country may marvel at a country, where the government must be in office too short a time to accomplish anything, it must be that the French people find that it has its advantages, for they could probably change it if they wanted to. Certainly it is true that under the French system officialdom is responsive to the opinion of the people—however transitory the opinion may be.

BASIS OF VALUE OF A NATIONAL CURRENCY

A recent writer on international trade and exchange, writing on the laws of money, makes a statement well worth thinking about in his book, especially at a time when we are hearing so much about the devaluation of the dollar. "The dollar," he says, "is based on the faith and credit of the people, not on gold." Another statement is worth noting. "The aggregate amount of money consists of acknowledged liabilities or obligations." Which means, as he goes on to show, that over 90 per cent of the business of the country is carried on with credit, not with gold or currency.

In view of such statements, the tenacity with which some experts link the whole economic and financial structure to gold is a bit absurd. Through bitter experience, the people of the world are beginning to find that out.

Salvaging Burned Forest

Portland Oregonian

Although it has been announced that salvaging operations will soon begin in the devastated Tillamook Forest, where more than 10,000,000,000 feet of timber was swept last autumn by one of the most destructive forest fires that ever visited the West, the conclusion that salvage will in large measure redeem the loss should not be entertained. The work itself is admirable, and of necessity it is indicated, but unfortunately even such work as this depends in large measure upon markets. That is to say the demand for lumber must definitely determine the extent and rapidity of salvaging.

The hemleck passes first into decay by reason of its peculiar susceptibility. It must be salvaged within two years, generally speaking, or it is valueless. In the area of the Tillamook fire, however, only fifteen per cent of the timber is hemlock. The remainder—for the amounts of spruce and cedar are negligible—is fir, and happily it may be said that the fir is much more resistant. The younger trees yield to decay sooner than do the old, and in every instance the sapwood, which mostly is discarded in milling, anyhow, is first attacked. Considered as a whole, with such controlling factors as soil and regional climate considered, a burned stand of fir may be expected to retain its commercial value for a period of from seven to ten years. Thus it is seen that the major portion of the burned timber in Tillamook country is theoretically available for salvage. The problem, as physically presented, is comparatively simple, but the more vital problem of marketing is not.

Stolen Celtic Names?

Brooklyn Eagle

The tastes of kleptomaniacs are curious. This reflection springs from the fierce appeal of A. Collins Healy, President of the Celtic Society of Columbia University, to the St. David's Society, the St. Andrew's Society, and the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick "to sponsor legislation to prevent non-Celtic people from assuming Celtic family names." Specifications of such thefts would be interesting.

However the Celtic rally at Columbia, before which Mr. Healy spoke, was a worthwhile demonstration. Eamon de Valera's cablegram probably was correct enough in estimating at "some millions of loyal Americans" the persons of Celtic or part Celtic stock in the United States—Irish, Scotch and Welsh. And Professor John M. Gerig of Columbia and Professor John Newton Davies of Drew University did justice to a culture that "antedated Rome and coincided with Greece." A political note was sounded in the message from J. E. Jones, Secretary of the Welsh Nationalist organization, hoping that "Celtic nations now free, as Ireland is, will help to strangle oppression in Wales, which is struggling for freedom and self-government, and send support to overthrow foreign tyranny."

The battle cry in Celtic is hard for English ears to understand. Long centuries elapsed before Westminster came to understand that the Irish were in earnest. International Celticism is worthy of all encouragement.

The migrations of insects are attracting the attention of the medical world. The Journal of the American Medical Association tells of unpleasant insects appearing in Paris from remote parts of the world. There have been ants from Indio-Chino and Argentina, cockroaches from Egypt, Palestine and Syria, and so on.

In recent years in America there have appeared numerous imported insect pests such as the Mediterranean fruit fly, the European corn borer, the Mexican beetle, and others which have attacked trees, shrubbery and agricultural crops.

Probably as long as there has been commerce between different parts of the world there has been interchange between countries of these less agreeable native products. They did not always become a serious problem in the adopted country.

In the Long Ago

From The Register Files 14 Years Ago Today

DECEMBER 15, 1919

Santa Ana Elks announced the choice of Wednesday afternoon, December 24, for their party for Santa Ana children. They planned a big tree in the Elks' hall, with Sam Stein, prominent stationer and toy dealer, in the role of Santa Claus, and a toy and a box of candy for every child attending.

Two hundred or more members of the First Baptist church gathered for a covered dish dinner in celebration of wiping out the church debt. The mortgage was burned with much ceremony.

Clarence Guistlin, president of Santa Ana Music association, appeared before the city council to ask a financial appropriation to help cover the expenses of the community Christmas tree and program planned for Christmas Eve in Birch park.

The Forgotten Principles

By George A. Warmer

Two sentences have been passed to me recently that everybody should have a chance to ponder. They are very significant.

Mr. Cecil De Mille is reported to have said: "The trouble with us Americans these last years is that we have substituted legality for integrity." This movie-man has driven a long lance into the abcess that must be drained before brighter skies are over us.

Rev. Robert Shuler a while ago declared: "The financial center of Los Angeles is in San Quentin." This is a cryptic, but very descriptive, remark. The point of this sentence has been so recently illustrated in the senatorial investigation that all the lurid picture of the last years rushes to memory.

The trouble is easy to locate. We are shipwrecked in morals.

The ten commandments have not been reinterpreted so as to apply to our corporate acts. Killing in wholesale is heroic, if glorified by patriotism: stealing is winked at when done under the guise of stock market manipulations.

We separated church and state, divorced religion from the school curriculum and let moral instruction fall through the sieve of our dishevelled fabric. It was thought that character was a gift of the gods. But all too late we are coming to see that character is not an endowment but an achievement—not a gift but a growth.

Religion produces refinement. But there is no religion the world around that is good, that is not rooted in the soil of keen moral discernment.

Hinduism is not good because it has never sucked sustenance from a soil that was not polluted by a vicious and intolerable caste system.

Christianity is weak and impotent because moral education has been sidetracked in the interest of reading, writing and arithmetic.

We handed character education over to religion in its entirety without recognizing that character, which flowers and fruits in religion, grows on a plant that roots in morals.

There is a brightening on the eastern horizon, the dawn of a new day appears. The word in education is coming to be "character education." Tragedy of tragedies it will, unless we come quickly to understanding and put on full steam ahead, take a generation, maybe two, to establish practices worthy of our possible enlightenment.

There is a hope. We may speed up evolution. It is not necessarily slow. We are an age of technicians. Since we know what is wrong may we not expect a large crop of social and economic Edisons who will experiment us not only into a new deal but into a new game—a new moral procedure.

Ever be it our urge that he who makes evolution impossible makes revolution inevitable.

Our Children By Angelo Patri

SOMEWHA T CASUAL

"Donald, are you going over to Jack's house again?"

"Again? Why, I haven't been over there since yesterday afternoon. To hear you talk, ma, you'd think I lived over there."

"That's just about what you do, and I don't like it. I don't like that boy. I wish you'd forget about him for a while and pay a little attention to the people that belong to you."

"Aunt Hester, perhaps. Or Grandmother. They're about the same age. What do you want me to do? I've got to have some fun, haven't I? What have you got against Jack? He's as good as we are. He's the only friend I've got and you want me to lose him. Well, he never went back on me, and I'll never go back on him. Not for ANYBODY."

"That's right. Insult your family for a good-for-nothing like Jack Terrain. Now listen to me, young man. It's about my turn to speak. You'll stay right where you are and you'll leave that boy alone or I'll know the reason why. I'm still your mother."

This sort of thing does not pay. Adolescent boys and girls form strange loyalties, some of them undesirable from any point of view. Naturally, this troubles their parents, and they struggle to break up the associations and adjust the ideas behind them. That is necessary, but it is a delicate task. Force will not perform it with any degree of success.

When you meet such a child's declaration with a stronger one of your own, you do not lessen his desire to have his way. You strengthen it by stirring up the emotional background so that it makes the otherwise simple enough situation extremely complicated. Pride, self-respect, loyalty, obstinacy, defiance in a mixture that shakes the mind of the child and leaves it in confusion, rise up like a wall between you. That wall has to come down before you reach the child and persuade him to other ways. And again, force is useless.

As a child develops in mind and body he draws away from parental dictation. By the time he arrives at adolescence this withdrawal is about at its height. Not only is he a full-fledged personality, but he is keenly conscious of it. And word or glance or gesture in his direction is likely to be interpreted as a personal matter and met accordingly. If the reaction is a happy one, all is well, but if he happens to consider the smile a superior one, the word of caution a threat, the blithe word a wound to his self-esteem, theer is likely to be a scene.

Words that threaten and storm about his ears only make the bad matter worse. The best way to meet wrong-headed opposition is the casual one. School yourself to show no deep emotion, no sharp irritatin about anything he or she may do. Say what you have to say in ordinary tones and make your opposition appear rather the courteous comment of experience than the excited warning of a frightened and angry parent. Courtesy disarms adolescent antagonisms. A yawn does more than a slap. And a gentle smile illumines the blackest moments.

CITRUS MARKETING PLAN HAS HANDICAPS AND RESPONSIBILITIES

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is putting into force a rule for the citrus fruit producers and distributors. The citrus fruit shippers will be subject to a license, effective next Monday. This will apply to all the citrus fruit raisers in the country. It will make nation-wide the general purposes of the pro-rate act that was adopted in our own state last winter.

It undoubtedly will receive the approval of practically all of those who are in the citrus fruit industry. During a part of the year and on a part of the oranges, California has serious competition from Florida, and this competition is unquestionably eliminated for our other oranges.

While we do not believe the final remedy for the situation will be found in a regulation that proposes to prevent the shipment of fruit to the market, for the purpose of sustaining the price, but rather we believe that the final solution will be in developing the market amongst the people for all the fruit, yet we know this has not been attained, and we cannot wait until that result has been achieved. The conditions confronting us are now and here, and it seems the only way to sustain or increase the price is to control the supply.

Of course we must recognize that this is government supervision with a vengeance. It is individual ownership, to be sure, but collective control of the shipments and the market. If the NRA were in control of the expense end of it, it would be a complete control of the industry from one end to the other.

It seems to have reached the point, however, when this very condition must prevail. The government is the only agency through which all the people can function, and it is the only agency through which all the people engaged in an industry can be forced to function. It seems in the citrus industry, just like in other industries, all of those engaged in it must be forced to obey certain rules and regulations, or the object of laying down the rules and regulations will not have been achieved.

We are not the most enthusiastic advocates of this program of control, leaving the individual handicapped in other matters, but forcing him to agree to conditions, the agreement with which may defeat his own personal objective. It does not leave room at all for individual initiative and added ability to overcome the handicaps that method has put upon the industry.

If the government is going to control the income and the expenses in any industry, we should rather have them go further, and take over the management too. Because if we are to be told how much we can receive and how much we have to pay, the balance may not be sufficient to meet necessary obligations and we would rather, in such a case, be protected as well as the rest. In other words, regulatory measures, superimposed without the assumption of the obligations which the individual units have to meet, by those who regulate, certainly is a strong handicap in any case.

We are rather of the opinion that at present not very many of the citrus growers would agree with this line of reasoning, but more of them will, we doubt not, if this supervision must continue. In the meantime, it is probably the only thing upon which the industry and those in charge can agree.

INTERNATIONAL PEACE THROUGH PERCENTAGES

In an article in the current number of the "New Outlook," T. R. Ybarra, the international news correspondent, tries to answer the question, through percentages, whether there is a prospect of an immediate war in Europe. He divides Europe into ten groups: Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia, Italy, Poland, Austria, Hungary, the Little Entente (Czecho-Slovakia, Roumania, Yugo-Slavia), and the neutrals of the World War, (Holland, the Scandinavian countries, Switzerland, Spain).

If one of these units is wholly for peace he gives it 100 per cent, making a possible total for European peace of 1000. Great Britain he gives 85 per cent. Were it not for the Hitler movement in Germany, the record would be 100. France, because of her affiliation with Poland and the Little Entente, which is affected by the New Germany, is given 75 per cent. Germany, under the belligerent Hitler, gets a meager 35 per cent. Italy is out with the Little Entente, and therefore in danger of involvement with France, so she gets 45 per cent. Russia, though desiring peace, is threatened by Japan on the East, and is eager to see her form of government established on the earth. Yet she wants to build up her domestic economic structure. So she is given 50 per cent. That makes a total of 290 for the five leading powers.

Austria has been reconciled somewhat to the disruption of her empire by the treaty of Versailles, but she might be induced to enter a war some other power started to regain somewhat of what she lost. Therefore, she gets 75 per cent. Hungary will never be reconciled to the boundaries set by the Treaty of Versailles, and therefore is given 45 per cent. As to Poland, any revision of the Treaty of Versailles, which established Poland, will stir up a hornet's nest there. This gives her a percentage of 45 for peace. The Little Entente, affected similarly by the Treaty of Versailles as Poland, is given 50 per cent. The neutral countries are given a full 100 per cent.

This makes a total for the whole of Europe of 600 as against a possible 1000, a ratio in favor of European peace of three to two. These figures are nothing to be hopeful about in the European situation; but, as Mr. Ybarra says, it might be worse. And that is saying very little. It all shows what a bear pit Europe still is in spite of the war to end war. The peace was more divisive than the war. Then why another war with another disastrous peace?

REAL CAUSE FOR FRENCH CABINET CHANGES

The restless change which characterizes official France would appear to be caused wholly by the economic stress of the years since the war, were it not for history. Sixty-three years ago, the Third Republic was founded. Since that time France has had eighty-five different Cabinets. The average span of life of a French Cabinet has been nine months. Waldeck- Rousseau held office the longest, and he remained in office two years, eleven months and eleven days. Seven Prime Ministers, altogether, have held their jobs as long as two years. Two premiers have held office for as short a period as twenty-four hours. To be sure, these very short periods of office were since the war, while the longest span was in 1902, so that it might appear that certainly the tenure of office of the French premier is getting shorter.

The real cause for these rapid changes is innate in the French system of changes and however we in this country may marvel at a country, where the government must be in office too short a time to accomplish anything, it must be that the French people find that it has its advantages, for they could probably change it if they wanted to. Certainly it is true that under the French system officialdom is responsive to the opinion of the people—however transitory the opinion may be.

BASIS OF VALUE OF A NATIONAL CURRENCY

A recent writer on international trade and exchange, writing on the laws of money, makes a statement well worth thinking about in his book, especially at a time when we are hearing so much about the devalnation of the dollar. "The dollar," he says, "is based on the faith and credit of the people, not on gold." Another statement is worth noting. "The aggregate amount of money consists of acknowledged liabilities or obligations." Which means, as he goes on to show, that over 90 per cent of the business of the country is carried on with credit, not with gold or currency.

In view of such statements, the tenacity with which some experts link the whole economic and financial structure to gold is a bit absurd. Through bitter experience, the people of the world are beginning to find that out.

Salvaging Burned Forest

Portland Oregonian

Although it has been announced that salvaging operations will soon begin in the devastated Tillamook Forest, where more than 10,000,000,000 feet of timber was swept last autumn by one of the most destructive forest fires that ever visited the West, the conclusion that salvage will in large measure redeem the loss should not be entertained. The work itself is admirable, and of necessity it is indicated, but unfortunately even such work as this depends in large measure upon markets. That is to say the demand for lumber must definitely determine the extent and rapidity of salvaging.

The hemlock passes first into decay by reason of its peculiar susceptibility. It must be salvaged within two years, generally speaking, or it is valueless. In the area of the Tillamook fire, however, only fifteen per cent of the timber is hemlock. The remainder—for the amounts of spruce and cedar are negligible—is fir, and happily it may be said that the fir is much more resistant. The younger trees yield to decay sooner than do the old, and in every instance the sapwood, which mostly is discarded in milling, anyhow, is first attacked. Considered as a whole, with such controlling factors as soil and regional climate considered, a burned stand of fir may be expected to retain its commercial value for a period of from seven to ten years. Thus it is seen that the major portion of the burned timber in Tillamook country is theoretically available for salvage. The problem, as physically presented, is comparatively simple, but the more vital problem of marketing is not.

Stolen Celtic Names?

Brooklyn Eagle

The tastes of kleptomaniacs are curious. This reflection springs from the fierce appeal of A. Collins Healy, President of the Celtic Society of Columbia University, to the St. David's Society, the St. Andrew's Society, and the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick "to sponsor legislation to prevent non-Celtic people from assuming Celtic family names." Specifications of such thefts would be interesting.

However the Celtic rally at Columbia, before which Mr. Healy spoke, was a worthwhile demonstration. Eamon de Valera's cablegram probably was correct enough in estimating at "some millions of loyal Americans" the persons of Celtic or part Celtic stock in the United States—Irish, Scotch and Welsh. Santa Ana Elks announced the choice of Wednesday afternoon, December 24, for their party for Santa Ana children. They planned a big tree in the Elks' hall, with Sam Stein, prominent stationer and toy dealer, in the role of Santa Claus, and a toy and a box of candy for every child attending.

Two hundred or more members of the First Baptist church gathered for a covered dish dinner in celebration of wiping out the church debt. The mortgage was burned with much ceremony.

Clarence Guistlin, president of Santa Ana Music association, appeared before the city council to ask a financial appropriation to help cover the expenses of the community Christmas tree and program planned for Christmas Eve in Birch park.

The Forgotten Principles

By George A. Warmer

Two sentences have been passed to me recently that everybody should have a chance to ponder. They are very significant.

Mr. Cecil De Mille is reported to have said: "The trouble with us Americans these last years is that we have substituted legality for integrity." This movie-man has driven a long lance into the abcess that must be drained before brighter skies are over us.

Rev. Robert Shuler a while ago declared: "The financial center of Los Angeles is in San Quentin." This is a cryptic, but very descriptive, remark. The point of this sentence has been so recently illustrated in the senatorial investigation that all the lurid picture of the last years rushes to memory.

The trouble is easy to locate. We are shipwrecked in morals.

The ten commandments have not been reinterpreted so as to apply to our corporate acts. Killing in wholesale is heroic, if glorified by patriotism: stealing is winked at when done under the guise of stock market manipulations.

We separated church and state, divorced religion from the school curriculum and let moral instruction fall through the sieve of our dishevelled fabric. It was thought that character was a gift of the gods. But all too late we are coming to see that character is not an endowment but an achievement—not a gift but a growth.

Religion produces refinement. But there is no religion the world around that is good, that is not rooted in the soil of keen moral discernment.

Mohammedanism is what it is because it roots in a moral background that "consecrates polygamy, despotism and slavery."

Hinduism is not good because it has never sucked sustenance from a soil that was not polluted by a vicious and intolerable caste system.

Christianity is weak and impotent because moral education has been sidetracked in the interest of reading, writing and arithmetic.

We handed character education over to religion in its entirety without recognizing that character, which flowers and fruits in religion, grows on a plant that roots in morals.

There is a brightening on the eastern horizon, the dawn of a new day appears. The word in education is coming to be "character education." Tragedy of tragedies it will, unless we come quickly to understanding and put on full steam ahead, take a generation, maybe two, to establish practices worthy of our possible enlightenment.

There is a hope. We may speed up evolution. It is not necessarily slow. We are an age of technicians. Since we know what is wrong may we not expect a large crop of social and economic Edisons who will experiment us not only into a new deal but into a new game—a new moral procedure.

Ever be it our urge that he who makes evolution impossible makes revolution inevitable.

Our Children

SOMEWHA T CASUAL

"Donald, are you going over to Jack's house again?"

"Again? Why, I haven't been over there since yesterday afternoon. To hear you talk, ma, you'd think I lived over there."

"That's just about what you do, and I don't like it. I don't like that boy. I wish you'd forget about him for a while and pay a little attention to the people that belong to you."

"Aunt Hester, perhaps. Or Grandmother. They're about the same age. What do you want me to do? I've got to have some fun, haven't I? What have you got against Jack? He's as good as we are. He's the only friend I've got and you want me to lose him. Well, he never went back on me, and I'll never go back on him. Not for ANYBODY."

"That's right. Insult your family for a good-for-nothing like Jack Terrain. Now listen to me, young man. It's about my turn to speak. You'll stay right where you are and you'll leave that boy alone or I'll know the reason why. I'm still your mother."

This sort of thing does not pay. Adolescent boys and girls form strange loyalties, some of them undesirable from any point of view. Naturally, this troubles their parents, and they struggle to break up the associations and adjust the ideas behind them. That is necessary, but it is a delicate task. Force will not perform it with any degree of success.

When you meet such a child's declaration with a stronger one of your own, you do not lessen his desire to have his way. You strengthen it by stirring up the emotional background so that it makes the otherwise simple enough situation extremely complicated. Pride, self-respect, loyalty, obstinacy, defiance in a mixture that shakes the mind of the child and leaves it in confusion, rise up like a wall between you. That wall has to come down before you reach the child and persuade him to other ways. And again, force is useless.

As a child develops in mind and body he draws away from parental dictation. By the time he arrives at adolescence this withdrawal is about at its height. Not only is he a full-fledged personality, but he is keenly conscious of it. And word or glance or gesture in his direction is likely to be interpreted as a personal matter and met accordingly. If the reaction is a happy one, all is well, but if he happens to consider the smile a superior one, the word of caution a threat, the blithe word a wound to his self-esteem, theer is likely to be a scene.

Words that threaten and storm about his ears only make the bad matter worse. The best way to meet wrong-headed opposition is the casual one. School yourself to show no deep emotion, no sharp irritatin about anything he or she may do. Say what you have to say in ordinary tones and make your opposition appear rather the courteous comment of experience than the excited warning of a frightened and angry parent. Courtesy disarms adolescent antagonisms. A yawn does more than a slap. And a gentle smile illumines the blackest moments.
